MARINES SENT TO FLORIDA TO EYE MEXICANS

Mexico City Taken, Reports Persist.

BULLETIN.

Juarez, Mexico, May 8.—Gen. Alvaro Obregon and Gen. Pablo Gonzalez, rival candidates for the presidency, today entered Mexico City at the head of their armies, Gen. Escobar, Juarez commander, announced at a banquet tonight.

Washington, D. C., May 8.—[Special.]—Awakening to possible dangers for American citizens in Mexico, the government today ordered 1,200 marines sent immediately to Key West to be ready for emergency service.

Following reports of further revolt in Mexico, the flight of President Carranza from the capital, and the cutting of telegraphic communication between Mexico City and Washington, the administration determined to protect Americans who might be caught between Mexican opposing factions.

Secretary Daniels issued orders late in the day for marines on duty at League Island navy yard, Philadelphia, to be held in readiness for Mexican service.

Transport Runs to Port.

Immediately afterward the transport Henderson left Charleston, S. C., for Philadelphia to take the marines aboard and rush them to Key West, where they will await further orders. The marines will be under command of Lieut. Col. P. M. Bannon.

Five of the six destroyers ordered to Key West to hold themselves in readiness for duty near Mexican ports where Americans may be in danger arrived at Key West today.

Communication between Mexico City and the outside world has been suspended since Thursday evening, and the state department was engaged all day in the effort to get in touch with the capital by both land wires and wireless.

See Carranza on Wing.

This supports the theory that Carranza has suspended telegraphic communication in order to insure his safety in his reported flight from Mexico City either to Vera Cruz or the American border.

There are persistent rumors that Mexico City had been taken by the rebels, but doubt is expressed here that this is so.

RESCUE YANKS IN AUTOS

Laredo, Tex., May 8.—Nuevo Laredo was quiet today, with federal officials claiming the backbone of the revolt broken in that section.

American Consul Robertson at Nuevo Laredo left in nine automobiles early today for Lampazos to bring in sixteen Americans and eight British subjects, isolated there on a passenger train since the bridge was burned yesterday.

Rebels Claim Big Gains.

El Paso, Tex., May 8.—Several sweeping victories were claimed by anti-Carranza agents on the border. President Carranza is reported to have ordered the abandonment of the northern states and the concentration of "the few loyal forces there" in Mexico City.

Torreon, Coahuila, and Zacatecas and Aguascallentes, capitals of the states bearing the same names, and Saltillo, capital of Coahuila, were also claimed today by the revolutionists.

Luis Cabrera, Carranza minister of finance, has arrived in Piedras Negras, according to advices received by Teodulo R. Beltran, commercial agent for the revolutionary forces here.

VILLA TAME; WAITS ORDERS

Augua Prieta, Sonora, May 8.—The state of Durango severed relations with the Carranza central government and joined the revolutionary movement late yesterday, according to reports received by Gen. P. Elias Calles, northern commander.

According to a telegram to military headquarters here this noon, Gen. Alvaro Obregon was due at Toluco, within two miles of Mexico City, at 8 o'clock this morning to take command of troops to capture Mexico City.

Francisco Villa has declared an armistice with the revolutionary forces, pending a decision by Gen. de la Huerta as to whether Villa will be allowed to join the movement.

The rebel was reported at Meoqui, near Ortiz, twenty miles southeast of Chihuahua City, with 200 men. Villa agreed to remain in the vicinity until his relation to the revolutionary movement is defined.

LOWDEN SURE OF DOWNSTATE IN WAR ON MAYOR

Fight to Finish Is Seen for Party Control.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Springfield, Ill., May 8.—[Special.]—Gov. Lowden tonight declined to consider any terms of conciliation with Mayor Thompson. All diplomatic relations have been severed between the two and no quarter is now asked or given by either the governor or the mayor.

Monday at the Republican state convention it is to be a straightaway test of strength between the two on the single proposition of Republican control of Illinois politics.

Gov. Lowden's managers had taken a count by congressional districts. They were confident that every one of the fifteen downstate districts will stand pat for Lowden and against the mayor.

Only One District Doubtful.

Definite assurance was required only from the Seventeenth district—that represented in congress by Col. Smith—and there was every indication that an effort made to deliver the district to the city hall would mean a split in the district vote on the decisive test in whatever fashion it may arise Monday.

The news that came from southern Illinois with the arrival of scores of leaders and delegates from "Egypt" indicated that the spirit of the delegates from the four districts south of the Vandalia railroad is that Lowden's presidential chances must have first consideration and that other matters, political or personal, must stand aside until after the national convention.

This tends to indicate that the Rodenberg and the Williams congressional districts, counted upon strongly as critical factors in the city hall campaign for state organization control, have fallen by the wayside, from the mayor's point of view, and that there is rather slim prospect that he can control the state convention as against Gov. Lowden.

Count Him for Governor.

The word tonight is that Congressman Rodenberg will go through to the limit with the Lowden program. He has been slated for several days to be the temporary chairman of the state convention, and he has been conspicuously mentioned as the man who will make the nominating speech for Lowden in the national convention.

In the Kankakee district the Len Small forces in the last analysis are more disposed to Lowden than to the mayor. Congressman Copley, at the showdown, it is believed by the politicians, will be for Lowden rather than to have his district traded into the city hall for local political considerations, including the nomination for clerk of the Appellate court in the northern Illinois district.

Neather Side Weakens.

At Saturday midnight there was no indication of anything that tended to a compromise between the two elements. Gov. Lowden unquestionably was wearing his fighting clothes, and dose not even want to talk with his Chicago adversaries.

The mayor, Fred Lundin, Corporation Counsel Ettelson, and a strong body of city hall troops arrived this afternoon. Instead of seeking any conciliatory conferences, the mayor handed out a copy of his declaration of war issued Thursday in Chicago, and said that it was his intention to go through with it.

Gov. Lowden's position, as stated in THE TRIBUNE Saturday morning, was reiterated by himself: "There can be no compromise on principle," he said. "We are prepared to go to the limit."

May Throw Mayor Out.

The slate for delegates at large will be made tomorrow afternoon at a conference of the Lowden leaders. Unless all signs fail, Mayor Thompson is not to be one of the big eight, if the Lowden forces are in convention control.

The state committee meets at 6 o'clock tomorrow night to elect the temporary chairman and other officers. This will be the first real test.

CHICAGO ARREST IN NEW YORK BOND ROBBERY

Supposed Aid of Arnstein Seized.

A. C. Ecrement, wanted in New York for negotiating some of the $2,500,000 securities stolen by "Nickey" Arnstein and "Nick" Cohen, and a couple of bank messengers, and wanted in Montreal and in Buffalo in connection with a $125,000 swindle, was arrested last night in Chicago.

He had been living as C. E. Arthur, a broker, at 4200 Drexel boulevard. The name Ecrement was found on the inside pocket of one of his many garments, and it was only after Detective Sergeants Thomas McFarland and John Cartan wrung other admissions from him that he confessed his name. He is held at the detective bureau.

Claims Kastel as Friend.

He admits that he is a friend of Philip Kastel — another man badly wanted in the Arnstein case. He denies he knows Arnstein, but identified a picture of "Nickey" Cohen as that of a man he met not long ago in the Hotel La Salle.

The detectives got on the trail of Ecrement through the testimony given in New York by Kastel before he fled. Kastel was manager for the brokerage house of Goldberg & Heim in New York. He was an intimate friend of Arnstein, called "the master mind" in a plot to steal not only $2,500,000 in securities, but twice that much. Kastel told the authorities that he had spent a few days with Prof. Edward Dufresne at 4200 Drexel boulevard, Chicago. He left New York as soon as he could.

The detectives, looking for Kastel, went to the rooming house which is kept by Mrs. A. Stahl. There was no Kastel there, Mrs. Stahl said, but a "Mr. Arthur."

Large Wardrobe Found.

In the absence of the latter the detectives searched his room. They found a number of trunks and suitcases. They were filled with clothes, Palm Beach suits, tuxedos, morning suits, frock coats, flannels, evening dress, business clothes, silk shirts, fancy underwear, a whole rainbow of ties, a collection of stickpins, a number of sets of studs and cuff links, hats of all kinds, and dozens of shoes.

Every suit was tailor made. Every suit had been relieved of its labels—every suit, that is, except one. It was the inside vest pocket of a full dress suit that gave up the name of Ecrement.

The detectives questioned Mrs. Stahl. Mr. Arthur, she said, was more or less mysterious, but evidently a very prosperous gentleman—a broker, she believed.

"He gets lots of telegrams," she said, "and has lots of long distance calls.

Asks About Escape.

"Sometimes they get him out of bed with the long distance." She smiled. "Why only the other day I had to get him up at 6 o'clock in the morning to answer a call from Cleveland. I heard him say, 'Didn't he make his escape yet?'

"I guess he must have got about 200 telegrams in the time he's been here. He came last November, but he is away for days at a time sometimes. Yes, sir, a very nice man, and he always carries a cane. A cane with a crooked handle."

"It would be crooked," said McFarland.

"And he's that scrupulous, you'd be surprised. He wants to be waited on. He wouldn't even touch a piece of soiled linen. Not he. And he's got a very fine manicure set on his dresser. He takes excellent care of himself, always."

Says He's French Teacher.

"Mr. Arthur" was at home last night when the detectives entered.

He was quite surprised and somewhat chagrined when they began to question him. He answered politely though, and now and then achieved a smile. He was a teacher of French, he said, and made about $3.50 an hour. He taught people all over the city.

"I've even got a Negro in my class," he said, speaking with a slight French accent.

"Are all these clothes your own?" Detective Cartan asked him.

"Why, yes," he said, "certainly."

"Well, then," Cartan replied, "you're using a 'phony' name, and

ANOTHER PROBLEM IN FOREIGN EXCHANGE

[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The U. S. census shows a great preponderance of males over females.

Europe has an overwhelming preponderance of females over males.

Such being the case, why not?

CAN YOU WIGGLE YOUR EARS? IF NOT, YOU'RE WEAK

Can you wiggle your ears? If not, yours can never be the brawn of the cave man.

Can you move your scalp? If not, you are nearing the last stages of physical weakness.' R. I. McKee, physical director of the Evanston Y. M. C. A., says so.

Mr. McKee bears out—at least so far as man is concerned—the recent contention of Dr. William J. Hickson of the psychopathic laboratory that man is fast becoming an effeminized physical weakling while woman is in the ascendancy of her mental and muscular development. In an address to a group of Evanston business men last night on "Fighting Trim," Mr. McKee pictured man as slipping along on the physical toboggan to the abyss of flabby despair.

"Thousands of years ago, in the early life of the human race," he said, "man had gill slits the same as a fish, and his body was covered with a pale coat of hair. He used his ears in those days, moved them about to make his hearing more acute. He moved his scalp. Inability to move the ears and the scalp today is a sign of weakness."

FOUR HURT IN WRECK OF AUTO AT OTTAWA, ILL.

Three men and one woman, all Chicagoans, were injured yesterday afternoon when the motor car in which they were driving was wrecked on a country road three miles from Ottawa, Ill. They are:

MRS. SAMUEL TILDEN, 914 Crescent place, Chicago.

SAMUEL TILDEN, 914 Crescent place, Chicago.

GEORGE ALPENCE, Evanston.

HARRY PAYNE, Oak Park.

They were found near their car by two farmers late this afternoon, who rushed them to a hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Tilden and Payne left the hospital tonight. Alpence remained in the hospital.

Albert Spaulding Scores Paris Concert Triumph

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[By Special Cable.]

PARIS, May 8.—Albert Spaulding, the Chicago violinist, scored a huge success with the New York Symphony at its second concert at the Paris Opera house this afternoon. At the conclusion of the St. Saens third concerto the audience rose, shouting "Bravo Spaulding," "Vive L'Amerique" and even "Vive Chicago."

DIVORCED WIFE SAYS D. G. REID KEPT HER FINERY

Sues for Many Costly Wearing Articles.

New York, May 8.—[Special.]—Mrs. Margaret C. Reid today brought two suits in the Supreme court against Daniel G. Reid, "tinplate king," against whom she obtained a decree of divorce recently, to recover personal belongings valued at more than $350,000 and $20,000 damages. Mrs. Reid specifies many rare and costly wearing articles.

MRS. M. C. REID.

In one suit she demands chattels in this country valued at $325,000 and $20,000 damages. In the second action she demands $15,000, which she alleges to be the value of personal property in her apartment in Paris.

Mrs. Reid alleges "that in or about the month of January, 1919, in Paris, the defendant, then being in possession of the aforesaid articles, unlawfully converted and disposed of them to his own use."

A Boudoir Inventory.

Included in the first suit are such items as twenty-two dresses, twelve new linen sport waists, twelve real lace and embroidered waists, valued at $600; georgette afternoon frocks, valued at $200; fifteen sweaters valued at $1,000; one dozen pairs of hand made stockings, three dozen pairs of silk stockings, six pairs of woolen stockings, nine pairs of white cashmere stockings, a $1,000 green brocade evening wrap wtih sable collar, a $2,500 fur coat, six canteen uniforms, two dozen sets of French underwear valued at $2,000, and silk and satin slips, seventy-five pairs of shoes and evening slippers, valued at $2,000.

Two Motor Cars in List.

Other articles listed are: One Simplex motor car, $12,000; one Rolls Royce motor car, $12,000; one Pekinese dog, $240; a carved walnut Steinway grand piano, $5,000; two Baumgarten chairs, $5,000; a clock, $5,000; fourteen water colors in the blue room now or formerly at 907 Fifth avenue, $8,400; Gobelin tapestries at same address, $15,000; six dozen china plates, $3,000 a Wyatt painting of two children, $20,000; and many other items.

Valuable furnishings are listed for the Paris home.

MAN SAVED FROM GAS NEAR DEATH FROM BULLET

William C. Krauger, 6428 Union avenue, was discharged from the Englewood hospital yesterday morning, having recovered from a mysterious gas which poisoned eight other persons Friday night and finally overcame him when he attempted a rescue. Last night Krauger lay once more in the hospital with a bullet wound in his right side. It was said he would die.

The man was found by a friend, David Winton, 6445 South Halsted street, lying on the floor of the house at 6428 Union avenue. A revolver with three discharged cartridges was found fifteen feet away on the floor. Overturned chairs and a wrecked table indicated that a struggle had taken place.

Women of the neighborhood said they had heard several shots and called the police. When Winton entered the building he found the front door open. No one was seen to leave the house after the shooting.

"I believe that a burglar read of the gas poisoning and, thinking the house would be vacant, attempted a robbery," said Winton. "Krauger had no enemies. No one would shoot him. He would not commit suicide."

Stevens' Odd Plea Fails to Win a New Trial

Geneva, Ill., May 8.—[Special.]—Judge Slusser today denied a new trial to Walter Stevens of Chicago, who was convicted of shooting Lester Wedemaier, a former Aurora patrolman. Stevens' lawyers demanded a new trial on the grounds that two of the jurors were in the company of Mrs. Rilla Olin and another woman in Aurora, the night before the verdict was returned. Mrs. Olin is the widow of Alfred Olin, an Aurora policeman, who was killed in the gun fight in which Wedemaier was wounded. Stevens was acquitted of Olin's murder.

Pair, on Way from Dance, Stabbed; In Hospital

A young man and woman returning from a dance were stabbed and put in St. Joseph's hospital by unidentified assailants at Fullerton avenue and the Northwestern tracks at midnight last night. They are John Hoppe, 25, 2263 Clybourn avenue, and Mrs. Mary Kalcomo, 22, 2263 Clybourn avenue.

Hoppe was stabbed five times and the woman eight times. Hoppe told the police that four men attacked them—three of them assailing him and the fourth the woman. The police suspect the woman's husband, from whom she has been separated two years.

Wife, Doomed, Kills Husband to Foil Rival

Mrs. Pauline Friedericks solved her strange problem yesterday by killing her husband, Henry C. Friedericks, secretary of the Elgin Granite Works, in their home at 557 Enterprise street, Elgin.

She shot him seven times with a revolver with which she had perfected her aim at target practice in preparation for the murder.

She then notified neighbors and waited the arrival of the police.

At the coroner's inquest in the afternoon she was ordered held to the grand jury without bail.

A Dying Woman's Problem.

Here is her problem:

She is in the final stages of tuberculosis. Physicians have told her she cannot live longer than July 15, if until then. Her husband knew this. He sought to discard her for another woman, she said. She refused to give him up.

"It was not much I asked of him—only a little loving companionship to the end," she said yesterday. Her voice was steady and she showed no emotion. "But he wouldn't wait.

"They will say I killed him. And yet—he killed me in a manner far worse than that of physical death."

Learns of Her Doom.

Mrs. Friederichs is 42 years old. Her old home was Crown, Point, Ind. She was Mr. Friederich's second wife. He was wealthy. They had been married six years. She did not know she was a victim of tuberculosis when she married him, she said. The disease did not develop marked symptoms until a year ago. She sought treatment at hospitals near Chicago. She was told the disease had progressed so far as to be incurable.

She smiled a little as she explained: "Life means nothing to me. I was at Crown Point last month visiting my mother, when my husband wrote me that he contemplated a divorce.

"The shock caused me to collapse. A week ago last Thursday I recovered sufficiently to go to Elgin.

Finds His Love Letters.

"I went directly to our home. He was not there. The doors and windows were locked. I gained entrance through a cellar coal chute.

"It was then that I came across letters that had passed between him and an Elgin woman:

"I pleaded with him when he came home. But he would not listen to me. Then I saw there was but one way out.

"On the way home from Crown Point, I had stopped at Gary and bought a revolver and cartridges.

"I decided to kill him.

"But I had never used a revolver. I accustomed myself to it by target practice in the basement of our home.

Shoots at His Cap.

"I used one of his old caps for a target. I practiced every day while he was at the office.

"At first I was discouraged. I couldn't hit the cap. But gradually my marksmanship improved. Finally I got so I could hit the cap once out of every three times.

"My husband would come home at noon and in the evening and sometimes kiss me. I would kiss him and smile.

"He never suspected what was be-

MOTHER FIGHTS FOR VINCI; GIVES LIE TO HOYNE

Tries to Bar Enright Death Confession.

Frank Campione, Tom Errico, and Nick Viana were condemned to death late last night by a jury in Judge Oscar Hebel's courtroom. They were convicted of killing Albert Kubalanzo last November. This verdict forms a part of the program, begun when four extra judges were added to the Criminal branch, to clean up Chicago's topheavy murder calendar.

Jimmy Vinci's olive skinned mother threw her heart on the scales of justice yesterday to save her son from the noose.

"My Jimmy," she called him. These were the only words of English she uttered. The rest of the time she was simply a poorly dressed foreigner, her liquid speech of southern Italy garbled in interpretation.

But there were the glances of adoration, the nods of approval, and the half closed eyes of a mother fighting for her child as she told a story on the witness stand which, if credited, will probably save Vinci's life. Her thoughts needed no language for expression.

Confession Is Produced.

She came in the nick of time, too, for on the bench, in front of Judge Sabath, the state's trump card—"People's Exhibit No. 19"—lay opened, condemning her son as an accessory to the shotgun murder of Maurice ["Moss"] Enright, labor leader.

It was Vinci's confession, a remarkable document, in which he admitted on Feb. 14 to State's Attorney Hoyne that he had driven the automobile from which, he said, Vincenzo Cosmano emptied his shotgun into the body of Enright in front of the labor leader's Garfield boulevard home, Feb. 3.

In it he tells of the slaying in the following simple paragraph:

"Why, he got over there and he said, 'Slow up.' I didn't come to a stop at all and he just went 'boom, boom.'"

Dressed as Washwoman.

It is "People's Exhibit No. 19" that the defense is so anxious to keep from the ears of the jury. Judge Sabath has ruled that if Vinci was coerced or frightened into making the statement, it is not admissible as evidence. State's Attorney Hoyne has testified that the confession was voluntary and no promise of immunity was made until after it was made. The fight proceeds before the judge while the jury, locked in, amuses itself with decks of cards.

So the situation stood when Mrs. Angelina Vinci took the stand. Dressed as an humble washwoman and handicapped by her inability to speak English, she however proved an excellent witness—and a better actress.

She passed the lie to State's Attorney Hoyne. She said she had been told by his assistants ten days before his confession that "if your boy goes with us we will let him out and give him a lot of money, too." This, the defense will contend, shows coercion.

"Only Let Me Kiss Him."

"They only let me kiss him," she declared, simply telling of when she went to visit him two days after his arrest. The defense will contend Vinci was held illegally until he made the confession contained in "People's Exhibit No. 19."

The court was solemnly still as the mother took the witness stand. She wore a frayed black plush coat. Around her head was the typical black shawl. Her skin was tanned, but her cheeks rosy. Her black eyes danced as she sought out those of her son. She smiled confidently to him. She answered the interpreter's questions concerning her name and address before the queries were finished.

Vinci Corrects Mother.

"Where do you live?" she was asked.

She answered 718 Blue Island avenue.

"She lives at 718 West Twenty-fifth place," explained Vinci, jumping to his feet.

"My Jimmy," was the mother's grateful response. She nodded her head at him vigorously.

"I think I don't know but my Jimmy does," she said through the interpreter.

Q.—How old is James Vinci? A.—Next September, my Jimmy, he will come 25.

Q.—When did you first see him after his arrest? A.—He was arrested on Wednesday and I saw him on Friday.

Q.—Did they allow you to talk to him? A.—No, they only let me kiss him.

Tells of Freedom Offer.

Q.—What, if anything, did they say to you A.—The assistant says, "Don't be afraid for your boy; if he goes with us we will let him out and give him a lot of money, too."

Q.—When did you see him again. A.—Two weeks later I saw my Jimmy.

Q.—What did they say to you? A.—The assistant took some papers out of his desk and showed them to me. He said, "You don't have to worry. If he signs this paper he will be free."

Says Policemen Were Drunk.

James J. Barbour, attorney for Vinci, then questioned the mother about a party given by Vinci's wife while he was still in the state's attorney's custody. It is his intention to show how the defendant was accorded many privileges before he repudiated his confession.

Q.—Were you are the party? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were there any policemen there? A.—Yes, some policemen. They were much drunk. They drank a barrel of wine.

Q.—Did you hear anything said by the policemen relative to Jimmy's fate if he refused to go along with the state's attorney's office? A.—I heard them talk, but I didn't understand them.

State Scores a Point.

The state scored a point to be used later in the trial when it showed that the law firm Darrow, Sissman, Popham & Carlin, of which Clarence Darrow is to defend Cosmano, the man accused of the actual slaying, was cooperating with Attorney Barbour in the defense of Vinci.

It was during the cross-examination of Max Micetic, who lives under Vinci's flat at 3250 South Wells street. Micetic's testimony was concerning Vinci's arrest. It showed he had been held more than two weeks.

"Who served you?" asked Assistant State's Attorney O'Brien.

"A lawyer," answered Micetic.

Q.—Where did you go? A.—To Mr. Barbour's office.

Q.—Do you know where the office is? A.—No.

Q.—Who told you how to get there? A.—Mr. Barbour's assistant.

"Barbour's assistant" was identified later as Attorney William L. Carlin of the Darrow firm and the offices those of the latter.

"I want the record to show that the firm of Darrow, Sissman, Popham & Carlin is in this case," declared Assistant State's Attorney James C. O'Brien.

"The records will show nothing of the kind," retorted Barbour.

"A Million Dollar Defense."

The state intends to show that the "million dollar defense" of Cosmano, "Big Tim" Murphy, and Mike Carozzo, president of the street cleaners' union, is aiding the fight to free Vinci. The latter are held in the county jail to be tried later.

Thomas Kane, a detective sergeant for the state's attorney's office, testified that Vinci had confessed to him before making the formal statement known as "People's Exhibit No. 19." The questions and answers were as follows:

Q.—Did you see Vinci in the state's attorney's office in February? A.—Yes, on Feb. 11 or 12.

Q.—Did you have a conversation with him? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was said? A.—I said, "Jimmie, we know you are the driver of the car. Why don't you make a clean breast of it?" I said, "Tony Cifaldo told us you were the driver of the car; told us that you were in Murphy and Carozzo's office at the time they wanted him to bump off Enright, as he said." I told him that Meli, Braggo Bruglio, also identified him. He said, "I am afraid they will kill me." That was all we said at that time.

Only Cosmano in Car.

Q.—Did you talk to him again? A.—Yes. I said, "I want to ask you one question, Jimmie. How many were in that car, two, three, or four? He leaned back for about two minutes and then he said that he and Cosmano were the only ones in the car.

Q.—Did you talk to him again? A.—Yes, about ten minutes later. I asked him where the gun was. He said Cosmano gave it to a man out south on Wentworth avenue. I asked him for the number of the house and he said he did not know, but that he could point the house out. I asked him if he would go with us if we took him in a cab and he said: "Yes, if you will take me at night and not in the day."

Q.—Did you go out with him? A.—Yes. That night we went out and he took us to Wentworth and Archer avenues, to Bruno Roti's place, a grocery store. We talked to Bruno and then went and searched his house.

[The conversation had was objected to.]

Tells of Finding Gun.

Q.—After you talked to Bruno and searched his house what did you do? A.—We went to Lupena's house next door.

Q.—Did you find a gun? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did you do with it? A.—I showed it to Vinci and asked him if that was the gun, and he said, "No, that is not the gun."

Attorney Barbour then asked him:

Q.—At the time you talked to him didn't you get him a glass of water? A.—No, not that I remember.

At this point Prosecutor O'Brien said:

Q.—Did you put any white powder in the water? A.—No.

Q.—Have you any white powder downstairs that will make people talk? A.—No.

Tells of Vinci Party.

Further details of the party which was held in the Vinci home were related by Mrs. Mary Schlich, another neighbor of the defendant.

Q.—Who did you see at the party? A.—Five detectives.

Q.—What were they doing? A.—Eating and drinking.

Q.—Were they drunk or sober? A.—Well, they were feeling pretty happy when I left with my husband.

Vito Delese, a grocer at 626 West Twenty-sixth street, was also there. He answered Attorney Barbour's queries as follows:

Q.—What did you see? A.—I saw the officers there. They ate and drank. I went back to the kitchen with them, and they said——

The state's objections stopped him. Later he resumed.

A.—They said: "We have been treating Jimmy fine and showing him a good time." The officers were pretty good drunk. I had a pretty good stew myself.

Vinci took the stand for a moment at the close of the session. He was asked his name and address, and then excused. He will resume the stand Monday in an effort to cast doubt on the state's method of obtaining his confession. He is expected to contend that he was drugged.

The Battle Over the Vinci Confession

Chief Characters in Day's Proceedings, Sketched in Court.

VINCI'S CONFESSION

James Vinci's confession, the pivotal point in the Enright murder trial, contains a gripping story of how he came into contact with Vincenzo Cosmano and was driven by fear of death to pilot the automobile from which the shots were fired which killed Enright. It was made public by the state's attorney's office after copies had been given to Judge Sabath and Attorney Barbour for the accused.

A week before the murder he was called "down to Forty-seventh street" in his capacity as chauffeur for the Emery Motor Livery company. There he met Cosmano, "Mike" Carozzo, and "Big Tim" Murphy, the co-defendants in the murder case. Cosmano, whom he accused of the actual slaying, was known to him as Lucci.

He drove them about the block in which Enright's house was situated and through the streets for several hours. Enright did not appear.

Haunted Enright Neighborhood.

Every night for a week he continued to haunt the neighborhood of Garfield boulevard and Halsted street with Cosmano waiting to get within striking distance of the labor leader. Once he saw Cosmano handling a shotgun in the back of the car. They were following Enright's machine. The statement reads:

Q.—Then what happened? A.—When I crossed the street he looked back. I was going west on Fifty-fourth place and I see by the light that is there——

Q.—What did you see? A.—Gun there, fixing it, so I kind of slowed up a little. He said. "God ahead! O, go ahead!" And finally I got up there, but too late. I know when I see that gun, my heart was in my mouth.

Vinci explains that Enright's car was lost before he could gather speed. Cosmano, whom he calls Lucci, upbraided him. His statement then reads:

Q.—What kind of a gun did he have? A.—Double barrel shotgun.

Q.—Then what happened? A.—I told him——

Tells of Killing Plan.

Q.—What did you tell him? A.—"What the hell is he going to do?" He said he was going to kill this guy.

Q.—Which guy? A.—Enright.

Q.—Did you say anything to him when he told you to be back the next night? A.—I didn't say a damn thing. I dassen't say anything, because the way he went that night. I watched him until he got in the house, thinking, you know, he would turn around and give it to me, because I was all alone that time and no one might see me.

The last two trips to the south side were taken in the Templar car owned by Ralph Buglio, one of the witnesses in the trial. The machine was picked up at Carozzo's office at 132 North La Salle street.

Vinci then relates the events on the fatal night, Tuesday, as follows:

Q.—Did you make a date for Tuesday? A.—He said to come down there. He said he would have one of the other cars.

Q.—On Tuesday, what time did you get down there? A.—About 5 o'clock.

Q.—Didn't you get down before 5? A.—Four thirty.

Q.—Where did you go when you got there? 138 La Salle? A.—No, sir. He told me to go downstairs and he will watch him up there.

Q.—And he stayed upstairs there? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who, Lucci? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you tell him the car was there? A.—Whose car?

Q.—Where it was standing, the Templar? A.—Right by the city hall, on La Salle street.

Q.—And were the side curtains up? A.—Yes.

Follows Car from Loop.

Q.—Did you go down? A.—I went down, he came down right after me, he said "All right."

Q.—Where did he go? A.—Followed this car right from downtown.

Q.—When you were up in the office on Tuesday night did you see anybody up there beside Lucci? A.—Yes, I think Murphy was up there that night. I didn't get a chance to talk to him.

Q.—Was Carozzo up there? A.—Yes. I am pretty sure Murphy was up there Tuesday night. I did not talk to either one of them, he said he was going to a wake.

Q.—Did you follow this Enright car? A.—Yes, right from downtown.

Route of Death Trail.

Q.—Which way did it go? A.—East on Randolph street.

Q.—Then what way? A.—South on Michigan.

Q.—Then which way? A.—West on Garfield.

Q.—And then where? A.—Joe Swift's saloon.

Q.—And where were you? A.—I was right between Emerald and Union.

Q.—How long did you wait? A.—Twenty minutes.

Q.—Waited there about twenty minutes? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who told you to wait? A.—Lucci.

Q.—Then what happened? A.—This car started.

Q.—Whose car? A.—Enright's.

Q.—Did you see him go out of the saloon? A.—If I saw him I wouldn't know him.

Q.—Do you know how many people were in Enright's car on the way from downtown to Swift's saloon? A.—No.

Q.—And Lucci told you to start up when you were watching outside of Swift's saloon? A.—Yes.

Q.—And after Lucci told you to start up what did you do? A.—He said, "Go ahead."

Q.—What did you do? A.—Started up and followed this car.

Q.—Then what happened? A.—He said, "All right, just stay behind this car."

Q.—Yes. A.—"Then when I tell you to slack up, slack up." "When they get out," he said, "slack up."

Q.—How far were you behind this car when he left Halsted street? A.—Probably twenty-five or thirty feet. When I went through Halsted he was on Fifty-fourth place nearly to Garfield boulevard.

Q.—Was the car right at the corner? A.—When he come through we were nearly together like this, side by side.

Q.—Then what happened? You were driving side by side, which way were you going? A.—West.

Q.—On which road, the north or south boulevard? A.—The north boulevard.

Two Shots Fired.

Q.—And what happened then? A.—Why, he got over there and he said, "Slow up." I didn't come to a stop at all, and he just went boom, boom.

Q.—Wasn't he sitting in the front seat? A.—No, in the back there.

Q.—In the back all the time? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were both shots fired from the back? A.—One from the front, because he was mad; I didn't even stop for him. I thought he was going to shoot me; once he wanted me to come to a full stop.

Q.—You slackened up? A.—Well, I just took the gas off, but I thought he had missed, and set the brake up so, as he shot from the back.

Q.—Which way did he shoot from, the front, through the curtain? A.—Through the side, no curtains, the curtain was off.

Q.—What curtain was off? A.—The front.

Q.—Was he sitting up in front? A.—He was sitting in the back.

Shot from Behind Him.

Q.—And he reached over? A.—He got behind me.

Q.—This was a left hand drive? A.—Yes.

Q.—And the second shot was how soon after the first one? A.—Just a Snap! Snap!

Q.—Within a very short time? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you handle the brake there at all? A.—I put on some, but I didn't stop.

Q.—Did Jimmy Lucci handle the brake at all? A.—You mean, if he handled the brake at all?

Q.—On this Tuesday night? When you didn't stop, what did he do? A.—O, he told me to be sure and stop.

Q.—Did he lean over and grab the emergency brake? A.—I think he did, and there was no brake on there.

Q.—And two shots were fired? A.—Yes.

Q.—Then what did he say, if anything? A.—Nothing. He said "Go ahead." He was all through.

Q.—You went west for a little ways? A.—Yes.

Q.—Then where did you go? A.—I went to Twenty-second street.

DEATH DECREED FOR 3 ROBBERS WHO SLEW MAN

Jurors Vote Noose for Kubalanzo Slayers.

Late last night a jury in Judge Oscar Hebel's court returned a triple death verdict for Frank Campione, Tom Errico, and Nick Viana—all members of the notorious Cardinella gang.

They were charged with having killed Albert Kubalanzo last November during the robbery of a poolroom at 4420 West Sixty-third street. Entering the place, they had ordered their victim to turn over his money. Kubalanzo reached to his hip to get it. Campione fired.

Shams Madness in Vain.

Campione leaned heavily on a bailiff's arm as he heard Clerk Charles Strook announce his fate. For more than three months as he awaited trial in jail he had been feigning insanity. Again and again court proceedings had been interrupted while the Italian, rocking to and fro in the prisoner's chair, burst forth in frenzied lullaby to a jail pillow which he held in his arms.

A commission of three physicians declared Campione sane. Still he continued the alleged sham. Yesterday, while Attorneys William McCabe and Francis Borrelli were pleading his cause, he sang. One such spell lasted for thirty minutes.

Viana, 18 years old, and Errico, 19, sat calmly beside him. Without flinching they heard Assistant State's Attorney Edwin Raber call them desperadoes and ask the death verdict.

Jury Out Four Hours.

"It is of the greatest importance that these crimes which have been terrorizing Chicago, endangering the life of every individual as he goes from his home at night, be stopped," he said. "There is only one way, and that is to inflict the proper penalty. Then the picture of the scaffold will rise up before the assassin and stay his hand."

The jury was out for nearly four hours. At 10:10 it returned to the jury box.

Throughout the courtroom detectives had been planted. Fear of a possible outbreak "by members of the Camorra" led Mr. Raber to ask protection. As strangers entered the Criminal court building they were searched.

There was no demonstration, however. The condemned men silently disappeared into the county jail. One old woman, her head wrapped in a shawl wept and muttered.

Last night Dr. Frederick L. Orsinger was found not guilty of murder by a jury in Judge Brentano's court. He was accused of performing a fatal illegal operation on Minnie Schofield in March, 1917. He was defended by Mary Belle Spencer, public guardian.

JURY TOLD OF CONFESSION BY MILLS' SLAYERS

Sergt. John W. Norton of the homicide squad was the principal witness yesterday in the trial of Edward Brislane and Robert Carter, charged with the murder of William Mills, manager of the Crawford theater. He told of obtaining the joint confession from them. No inducement or threat was made to obtain it, he said. It was read to the jurors.

Other witnesses were Assistant State's Attorney John Prystalski, who confirmed Sergt. Norton's testimony that a confession had been obtained; Luther L. Blaine, who had identified the body of Mr. Mills in an undertaking establishment, and Clyde S. Stillwell, attorney for the International Harvester company. Brislane was employed there. He owed the company money.

Detective Sergeant Michael Grady testified the defendants had told him the motive for visiting the theater was robbery. Court was adjourned until Monday morning.

RAISING PRICES SMASH MARKETS AMONG GERMANS

Exchange Rates Keep Others Away.

BY PARKE BROWN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[By Special Cable.]

BERLIN, May 8.—Both Germany's domestic and her foreign markets have come to a standstill. The practice of raising prices has continued steadily. They now are beyond the reach of German buyers. At the same time, because of the improvement in the rate of exchange of the mark, the buying power of the dollar, pound, and franc have been dropping. As a result, the foreign buyer goes away empty handed.

That this situation exists is demonstrated clearly in the official reports of the foreign trade office reviewing the economic situation at the beginning of May. The first sentence of this report reads:

"The situation in April was influenced partly by the consequences of the March disturbances and partly by the cessation of sales due to the diminution of demand."

The same report, discussing the labor conditions, said they were much worse because the employers, as a result of the dead market, were forced either to reduce the hours of work or discharge some of the workers.

PARIS TREMBLES AS GREAT TIEUP OF LABOR LOOMS

PARIS, May 8.—The Federation of Postal Employés has invited all Paris employés to a general meeting tomorrow to discuss means for upholding the workers now striking. Although the invitation does not mention striking, there is an intimation prevalent that such action is contemplated.

The statement of the labor federation points out that the attitude of the government in refusing to meet the workers necessitates further and more drastic action, although it expresses regret that the course must be taken at this time.

There is considerable uneasiness and fears are expressed that should the means of transportation in Paris be tied up Monday, clashes and riots may result. Measures to keep order in the city are being taken by the authorities.

LUMBER DEALERS' OFFER REJECTED BY CARPENTERS

A compromise offer of a $1 an hour wage to start tomorrow if the men return to work and $1.10 an hour after June 10, made by the Lumbermen's association to the striking mill workers was rejected last nlight at a meeting of the Carpenters' District council.

The men stood pat on their original demand of $1.10 an hour, to be paid immediately on their return to work.

SOVIETS CREATE BUFFER STATE AS SOP TO JAPAN

Capital at Vladivostok —Mikado Silent.

BY FRAZIER HUNT.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[By Special Cable.]

VLADIVOSTOK, via Harbin, May 2.—[Delayed.]—Final arrangements for the establishment of an independent buffer state in Eastern Siberia are completed. It will be known as Russian Far East, with the capital at Vladivostok and will include all of Siberia east of the Selanga river emptying into Lake Baikal.

The new state is a sop to Japan. It is established with the full accord of Moscow in order to please Japan and is an attempt to gain Japanese evacuation. It is in line with the general policy of compromise adopted the past year by the soviets.

Purely a Peace Move.

"In order to live, we must first all have peace," Vilenski, the Moscow delegate, explained to me in an interview. "We are willing to do anything reasonable to gain peace. The creation of a buffer state is one step towards compromise. This buffer state will be run independent of Moscow, will have its own semi-socialistic government, and will be able to satisfy any country regarding its temperate liberalism. Foreign capital can come with concessions for foreigners. We would like to keep it open on equal terms to all."

Vilenski explained that the buffer state would follow any reasonable lines. It might be organized for a definite number of years, if demanded.

"Naturally, Russia wil have a great influence over the state, but it will be independent. At a future time, when Russia gains the recognition of the world, understand us, the Russian Far East can join the rest of the country."

Form of Government.

The present provisional zemstvo government will be enlarged by two delegates from each province in the new buffer state and will direct the government. Temporarily, the Kolchak currency continues, but it is expected that the new Siberia money printed for Kolchak, but never distributed, will form the basis, the old rubles being exchanged for the new money on a basis of ten old rubles for one of the new.

Japan so far has shown no signs of being willing to withdraw with the creation of a safe buffer state. Her refusal to make definite demands leads the Siberians to believe that she either wants great concessions as pay for evacuation or intends permanently to occupy eastern siberia.

Siberians Heartbroken.

Thus is Japan digging herself in in Siberia and Manchuria with every evidence of long occupation. She is adding thousands of fresh troops to the 50,000 already here.

These tired people of Vladivostok and eastern Siberia, who, following the final defeat of Kolchak influences three months ago, were happy over victory and determined to drive out the Japanese, are today discouraged and beaten. Not only has central Russia decided to refuse them help in driving out the Japanese, but from every building Jap flags fly and Jap troops parade their streets.

Their own armies either are disarmed or have fled to the hills. Even in the hills word comes to them to conduct no guerrilla warfare. They must not stir up the Japanese, who will punish with more demands, more aggressions and more terror.

Tomorrow this strange Slav temperament may swing the Siberians again into fury fighting, but today they are whipped and cowed.

Japan to Evacuate?

TOKIO, May 5.—[Delayed.]—Negotiations between Japan and the Vladivostok Russian government for a buffer state in Siberia, as a preliminary to the complete withdrawal of Japanese troops in that region, were reported by Viscount Uchida, Japanese foreign minister, to be proceeding satisfactorily, according to the newspapers today.

GERMANS YEARN TO REPAIR HARM DONE BY CANNON

But Ask "Where Shall We Begin Work?"

BY PARKE BROWN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[By Special Cable.]

BERLIN, May 8.—Premier Lloyd George's charge that Germany has been derelict in its duty in reference to the reconstruction of the devastated districts of France and Belgium has stirred the Berlin press to protest. They charge that the real situation either is being misrepresented or misunderstood. Because of these declarations the representative of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE submitted to the ministry of reparation a series of questions covering the history of the negotiations between Germany and France. The answer was made in writing.

The present portfolio is vacant through the appointment of Gessler as the successor of Noske and will not be filled until after the election in June, but the men who built up the extensive organization, which has been ready to work for several months, charge that if Germany has not sent an army of workmen into northern France, the fault is not Germany's but rests squarely on France.

France's "Silent Refusal."

It is asserted that after substantial progress was made in the preliminaries to the big task, France at least tacitly indicated that it did not want Germany's assistance.

In reply to the question as to whether Germany disregarded the responsibilities of the reconstruction problem, the statement said:

"Germany has done its full part to find a practical solution of the problem of cooperation by German contractors and workmen in rebuilding the destroyed territories.

"It is admitted that Germany's peace delegation took the initiative in the matter.

"After peace was signed, the negotiations continued for several months between German and French representatives. Finally several trips by German exports were arranged.

Want Specified Zone.

"An agreement was reached by the German government with German workmen to take charge of a specific part of the work. The French promised to send notice of the territory to be allotted, but this notice never was given. Reiterated efforts by the German government have failed to bring any further statement from the French.

"This is as far as things went. If German workmen have not yet been sent to northern France, if on the contrary the whole question seems at a standstill, no responsibility should rest on the German government."

PAYING DEBTS, TEUTONS SAY.

BERLIN, May 8.—[By the Associated Press.]—An officially inspired statement regarding contributions already made by Germany to the enteute, published in the Tageblatt, apparently indicates the line the German representatives will adopt at the Spa conference.

The Sarre coal mines, says the statement, represent at least 1,000,000,000 marks; state property in the ceded territories, 7,000,000,000; material for the work of restoration, animals, machinery, dyes, coal, German cables etc., 2,500,000,000; German merchant shipping, 8,250,000,000.

The list also mentions the amounts derived from the liquidation of German concerns abroad. Austria-Hungary's, Turkey's, and Bulgaria's debts to Germany are nominally 7,000,000,000 marks. It is pointed out also that customs, dues, and taxes in the occupied territories are retained by the entente.

ARREST WIDOW, RENT CRUSADER, AS WALLINGFORD

Her New York Deals Said to Be $350,000.

New York, May 8.—[Special.]—The arrest today of Mrs. Alice Cavanaugh, a widow and called a self-appointed champion of Bronx rent payers, on a charge of grand larceny disclosed a remarkable series of transactions. They are said to involve $500,000 to $350,000, collected from Bronx tenants for payment to landlords upon the settlement of rent disputes.

Mrs. Cavanaugh formerly was active unofficially with the mayor's committee on rent profiteering.

Landlord Her Accuser.

The charge against her is brought by Benjamin Ehrlich, 615 Lenox avenue, landlord of an apartment house at 970 Prospect avenue, from whose tenants Mrs. Cavanaugh is alleged to have collected $3,191. Of this she is said to have paid $497 to the landlord.

Mrs. Cavanaugh has told several persons that she is about to be married to a wealthy steel manufacturer, her girlhood sweetheart, and that the marriage would settle her financial difficulties.

Address Proves Wrong.

She gave her age to Magistrate George W. Simpson in Morrisania court as 44 years and her address as 785 Forrest avenue. At that address, however, it was denied that she lived there.

The magistrate held her in $1,000 bail for a hearing Monday. She entered a plea of not guilty, and bail was furnished by James Monaghan, deputy clerk of the Second District Municipal court, where Mrs. Cavanaugh has held many rent hearings.

In $2,500,000 Bond Robbery Inquiry

Supposed Aid of "Nicky" Arnstein Arrested in Chicago and Girl Believed to Be Wife of Paul Kastel, Still Sought in City by Police.

A. C. ECREMENT

MAUD EDNA TOOMEY.

CHICAGO ARREST IN $2,500,000 BOND ROBBERY

Supposed Aid of Nicky Arnstein Seized.

your real name is Ecrement. Isn't it?"

"Yes."

"You're wanted in Canada now, and in Buffalo."

"No, I'm not. I beat that case."

Tried as Swindler.

It might be well to explain here that Ecrement was tried in Buffalo on a charge of swindling Michael Connelly, wealthy contractor of Montreal. It was a wire tapping scheme that relieved Connelly of $125,000. The swindle was hatched in Montreal. It could be said in passing that the $2,500,000 plot of the Anstein-Cohen gang was also hatched in Montreal.

Last week the Superior court of Canada reversed the decision of the lower court, which declared Ecrement did not have to stand trial in the Connelly case. So McFarland was right when he answered Ecrement.

"No, you didn't beat that case, and you're wanted in New York, too."

Cartan handed over a telegram which informed the Chicago police that "A. C. Ecrement is wanted for negotiating stolen securities obtained from Arnstein and Cohen," and that "Assistant District Attorney Dooling and Saul S. Meyers, counsel for trustee in the Arnstein-Sullivan & Co. bankruptcy said this morning both wanted Ecrement badly."

All Telegrams Torn Up.

"I was arranging to leave for the east any way," Ecrement said, making a move as though to tear up the telegram. It seems to be his habit to tear up all telegrams received. Though his landlady said he had received about 200, the police found not one, nor any sign of one, either in the room or in his pockets.

"I was the youngest member of the Canadian parliament," said Ecrement, en route to the detective bureau, "and I've got a brother in Canada who is a priest. I left Canada after my wife died. I went to New York on some promotion business, and I lost $60,000 in a stock scheme to build a substitute for the Welland canal."

"Fancy you being bitten like that?" said McFarland. "Fancy!"

"And say, I've still got $10,000 on deposit in the Buffalo bank, as an evidence of my good faith in that Connelly matter. I've been arrested once or twice, but I'm all right. I went by a wrong name here because I wanted to shield my own name.

"Didn't want people to know I was here, either. Kastel and I were going to get busy on this canal proposition soon."

Frequented Good Hotels.

He went on to say that he spent his evenings, and much of his money, at the Blackstone, the Congress, and other first class hotels.

"By the way," he said, "did you know Mrs. Kastel is in town? Well, I heard she is. She's a daughter of A. J. Toomey, and I believe the address is 4650 Washington boulevard. She separated from Kastel in Montreal, you know. Yes, I guess I know where Kastel is. I could reach him by wire now, I suppose."

Clew to Arnstein?

The detectives are trying to connect up that Cleveland call with another telephone call from that city which was received by Louis Bleet of New York last August. It would indicate, they believe, that Arnstein and Cohen, and probably some of the other $5,000,000 securities grabbers, are in that city. The fact that Ecrement asked "Hasn't he made his escape yet?" they also regard as significant.

When the New York police and the insurance companies were trying their hardest some time ago to run down the members of the gang they got hold of Bleet.

DENIES BLACK TROOPS PREY ON GERMAN WOMEN

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[By Special Cable.]

PARIS, May 8.—Through the medium of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Premier Millerand today formally denied the German government's allegations that white women in the occupied regions are forced to submit to the attentions of the French black troops.

Following the receipt of the German charges from Berlin, the correspondent called immediately at the ministry of foreign affairs and laid the charges before the premier.

Mr. Millerand stated he was aware that the German government was launching a propaganda in America hoping to disturb the friendly Franco-American relations.

"You may state to the American people through THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE that the French government formally and categorically denies the truth of these statements," said the premier. "Secondly, you can assure the Americans there is not a single black French soldier—Senegalese—remaining in the occupied zone. All of the black troops have been withdrawn."

Regarding the German charges that white women were assaulted, it was stated that a few rare instances might have occurred, as in any community where a drunkard might molest a woman. The allegation that a woman and her daughter were forcibly dragged to a barracks was denied formally. It was pointed out that the Senegalese troops were subjected to the strictest discipline by white officers.

The foreign office draws attention to the fact that the troops called "yellow" in the German propaganda are French citizens from Algeria.

REDS CONTROL TIFLIS, CAPITAL OF NEW NATION

[Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 7.—[Delayed.]—The local bolsheviki assumed power in Tiflis, the capital of Georgia, yesterday.

The Moslem population of trans-Caucasia, which is friendly to the Turkish Nationalists, is whole heartedly behind this radical movement which Armenia, because of its geographical and ethnological position, is unable to resist. The political future of Armenia is most uncertain, despite the plans of the peace conference for a greater army.

The best authority asserts it would take 100,000 white soldiers to enforce these plans.

American relief to the Caucasus is almost at a standstill. No new supplies are going in and the interruption of transportation makes the distribution nearly impossible.

The cruiser Pittsburgh, with Vice Admiral Knapp, arrived this morning at Batum, where the American women relief workers assembled for embarkation.

TWO CHILDREN KILLED BY AUTOS WHILE AT PLAY

Rose O'Brien, aged 3, was crushed to death beneath the wheels of an automobile driven by Alex. Kemper of 3222 Emerald avenue, in front of the O'Brien home at 3625 Emerald avenue. She was playing in the street under her mother's eyes.

Michael Horath, 4 years old, of 2912 Wallace street, was killed yesterday by an automobile truck owned by Charles Seiferd, 3430 Rhodes avenue, and driven by Jacob Hillmayer, 1344 West Fifty-first street.

The boy was playing in the street.

Gilbert Luwasen, 3 years old, of Buckley, Ill., died in the Illinois Central hospital of injuries sustained when a passenger train struck his father's automobile.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF LABOR Post told the house rules committee that the judiciary committee which reported on his case had been unfair, that Immigration Commissioner Camlnetti had usurped authority, and that the department of justice had arrested aliens on the flimsiest of evidence.

SENATOR THOMAS submitted to the senate documents tending to show that E. I. Dupont de Nemours & Co., with Livinstein, Ltd., of Manchester, England, had sought to establish a worldwide monopoly of dyestuffs.

SOLDIERS' BONUS champions threaten to move in the house next week to discharge the ways and means committee from consideration of the matter and to force the issue directly to the floor of the house.

HONOR TODAY THE FRIEND WHO NEVER QUIT YOU

This Is Mother's Day; World Observes It.

A great part of the world pays tribute today to Mother, sends her flowers and a word or two of love, if she is living; puts a wreath upon her grave if she be dead.

Hundreds of preachers in Chicago will draw pictures of "the days of real sport," with mother hovering in the background; hundreds of singers will sing sentimental songs about her.

Elks Hold Ceremony.

The Chicago lodge of Elks will observe Mother's day with a celebration in Powers' theater at 3:30 o'clock. Everybody is invited.

And there will be many flowers sold. Chief of Police Garrity, however, has instructed his men to arrest persons attempting to sell flowers on the street, as no special street sales have been authorized. The chief acted on request of the Mother's Day International association in Philadelphia, which believes that flowers are too high this year.

Instituted Twelve Years Ago.

"Mothers' day" was instituted twelve years ago by Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia, some years after the death of her mother. Through her efforts the senate adopted a resolution to make the second Sunday in May "National Mother's Day." And today the United States, Canada, and parts of Europe are observing the day.

WIRES FAIL TO STOP ELOPING LAKE FORESTERS

Four frantic telegrams sent by W. F. Roberts, manager of the bond department of the Great Lakes Trust company, to "Grandpa" Stafford, failed to avert the elopement of his 17 year old daughter, Josephine F. Roberts, with Giles Edward Hiscox, 20 year old son of Mrs. Elizabeth Hiscox of Lake Forest. They were married yesterday at Millville, N. J., the home of the girl's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. D. Stafford.

Young Hiscox is a junior in Lake Forest college. His bride's parents reside in Deerpath avenue. Mr. Roberts served as a lieutenant in the navy. A few days ago Josephine went east to visit her grandparents. Then young Hiscox disappeared from college. It was not until Friday night that Mr. Roberts learned he had gone east. He suspected the youth's destination and sent four telegrams, but the only result was the following telegram he received:

"We were married this morning. On wedding trip. Very happy. Will write.
"ED AND JO."

"My daughter will not be 18 until July," said Mr. Roberts. "We didn't want them to be married because they are just a couple of kids. There would have been no objection had they waited a little longer. But we won't have the marriage annuled. They beat us to it and we'll be good sports."

ASSASSINS HARRY BRITISH SITTING ON EGYPT'S LID

CAIRO, Egypt, May 7.—The British troops in Cairo are restive under recent attempts at assasination, culminating yesterday in the murder of a lieutenat by four young Egyptians. The assassins fired at a range of a few feet.

A few days ago two British orderlies were wounded. The police recently arrested a student agitator. His confession led to the arrest of others who are believed to be directors of the so-called "vengeance gang" which is sending out Black Hand letters.

Search of houses here has resulted in the discovery of "Black Hand" documents indicating a widespread seditious conspiracy in the provinces, according to the authorities.

A number of students have been arrested in connection with the alleged plot.

It is not believed the conspirators in the provinces enjoy the confidence of the Nationalist committee, with headquarters in the capital.

time Kastel was manager for Goldberg and Heim.

He said it was "Paddy" Goldberg who called him.

"He asked me to tell Arnold Rothstein that 'Cheeks' Ginsberg is an all right fellow and a square gambler," he said. "I told Curley Bennett, and he said he told Rothstein."

But Bleet was unable to tell what the message meant and how Goldberg had found his telephone number.

Have Another Theory.

The police believed, too, that the phone message might contain some clew to the murder of Benny Binkowitz, a bank messenger who stole $178,000 and wouldn't give it to the Arnstein-Cohen gang. The call was made, they say, at about the same time the plot to slay Binkowitz was in the making—and they believe the plot was hatched in the New York headquarters of a Cleveland gambler.

Turks Are Seeking Unity to Oppose Peace Treaty

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 8.—The Turkish government is seeking reconciliation with nationalists in Anatolia and Thrace. If the overtures meet with success, the Turks will present a united front to the allies on the treaty.

The sultan has ordered published in the newspapers tomorrow telegrams received from Anatolia on his birthday. It is reported the Turkish delegates will refuse to sign the treaty.

Canada Adds $50,000,000 to Soldiers' Land Fund

Ottawa, Ont., May 8.—Parliament has approved an additional appropriation of $50,000,000 to continue the work of the Canadian soldiers' settlement board, it was announced today.

UKRAINIANS AND POLES TAKE KIEV; CONTINUE DRIVE

Moscow Admits Defeat of Soviet Armies.

LONDON, May 8.—[By the Associated Press.]—Polish and Ukrainian troops captured Kiev Thursday night, according to an official statement issued at Moscow on Friday and received here by wireless.

The text of the statement says:

"In the Kiev region during the night of May 6-7 our troops engaged superior enemy forces northwest and southwest of Kiev. Toward evening the enemy broke into the outskirts of the town, but were held up by our counter attacks. Later our troops, in accordance with orders, started to withdraw in order to the left bank of the Dnieper river.

"In the direction of Pytaloff our troops repulsed an enemy advance twenty-eight miles south of Krasny. In the direction of Igumen (east of Minsk) the enemy attempted to cross the Beresina river near Beresina village, but was driven back across the river."

Poles Claim No Victory.

WARSAW, May 8.—[By the Associated Press.]—Today's Warsaw newspapers print the Moscow wireless dispatch sent out Friday afternoon, saying the Poles have entered Kiev. No announcement to this effect, however, has been made in official quarters here. the latest communique states that Vasilkov, twenty miles south of Kiev, has been captured.

Key Positions Occupied.

Hills north and south of the city of Kiev, from which the bolshevik army was expected to defend the city were occupied by the Poles late this afternoon, it was stated. Artillery has been placed in positions commanding Kiev.

Reinforcements have reached the advanced forces of the Polish army, which is prepared to hold the ground captured should a counter attack begin after the bolsheviki gather their forces in the hills across the Dnieper river to the east of Kiev.

Red Retreat Menaced.

LONDON, May 8.—The Poles have cut the railway line twenty-five miles from Kiev, endangering the bolshevik line of retreat, it was announced today at the Ukrainian news bureau here.

$2,500 YEARLY CALLED NEED OF FAMILY OF FIVE

Washington, D. C., May 8.—A minimum of $2,500 a year is necessary for the support of an American family of five, W. Jett Lauck, consulting economist for the railroad brotherhoods, asserted today before the railway labor board.

Mr. Lauck, who yesterday charged corporate profiteers with being chiefly responsible for present living costs, presented today a demand on behalf of the railway employés for the establishment of a minimum wage throughout the industry.

He presented to the board a compilation of budgets on the cost of living, based on studies made under his supervision and by federal and state agencies.

In concluding the brotherhood spokesman requested that the board curtail its examination of wage data and proceed immediately to the determination of the question of what constitutes a living wage.

Another New State May Arise "Self-Determined"

VIENNA, May 8.—A local newspaper announces with reserve that pourparlers are to begin shortly at Rosenheim, Upper Bavaria, between representatives of Bavaria, the Tyrol, Vorarlberg, and Salzburg regarding the possibility of constituting a state out of those districts. The delegates also will discuss the economic situation in the regions they represent.

ARE THESE SHOES WORTH $60?

Girl Who Paid Tells District Attorney Clyne They're Not; Dealer Cites Cost to Him and Welcomes Quiz.

MISS MARY T. BOTTORFF WEARING 'EM.

Shoes That Skyrocket

THE $60 SHOES.

Now, down in Dallas, Tex., everything grows big exceept feet. That's the trouble.

Miss Mary Thomas Bottorff of 1655 East Fifty-fifth street didn't have any trouble getting shoes down in Dallas, but when she got to Chicago and asked for a No. 1 shoe the clerks first tried to palm off some disguised No. 2's, then confessed there weren't enough No. 1 feet in Cook county to warrant the stores carrying such a size.

"I could get oxfords," Miss Bottorff explained, "but I simply couldn't find high shoes small enough to fit me."

So she visited the store of Henry J. Pinkston at 108 North State street and purchased a pair of specially built shoes for $21. These were too big, so she took them back and had another pair made.

She Tells It to Clyne.

"My heart nearly stopped beating when he told me they would cost me $60," Miss Bottorff explained to District Attorney Clyne yesterday. "It looks to me like profiteering. I had paid $20 deposit, so there was nothing to do but pay the other $40. I had no idea the shoes would cost that much.

"Then I went back for the lasts and they wished to charge me $10. I wouldn't pay it. I went to another State street store with these shoes and was told it would make me a pair like them for $20. My brother went to the store with me to complain and they didn't even wish to give me a receipt for my $60."

District Attorney Clyne directed his assistant, Myer Linker, to ferret out for Miss Bottorff the answer to the question: "How much should a pair of hand-made shoes cost?"

Mr. Pinkston's Story.

"I could have charged her $100 for the shoes and I would not have been profiteering," said Mr. Pinkston. "As I remember it, I removed some corns and gave her some foot massages, too, but I would have to refer to my records to be sure.

"Anyway, $60 is a low price for shoes like that. We charge as much as $75 and $100. I am making a profit of only 20 per cent at $60. Last month I lost $292, my overhead was so large.

"It costs $40 a week for a shoe bottomer and a good bottomer can sew the bottoms on only three pairs of shoes a week. It cost me $12.50 for the bottoms of those shoes alone. Then there is $15 worth of leather in the uppers, and a $5 pair of supports, and a pair of $5 lasts, and $1.50 for a fitting.

Welcomes an Inquiry.

"Why, they can investigate my books any time they wish. I'll be glad to show them I could easily charge $100 for a pair of shoes like that."

"Corns!" exlaimed Miss Bottorff's sister last night. "Why, that man didn't remove anything except $60."

KRUPP "FARM" MACHINE PLANT MAKING CANNON

PARIS, May 8.—The Krupp works at Essen still are manufacturing artillery, according to advices from western Germany.

It was announced recently that the great war plant had been given over to making agricultural implements, but one inquisitive officer of the allied disarmament commission, it is now reported, has discovered that the German gun makers are secretly turning out field guns of a new and most effective type.

MRS. MOROSCO NAMES RIVAL AND CAUSES FOR SUIT

Goes Into Detail of How He Kept Up Cozy Flat.

New York, May 8.—[Special.]—Anna T. Morosco took steps against her husband today to bring under a receivership $1,000,000 worth of theater properties—including a dozen of the successes put on by him since 1915—pending the outcome of her suit to recover a one-half interest therein.

Through her attorney, she obtained an order today from Supreme Court Justice Lydon, requiring Oliver M. Morosco to show cause, on May 13, why a receiver should not be appointed. Her action looks to a dissolution of partnership.

"Squandered Her Money."

Mrs. Morosco's application sets forth that her husband "has squandered and wasted the moneys that are rightfully mine," and that "he has become interested in a woman named Selma Paley."

She further alleges Mr. Morosco "rented an apartment for her at 44 West Seventy-second street, and since September, 1918, down to a very short time ago, resided there with said Selma Paley as man and wife, and he made himself out in the lease which he signed, and to the superintendent of the house as Mr. M. A. Paley.

"The rental of said apartment was $3,300 a year. The apartment was furnished by the defendant in a sumptuous and elegant manner. The furnishings and the tapestries were of the finest, and an expensive automobile was purchased by the defendant for the exclusive use of Miss Paley."

Gave "Other Woman" Funds.

"He has opened bank accounts in various banks on Long Island and New York City for the use of Miss Paley," she relates, "and has constantly replenished said accounts with the money from the plays."

Mrs. Morosco relates that the moneys spent upon Miss Paley were taken from the profits of their joint ventures.

Mrs. Morosco appended to her complaint a copy of a contract between herself and her husband under the terms of which she is bringing suit. She gives her address as 991 Elden avenue, Los Angeles, and sets forth that her husband and she are father and mother of a 21 year old son. The contract is dated Sept. 2, 1915.

INDIANA G. O. P. CONVENTION BIG EVENT OF WEEK

Uninstructed Delegation Is Looked For.

Indiana elects thirty delegates to the Republican national convention at the state convention at Indianapolis this week. If this delegation is uninstructed, as now seems probable it will be the "unpledged and uninstructed" group of delegates will be in actual majority control of the Coliseum convention.

The Indiana convention and the Illinois state convention, at which eight delegates at large are to be chosen, are the two big events of the political week. Alabama will choose fourteen delegates and Wyoming will elect six.

Figuring in the Indiana delegates as chosen, by virtue of last Tuesday's primaries, a total of 835 delegates have been selected to the Republican national convention, out of a grand total of 984.

Few Primaries Remain.

Of the 149 remaining to be elected, 76 alone come from Pennsylvania, where there are direct primaries on May 18. Rather perfunctory primaries remain to be held in Vermont and Oregon, but for all practical political purposes, the preconvention skirmishes are over and the managers of the rival candidates have settled down to the business of handling the state delegations for their favorites.

The Indiana convention is to be interesting, if not spectacular. On the face of the primary returns, Gen. Wood won a plurality over Senator Johnson of less than 6,000. Upon that basis, the Wood managers in Indiana now demand Wood instructions from the state convention for the four delegates at large, and will fight for Wood instructions in each of the congressional districts in which Wood led. There are eight of these.

Last Minute Deal.

The opposition to this, from the Indiana political point of view, is that Wood never could have won out on a plurality had there been no coagulation of organization support upon him and a lining up of organization votes that under normal conditions would have gone to Lowden or to Harding.

The long and short of it is that the Republican chiefs in Indiana transacted last minute business before the primaries to ward off the threatened danger of Johnson securing a majority which would have tied in the Indiana delegates to his cause until he got ready to turn them loose. It would have been one of the picturesque sights of the Coliseum convention to see the Indiana Republican high guys, including the national chairman, the two senators, and other dignitaries sitting on the front benches waiting for Hiram to yank the gate and let them vote for whom they pleased.

Results During Week.

During the week just closed, Johnson took down the twenty-six California delegates, while Gen. Wood secured the sixteen Maryland representatives, Missouri elected eight delegates at large with one-half vote each, and sent up a delegation that is counted solidly for Lowden. Colorado elected twelve uninstructed delegates that are believed to stand six for Wood, five for Lowden, and one for Harding. The regular state convention was held in Mississippi, called by National Committeeman Mulvihill, and elected an uninstructed delegation. The earlier delegation is instructed for Wood.

This contest will be one of the important matters before the national committee and the committee on credentials.

The eight Utah delegates are uninstructed and largely in the hand of Senator Reed Smoot.

National Committeeman Patrick Sullivan will control the destinies of the six Wyoming delegates to be chosen this week, and the Alabama delegates, it is figured by the politicians, will be entirely friendly to Gov. Lowden.

SUFFRAGE CAMP AT BATON ROUGE

Baton Rouge, La., May 8.—Suffrage leaders moved headquarters here today to direct the preliminary fighting for ratification of the federal amendment by the legislature, which convenes Monday. Mrs. Lydia Wickliff Holmes, head of the delegation, arrived with only a suitcase.

"I won't need a trunk," she declared as she told workers already on the ground that the issue would be quickly decided. Mrs. Holmes predicted that Louisiana would be the thirty-sixth state to ratify the amendment and that action would not be delayed beyond the middle of the week.

Mrs. James Pinckard of Montgomery, Ala., president of the southern league for the rejection of the amendment, and Miss Charlotte Rowe of New York, field secretary of the National Association Opposed to Suffrage, also arrived here and took charge of the forces fighting ratification.

BRYAN TO HELP IN NEW ATTACK

New York, May 8.—[Special.]—Undismayed by their defeat at the Albany conference, anti-Tammany Democrats, headed by Samuel Seabury, former Court of Appeals judge and nominee for governor in 1916, and Mayor Lunn of Schnectady, intend to carry their fight against the unit rule to the Democratic national convention.

The aid of William J. Bryan has been enlisted, and he is expected to speak at Carnegie hall against both the unit rule and Tammany.

Vote of 5 Primary States Shows Lowden Is Second

Washington, D. C., May 8.—[Special.]—Representative Frank L. Smith of Illinois, manager of the Lowden Washington headquarters, submitted figures today to show that Gov. Lowden had made practically as good a showing as other Republican presidential aspirants in five state preferential primaries. In these five states the voters divided between Wood, Lowden and Johnson as follows:

State—	Wood.	Lowden.	Johnson.
South Dakota	31,024	26,992	26,194

STATUS OF REPUBLICAN DELEGATES

THE following table shows the standing of the leading Republican candidates for the presidency in instructed delegates. In addition to those listed in the table Senator Harding of Ohio has thirty-nine instructed delegates from his state. Senator Poindexter of Washington has fourteen instructed delegates from his and Judge Pritchard of North Carolina seventeen of his state's twenty-two delegates.

*Contests between delegates instructed for Wood and delegates that are uninstructed total thirty-five and are carried in both the Wood and the "uninstructed" columns. These are: Georgia, 17; Minnesota, 2; Mississippi, 12; Oklahoma, 2; Tennessee, 2. The remaining sixty-nine contests are between rival sets of uninstructed delegates. The fourteen uninstructed Illinois delegates are Thompson controlled and likely to go to Lowden. Wood secured a plurality in Indiana, but failed to get a majority and the delegation legally is uninstructed. The delegates will be named at the state convention Thursday.

BEVERIDGE NOT WELCOMED AS 'CHAIRMAN' HERE

Washington, D. C., May 8.—[Special.]—The harmony plan arranged several days ago to give the temporary chairmanship of the Republican national convention to Senator Lodge and the permanent chairmanship to ex-Senator Beveridge, Indiana, has been upset.

Mr. Beveridge was brought forward as a compromise when the suggestion of Senator Borah, Idaho, for the permanent chairmanship met with opposition in "Old Guard" circles. It was found, however, that Mr. Beveridge was even more obnoxious.

It was generally asserted that the final word would be spoken by Senator Johnson. The Californian, it is understood, has no objection to Beveridge, but he prefers Borah. Senator Kenyon, Iowa, also is talked of for the place.

Full Montana Returns Give Johnson Majority

Helena, Mont., May 8.—Complete official returns on the Montana primary election April 23 today gave United States Senator Johnson a majority over all his opponents. Johnson's total was 21,081. The vote for others: Wood, 6,798; Lowden, 6,492; Hoover, 5,073; Harding, 722.

SOCIALISTS TO LAUNCH DEBS IN 1920 RACE TODAY

Madison Square Garden to Be the Stage.

New York, May 8.—Eugene V. Debs, now serving ten years in the Atlanta, Ga., penitentiary for espionage, will be formally launched here tomorrow into the 1920 national political campaign as a candidate for the fifth time for the Socialist presidential nomination.

Leaders of the Socialist party at the convention here were sponsors for this statement tonight, adding that Morris Hillquit probably would announce Debs as "our one candidate" in his second convention speech, of a "keynote" nature, to be delivered at a socialist mass meeting in Madison Square garden.

Tomorrow's garden meeting is regarded as the "most important ever held" by the Socialist party of America, according to executive committeemen.

Hillquit, Seymour Stedman of Chicago, Victor Berger, unseated United States representative from Milwaukee, and Oscar Ameringer of Oklahoma City are scheduled to speak.

Cheers Wilson Attack.

Today the convention cheered Hillquit's arraignment of the administration at Washington as a betrayer of radical principles President Wilson was said to have campaigned for prior to the 1916 election, at which time, Hillquit declared, Socialist votes elected him.

In the first "keynote" address of the sessions Hillquit, as chairman of the convention for the day, predicted that the Socialist party ticket would roll up more than 2,000,000 votes in November and probably triple its membership before the year ends.

The convention opened with the singing of the "Internationale," the "Marseillaise," and the "Hymn of Free Russia." The unveiling of a life size portrait of Debs, framed in black, brought a demonstration that lasted ten minutes, and the chairman was instructed by unanimous vote to telegraph him the convention's "love and pride" for him.

Foster Longs for Next Big Strike.

Prime Minister Theodore of Queensland, Australia, addressed the convention briefly, and William Z. Foster, leader of the steel strike, also took the platform, on the convention's invitation. Both were cheered, Foster especially when he appealed for a solidarity of labor forces throughout the country.

"When we have the next big strike," he said, "I want to see the steel workers, the mine workers, the railroad men, every trade, in it."

Routine occupied most of the convention time today. It went on record in favor of the six hour workday for labor when it voted to confine its day sessions hereafter from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Night sessions will be called next Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, it was announced.

Final Nebraska Returns Add to Bryan Prestige

Lincoln, Neb., May 8.—Official election returns showed tonight that of the sixteen delegates elected to the Democratic national convention, eleven were nominated by the organization supporting W. J. Bryan for delegate-at-large. Previous returns had indicated only ten Bryan delegates had been chosen.

'SMOKE SCREEN,' HOOVER SAYS OF JOHNSON ATTACK

Asks Senator if He Has Any Plans.

Washington, D. C., May 8.—[Special.]—"Smoke screen of personal abuse" was what Herbert C. Hoover tonight called the attack made on him and his California organization by Senator Johnson's manager in that state.

The Johnson manager had resented the explanation attributed to Hoover that Hoover's defeat was due to an "amateur organization in that state," and had retorted that the Hooverites had spent upwards of $40,000 and had hired autos at $25 a day when the polls were open.

Rhetorical Battle Is On.

"The worst saturnalia of political extravagances ever conducted or exposed in Southern California," was the way the Johnson man referred to the Hoover efforts in Los Angeles county. That was what Mr. Hoover in New York tonight characterized as the "smoke screen of personal abuse."

Hoover denied that he had said he had "an amateur organization" or had feared he would "mortgage his soul," statements attributed to him in regard to California. He asked what Senator Johnson really plans to do. He said:

"The league is not, however, a matter of trivial personalities. It is an issue upon which there hangs the moral and economic well being of the whole world, from which the United States, even if we would, cannot be separated.

Asks Johnson Question.

"Will the senator state what his construction of that league is to be, and where it will differ from the league with the reservations as agreed to by the majority of the senate?

"The presidency is an office of constructive leadership. The affairs of the nation cannot be conducted by destructive criticism without alternative proposals.

"The world is drifting further and further into increasing antagonisms, increasing armament. We are faced with crushing taxation for increased military establishment.

"Is the senator prepared to give us a constructive solution of these problems? If so, what?"

NO THIRD PARTY LABOR TICKET, ALL SIGNS SHOW

Washington, D. C., May 8.—[Special.]—The American Federation of Labor nonpartisan political campaign committee interpreted today as indicating a decline of the third or labor party ticket idea a telegram received by President Gompers from Ed Anderson, secretary of the Colorado State Federation of Labor.

The telegram declares that a convention called in that state for the purpose of putting an independent ticket in the field rejected the idea and left the field clear for carrying out the American Federation of Labor nonpartisan political policy. The telegram says the "convention held by the Workers' Nonpartisan league for the purpose of independent political action voted by a large majority against a third party ticket."

"It is clear that the labor party advocates will not be a figure in the campaign," says the A. F. of L. committee. "The judgment of the workers is overwhelmingly in support of the nonpartisan political campaign conducted by the American Federation of Labor. Reports from every section of the country where labor party advocates have endeavored to put forward their impractical program prove this."

Novel Idea In City Subdividing

By Frederick H. Bartlett & Company

We have recently acquired title to an ideally located property well within the city limits and adjacent to city cars. Chicago public schools, churches, stores, banks and moving picture theater. Adjoining streets are well built up with new and attractive residences and a few flats. Ordinarily such a location would be subdivided into 30-foot building lots, but because of the low price at which we can sell the property, the greater portion of the tract will be offered to meet the popular demand for the larger size homesite, permitting gardening space in and the balance fronting on a full section line street in

BUSINESS LOTS

Only 10% down—then small payments monthly and no interest for one year

One of the greatest opportunities any man ever had to own his own home right in the city itself

The greatest fortunes in the world have been those established by investment in the land. Thus the wealth of a city is in the land-owning class of people that compose the population. Many valuable locations have been beyond the reach of salaried people until Frederick H. Bartlett & Co., through acquisition of these tracts, parceled them out in small, convenient pieces and sold them on terms and conditions every salaried man and woman could easily meet.

This property will go very fast

We believe this property will be sold out completely in a few hours after the sale opens, and suggest that you use the attached coupon for advance information, so that you may acquaint yourself with the choice selections as early as possible.

THE WETTER THE BETTER, SLOGAN OF COOK DEMS.

Warm Fight at Springfield Convention Forecast.

BY OSCAR E. HEWITT.

Springfield, Ill., May 8.—[Special.]—The Democratic state convention may not be content to be a side show of the Republicans. The Democrats have a few features they intend to stage.

Their first thought is refreshments. It is the program of the Cook county delegation to adopt a "wet" plank, the wetter the better. They favor "amending the Volstead regulation act to the end that the various states may have the right of the concurrent power which they hold with the national congress to prescribe the alcoholic content of beverages."

This federal act has said that drinks with more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol are forbidden. The Chicago Democrats want beer and light wines.

Cook County Men Wet.

To that policy all of Cook county's 394 delegates, except the six on the north shore controlled by Frank McCulloch, are committed. But there are 966 delegates entitled to sit in the convention, and 483 votes will be necessary to put the party on record.

Downstate has many bone dry admirers of Bryan. They are expected to battle state indorsement of intoxicants, and especially so since Democratic leaders in Washington have reckoned that it will be impossible this year to get a wet plank in the platform at San Francisco.

But the wets have gained confidence by the announcement of Gov. Edwards of New Jersey that he will accept the presidential nomination and by the Kentucky indorsement of Gov. Cox.

Edwards Gets Many Votes.

A petition for Gov. Edwards was filed for the Illinois Democratic primaries in April, but it was later withdrawn, and there were no names on the ballot as Democratic candidates. At that, Edwards received nearly twice as many votes as any of the other six.

While the Democrats haven't finally agreed upon their program, it has been tentatively decided that they will not insist upon observance of the unit rule by the delegates to the national convention. That is because former Gov. Dunne and former Mayor Harrison of Chicago are to be given the honor of delegates at large with John F. O'Malley and Robert M. Sweitzer.

While the old Sullivan organization is in complete control, Dunne and Harrison will be permitted to vote for any one they like at San Francisco.

Slated as Delegates.

National Committeeman from Illinois Charles Boeschenstein, Frank Quinn of Peoria, and Congressman Rainey, are the three downstate delegates at large, according to the present program. That leaves one place to be filled.

That is said to be between Mrs. George Bass of Chicago and Mrs. Howard T. Wilson of Virden. If the downstate men leaders insist that they want the place for Mrs. Wilson, it is reported that the Chicagoans will request Mrs. Bass to step aside. This contest holds the possibility of an interesting attraction.

The Democratic convention will meet at noon in the house chamber of the capitol with Ernest Hoover of Taylorville presiding. He is chairman of the Democratic state committee.

PENROSE FLY IN PENNSYLVANIA SUFFRAGE HONEY

Philadelphia, Pa., May 8.—[Special.]—As long as Senator Boies Penrose controls the state Republican organization, Pennsylvania women, although given the vote, will never receive complete political recognition, Mary Roberts Rinehart, the author, declared yesterday. She came here from Pittsburgh to attend the May day exercises at Bryn Mawr college.

"I do not believe Senator Penrose dislikes women," Mrs. Rinehart said, "but I am certain he does not understand them, does not sympathize with them, and has no confidence in them. Every bit of political recognition the women of this state will be given they will get in spite of Mr. Penrose, and possibly as a result of spirited fights with the senator."

hind my smile. He probably thought I had decided to forget. As if one could forget when one realizes that some one is merely waiting for death to marry a new love. I gave him the best years of my life.

The Death Trap Is Sprung.

"Well, last Sunday morning I noticed that my aim was particularly good. I knew the time was nearing.

"The opportunity did not present itself until yesterday at noon. He had come home for lunch. It was about 11 o'clock. I had gone into my bedroom. There was no one in the house but ourselves. I placed the revolver in my apron.

"Pretty soon he followed me into the bedroom.

"As he entered I opened fire.

"I fired the full clip—seven cartridges. I was fairly close to him and my aim was good.

"He dropped instantly. He did not utter a word. Only he seemed to give an odd little laugh as he fell.

"I went out and notified the neighbors. It was the only way out."

Taken to Hospital.

Mrs. Frederichs was kept in the city jail until a late hour last night. She had a number of severe hemorrhages and finally was removed to the Elgin State hospital, to be under constant medical treatment.

"She never will go to trial," said her physician, Dr. H. H. Pillinger of Elgin. "She cannot live more than two months."

A batch of correspondence, said to have been the same as that referred to by Mrs. Friederichs, disappeared mysteriously yesterday. It had been taken to the office of Chief of Police D. F. Gahan. He said he didn't have it. Assistant State's Attorney Roy Phillips was reported to have examined the correspondence, but he denied having done so.

A copy of the letter said to have been received by Mrs. Friederichs at Crown Point was examined by a reporter yesterday. It was written on the stationery of Attorney Frank Shopen, who also is municipal judge of Elgin, and informed her in substance that "I'm through with you. Our marriage at Denver was illegal." It then asked her to agree to sign a property settlement.

Mr. Friederichs was 52 years old. His estate is estimated at $75,000. The second marriage had been childless. By his first marriage there had been three children — Mrs. Lulu Thoma and Mrs. Esther Linton, both of Indiana Harbor, and Mrs. Tillie Dimmock of Whiting.

T. B. Earle was listed as having contributed $1 to THE TRIBUNE memorial fund to decorate the soldiers' graves in France. The amount should have been $5.

ANOTHER UNIT OF THE FIGHTING POLES IS HOME

Another unit of Chicago's Polish battalion returned home yesterday and was accorded a warm welcome by sweethearts, families, and friends. There were 334 of them and they were sunburned, and tanned, and tired.

No two wore the same uniforms. Some were garbed in the French uniforms, some in U. S. khaki, some in British olive drab, and some in civilian clothes. They had seen two years' service on every front.

Among those in the detachment were John Maciaszek, 1808 Huron street; Lieut. Stanley Dembrowski, 1500 West Sixteenth street; Sergt. W. T. Soyda, 1112 Lincoln street. Miss A. Emily Napieralski, president of the Polish Women's alliance, who recently returned from Warsaw, was outspoken in her praise of Polish soldiers' fighting qualities.

DEMOCRATS SEE 558 SURE VOTES FOR WET PLANK

Only 532 Needed to Rule at Frisco.

If the plans of Illinois Democratic leaders are realized at the San Francisco convention, the wet and dry issue will not be smothered by the Bryan followers in the committee of resolutions, as many astute prophets have predicted, but will be carried to the floor of the convention, forming the basis for a lively forensic wrangle, at least.

These Illinois wets, in common with Democrats of similar persuasion in many other states, think that in the adoption of a liberal plank in the Democratic platform, declaring for beer and light wine, that the party has the best chance to garner the votes that have slipped away on the league of nations, Irish, and other questions.

Can Substitute Report.

The lineup in the convention, as they see it, carries hope that they will be able to reject the majority report of the committee on resolutions, which will be admittedly dry, and make a good fight for the adoption of a minority wet report. In order to adopt such a report, they will need 532 votes in the convention.

The wet preference in the delegations is figured as follows:

California	20	Nevada	30
Connecticut	14	Nebraska	12
Colorado	13	New Jersey	28
Illinois	58	New York	90
Indiana	30	Ohio	48
Iowa	26	Pennsylvania	50
Maryland	16	Wisconsin	26
Masachusetts	36
Michigan	30	Total	558
Minnesota	24

The figures given are based on "sure votes" and may be increased under the unit rule, which obtains in many of the states, such as Illinois and New York. Under this the majority vote of the delegation decides how the entire vote is to be cast.

State Convention to Act.

An effort probably will be made at the Democratic state convention tomorrow to adopt a liberal plank. The Chicago delegates want this to help out their county ticket next fall. This effort would be to ask for an amendment to the Volstead act which would give the different states the right to say where beer and light wines should be sold.

YANKS INVEST 25 MILLION MARKS IN GERMAN FIRM

BERLIN, May 8.—Dr. Walter Rathenau, president of the German General Electric company, surprised the shareholders today by announcing that a group of prominent American financiers had purchased a 25,000,000 mark block of new shares, part of the 100,000,000 increase in the capital stock. Rathenau said negotiations were initiated several months ago.

The Americans will pay on the basis of the prevailing exchange. They voluntarily restricted the voting power of their stock and agreed that the block shall remain intact, under the surveillance of a committee of three, two of whom will be Germans selected by the general electors and the third an American.

Dr. Rathenau told the shareholders that the company was amply supplied with raw materials and that the employés were showing an inclination to work uninterruptedly.

Italian Grain Ship Seized by the D'Annunzio Navy

TRIESTE, May 8.—Capt. Gabriele d'Annunzio today captured the Italian steamship, Baro Fejervary, bound from Trieste to Catania with a cargo of grain. He sent two anti-submarine craft to make the capture, which occurred in Quarnero bay. The captain of the ship was ordered to proceed to Fiume.

Propaganda by Plane.

ROME, May 7.—[By the Associated Press.]—Capt. Gabriele d'Annunzio was a passenger in an airplane which flew from Fiume to Ancona and scattered manifestoes over the latter city today, according to advices received here. The machine returned to Fiume without landing.

When a Fairy Wand Waved

Two of the Dancing Sprites Who Appeared in Winnetka School Program for Gold Star Memorial.

LOUISE AND MARGARET HUBSCH.

A fairy wand was passed over the Skokie school in Winnetka yesterday afternoon. The Parent-Teachers' association had turned the assembly room into an English tea room and parents and teachers sat at tables and sipped tea while on the stage the children danced, sang, recited poems, and did juvenile character acting.

The first scene showed the old back yard with the swing. Mildred Martin was swinging and Leonard Happ sat in the branches of a tree and sang little love songs.

Then came Larned Blatchford, who sang of foreign lands. He was followed by a quartet. Robert Morris, Betty Edmonds, Phillip Schwabacher, and Virginia Miller represented respectively an Indian, an Eskimo, a Turk, and a Japanese.

Then there were marching songs, forest dances, and verses. "The Duty of Children," was read by Alan Stults. Little Jane Lyons read "The Land of Counterpane," and "The Land of Nod." Martha Etzbach sang. Then more dances and more singing. It was Stevenson's Garden of Verses.

Mrs. Carleton W. Washburne acted as general chairman. The entertainment was given to raise funds for the gold star memorial, which is to be placed in the Horace Mann school.

BUTLER OFFERS WINE, BEER, FOR AMERICAN ILLS

Names Them with 16 G. O. P. Pills.

New York, May 8.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university and candidate for the Republical presidential nomination, issued tonight a statement of his principles. They are seventeen points and include an o. k. on light wines and beers. The substance of them follows:

1—Substitute cooperation with congress for presidential dictation.
2—Instead of planning new taxes, effect rigid governmental economy.
3—Enact a budget law, requiring heads of government departments to answer house and senate questions.
4—Begin payment of the war debt.
5—Stop monopoly, unfair practices, and profiteering.
6—Restore railroad credit; treat all transportation agencies as a unit; combat government ownership and operation.
7—Larger share of profits for labor.
8—Permit no group to starve the public or paralyze it in an industrial controversy; have industrial courts.
9—Protect the natural resources; try to keep young people on the farms.
10—Promote health, housing, and educational reforms.
11—Provide an American merchant marine.
12—Keep saloons dead, kill Volstead act; permit domestic use of beers and light wines.
13—Hold local officials responsible for lynching and mob rule.
14—Draw the men and women of the south to the Republican party.
15—Preventing those not members of a political party from taking part in its primaries.
16—Reserve force for extreme cases in which the public is put in danger.
17—Establish an international court of justice.

Van Concern Fined $75 for Excessive Charges

The first case against moving van concerns accused of charging excessive rates to movers was won by the city yesterday when Judge Wells found the Joyce Brothers Storage and Van company of 1109 West Sixty-third street, guilty. A fine of $75 and costs was assessed by the court.

BAD TEACHING AT WEST POINT, DR. ELIOT SAYS

War Showed Weakness, He Tells Ruckman.

Boston, Mass., May 8.—The United States Military academy was criticized today by Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, in a letter to Brig. Gen. John W. Ruckman, U. S. A., commander of the north Atlantic coast artillery district. Gen. Ruckman had written Dr. Eliot to ascertain whether certain comments on West Point teaching, which he was reported as having made in an address before the Harvard Teachers' association, were correct.

In the published report of his remarks, Dr. Eliot was quoted as saying: "I hope we shall never take our example for public school administration from West Point. . . . This was shown by the inefficiency and failure of its graduates in the war."

Dr. Eliot replied to Gen. Ruckman that the quotation, while not in his exact words, was substantially correct. He continued:

"No school or college should have a completely prescribed curriculum, or have its teaching done almost exclusively by recent graduates of the same school or college who are not teachers and who serve for short terms.

"West Point, so far as its teachers are concerned," the letter continued, "breeds in and in, a very bad practice for any educational institution.

"The graduates of West Point, during the world war, both in the field and in business offices, did not escape—with few exceptions—from the methods which they had been taught and drilled in during peace. The methods of fighting were in the main new, and the methods of supply and accounting ought to have been new. The red tape methods prescribed to the American regular army in peace times and the acquired habit among American regular army officers of 'passing the buck' were mischievous all through the actual fighting and remain a serious impediment to the efficiency of the war department to this day."

TRIBUNE FUND TO HONOR DEAD GROWS BY $543

Still More Needed for Tribute to Heroes.

The TRIBUNE fund for decorating the soldiers' graves in France Memorial day was increased by $543 yesterday, bringing the total to $3,124. The money is beginning to come from towns, associations, employé groups, and various organizations. Those who have left their boys forever on the other side of the ocean still continue to form the majority of contributors. They cannot make a sufficient fund. Others must continue to come forward.

Wonders at Coldness.

"This is one of the most beautiful things THE TRIBUNE has started for many a month," writes A. Flesham, vice president of the American Loose Leaf Manufacturing company. "It is beyond me why the patriotic folk of Chicago do not respond more freely."

W. D. White of Waukegan got up a family fund of $20. This was in honor of Lieut. Homer Walston Dahringer, aerial observer, and his pilot, Lieut. William Cowart, who were killed during the St. Mihiel drive. He sent an excerpt from Lieut. Dahringer's last letter, which was to be mailed if he failed to return from the mission in which he lost his life.

"Tomorrow's work is rather a culmination of all my efforts," he wrote. "We are going over the top together with the infantry. I am scheduled to fly as infantry liasion plane. It is the worst kind of work and everything rests with God. I have no regrets. I am doing my chosen work in the war and you may know that I gave my all and my best to my country."

After Two Weeks of Reducing

MAY TAKE BONUS OFF COMMITTEE HANDS IN HOUSE

Washington, D. C., May 8.—[Special.]—Soldier bonus advocates in the house may attempt Monday to take this legislation from the jurisdiction of the ways and means committee and throw it directly into the house.

This plan is contemplated in view of the fact that it is now apparent the committee cannot agree on the form of the legislation and on the character of new taxes to be laid to raise the revenue.

Republican members of the ways and means committee met today and soon ascertained they were as far apart as ever both as to the features of the bonus and as to the kind of new taxes to be levied.

Plans discussed informally included reduction of the cash bonus to $1 a day and the placing of a limit of $500 on the total amount any former service man should draw. It was suggested also that the amount to be set aside for farm and home aid for service men should be reduced from $300,000,000 to $100,000,000.

It was proposed that the taxation plan suggested in the Fordney bill which was rejected at the Republican caucus should be changed by the elimination of the sales tax, a reduction in the suggested increases on the income taxes, and the spreading over three years instead of two years of all the taxes planned to raise the revenues for the bonus. Under this spread of taxes the proposed taxes on stock exchange transactions, real estate sales increased taxes on tobacco would be carried for three years without reduction.

E. Chicago Blocks Plan for Calumet Drainage Board

Hammond, Ind., May 8.—[Special.]—Advocacy of establishment of a sanitary district for the Calumet region cities received a setback in Indiana Harbor last night when at a mass meeting of city councils and commercial bodies of Hammond, East Chicago, Indiana Harbor and Whiting, East Chicago officials declared that the city proposed to have its own sewage disposal plant and declined to share in a joint sanitary district unless the four cities were amalgamated.

FAT MEN LOSE 8 POUNDS EACH IN TWO WEEKS

Average Waistline Reduction 3 Inches.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I hate to be bragging continually about my used to be fat protégés, but I ask you on reading over the figures in the next column if you do not think I am entitled to one loud hooray for them.

In two weeks' time they've shed a total of 190¾ pounds, or an average of eight pounds per man. And of the class that began work at the Wallace System of Physical Culture on April 27 there are twenty-four still in the running, while of the opposing class of twenty-five of Dr. John Dill Robertson's there are only sixteen active members left. When weighed last Thursday these sixteen women were found to have lost a total of 101¼ pounds, or an average of 6 1-3 pounds each. Which argues to date in favor of my male squad.

Waist Lines Shrink.

I want you to note the waist line reduction. There's going to be a boom in the tailoring business unless my men have a few left over suits from the days when they were perfect thirty-sixes. Seventy-two inches have disappeared from their respective waist lines, or an average of three inches apiece.

You never saw a more enthusiastic gathering than that of these men minus their 190 odd pounds.

"I didn't believe it could have been done," said Mr. Rosenbloom. "You remember how skeptical I was when I entered. I thought you were putting something over," he confessed. "I'm more surprised than any other man in the class that such reductions could have been accomplished."

"We all feel so darn well," says Bill Nye. "I never thought a few extra pounds shifted off your shoulders could make such a difference."

Praise for Class.

"They deserve all the credit that is coming to them," says Mr. Wallace of the men "I never saw a class to stick like they have. If one man shows any inclination to laziness, he gets the life bawled out of him by the rest, so there is no chance of cheating. And it just goes to prove what daily, consistent effort does. A person left to exercise alone will find a thousand excuses to evade it, but once you get the spirit of competition and fun, as these men have it, you have the fat on the run and going fast."

About the walk today.

Of course, I take it you are all pedicured and everything and will be on the job at 12 noon at Woods theater to join in the "pie-rade."

Orders for Squad.

My men of the reducing squad—you be at THE TRIBUNE at 11:30. We will go from there to the theater and be there in time to start Dr. Robertson's squad on their way—and if they're not too slow for us, we'll finish with them, eh?

Dr. Robertson's talk is on "Nutrition," and is scheduled for 11 a. m. today. He will tell you a few things about what you should eat and what you should not if you would be of the Venus-Adonis Beauty company. It will be worth hearing.

Immediately after the end of his talk the great walkfest will be put on.

REBEL CHIEFTAIN TALKS TO TROOPS; FLEES GERMANY

BERLIN, May 8.—Gen. Erhardt, commander of the Baltic brigade, which recently entered Berlin, has fled the country after addressing his soldiers. He declared that he was unwilling to surrender and did not want to subject his brigade to fighting if the government attempted to take him by force. He hoped to rejoin his brigade if fighting started again in Germany.

Gas Workers' 10% Raise Is Confirmed for Year

The wage controversy of the gas house workers' union has been settled.

William B. Munhal, master in chancery, agreed on by officials of the company and union representatives as arbiter when a strike was threatened, announced yesterday that the 10 per cent increase granted to the workers would be sustained, but that their demands for time and a half for overtime, except on certain holidays, would be refused. He said the matter of a closed shop would receive "further consideration."

The terms reached by both sides March 16, when the provisional 10 per cent increase was granted, specify that employés and employer must abide by Mr. Munhall's decision until May 1, 1921, when new arrangements may be made.

The increase is to be retroactive from Dec. 1, 1919. The men are to receive time and a half pay on New Year's day, July 4, Labor day, Thanksgiving day, and Christmas.

TRIBUNE PRIZES GO TO MEN WHO FOUGHT HARRIGAN

Patrolman and Sergeant Still in Hospital.

In Alexian Brothers hospital are the two men who top the police department honor roll for April—Patrolman Frank J. Weimer and Desk Sergeant George A. Gierman of Town Hall station, wounded in the revolver battle in which James J. Harrigan, burglar king, was killed.

THE TRIBUNE monthly hero award will go to them. Because of the exceptional bravery and devotion to duty displayed by both, the award has been doubled and each will receive $100.

The dramatic circumstances in which they and brother officers distinguished themselves are set forth with succinct simplicity by Capt. John D. McCarthy in his monthly report to Chief Garrity.

McCarthy Tells Story.

Capt. McCarthy reports:

"About 8:30 p. m., April 25, 1920, Patrolman Frank J. Weimer saw a man, whose name it later developed was James J. Harrigan, emerging from between two apartment buildings on Buena avenue, whose explanation of his presence in that vicinity was very plausible; so bringing him to the station, he [the officer] started to make a thorough search of the man, when he suddenly pulled a .45 caliber automatic army revolver and immediately started shooting at the officer, as well as at Sergeant George A. Gierman and Operator Martin P. Schroeder, Harrigan in the meantime backing toward the front door. Weimer started in pursuit and as he got to the steps leading down to the outer door, a bullet hit and went clear through the fleshy part of his right thigh, notwithstanding which, he kept up the pursuit, joined by Sergeant Gierman.

Second Officer Wounded.

"After shooting Weimer, Harrigan ran west between the station house and the old building north of it, pursued by Sergt. Gierman, Weimer going north of the old building to intercept the fugitive, should he seek to escape in that way. Meantime, Harrigan had got to a vacant space in the rear of the old building, where, in the darkness he could not be seen by the officers until he again opened fire on them. They immediately returned the fire, until after a number of shots had been exchanged, a bullet from Harrigan's revolver struck and fractured Sergt. Gierman's knee cap, rendering him helpless. Another of his bullets would undoubtedly have found its mark in Officer Weimar were its course not fortunately diverted by a tin tobacco box.

"At this juncture Patrolman John O'Byrne, ambulance chauffeur, appeared on the scene and opened fire in the direction of Harrigan, and after he had fired four shots and Officer Weimer two more shots additional to those he had already fired, no more shots came from Harrigan's direction and a moment afterwards he was found unconscious, a bullet from one of the officers' revolvers going through his head.

Credit Is Given.

"The officers are not definitely agreed as to whether it was Weimer or O'Byrne who shot Harrigan, but irrespective of which of them fired the shot which eventually resulted in his death, the conduct of all three is deserving of high commendation, for the pluck and bravery displayed by them in unflinchingly facing and holding their ground under Harrigan's murderous fire. To Weimer and Sergeant Gierman the most credit is undoubtedly due; Weimer, who picked the man up and brought him to the station in the first place, pursuing him and holding his ground under fire, though already wounded, and Gierman for pursuing him and holding his ground under fire, even after he was wounded. O'Byrne also displayed his pluck after the shooting had commenced, and never flinching until Harrigan's fire was silenced."

Fireman Makes Rescue.

There were many other instances of distinguished service, including that of a fireman. Capt. Thomas W. Anderson of engine company No. 1, 333 South Wells street, reported that "while working at a fire April 6 at 170 West Randolph street, James Rice rescued a colored man whose name is Mr. Taylor, 78 years old.

Chief of Detectives James L. Mooney recommends creditable mention for Lieut. John Loftus and Patrolmen William Murphy, Walter Healy, Daniel Gilbert and William Beehan, of the burglary squad, for the arrest of Albert Harvey, Fred Rogers, Florence Harvey, Kate Rogers and John Remm.

Other Acts of Bravery.

Other exceptional bravery citations are:

Detective Sergeant Maurice J. O'Connell of Fiftieth street station. Ordered by an armed man to hold up his hands, he drew his revolver and killed him.

Patrolmen Alexander Langford, Lawrence McElligott and Edward G. Wilcox of Fillmore station are cited by Capt. James Gleason for arresting five notorious characters after revolver battles.

Detective Sergeant Axel O. Jensen of the bureau jumped off a street car and arrested John Floss, who was identified as having just held up a cafe at 1244 North Clark street.

9,000 CATHOLIC WOMEN'S CLUBS TO MERGE WORK

Plans to correlate the activities of 9,000 Catholic women's organizations, with a membership of 1,000,000, were made yesterday at a meeting of the executive board of the National Welfare Council of Catholic Women.

The program of the council includes the launching of a national plan for housing working women, the establishment and maintenance of schools for the training of social workers, a campaign for a better type of motion pictures, and the extension of community house work.

Miss Agnes G. Regan of San Francisco, executive secretary, will open offices in Washington, D. C., where headquarters already have been established.

'NURSERY BILL' OF WILSON'S LEAGUE CHILD, $1,250,000

U. S. Share of Cost Is $81,000.

Washington, D. C., May 8.—The budget of expenses of the league of nations from its organization up to July 1 will total approximately $1,250,000. The figures will be presented to the league council at its Rome meeting. This sum includes both direct and indirect expenditures, the latter covering preliminary costs of numerous commissions and other bodies, and the total represents the complete organization period of the league machinery.

Salaries represent the heaviest items in direct expenditures, totaling $485,000. The international labor office, costing $200,000, ranks first among indirect costs. The commission of inquiry to Russia is second with $105,000. Included in the labor office expenditure is $80,000 to pay the league's share of the expenses of the Washington labor conference.

America to Get Bill.

The council also will have before it a computation of the allocation of this expenditure to the member states in conformity with rules of the Universal Postal union, as laid down in the covenant. It will be pointed out, however, that, due to changes in territorial lines made by the war since the postal union was organized, a fairer method of distribution of expenses probably will have to be found.

On the strict application of the postal union plan, eleven countries including the United States would be rated as first class and liable to an assessment of twenty-five units. In dealing with a budget of $1,000,000 this would approximate $81,000 for each state of this class, while for the states of the lowest of seventh class, liable for one unit, the expense would be something like $3,000.

Seek Monetary Unit.

Still another financial matter with which the council must deal is that of determining the monetary unit in which future league budgets shall be computed. The suggested forms include the Swiss paper franc, the gold mark or the silver mark, or possibly a special league monetary unit. This phase of the financial problem, however, is expected to be dealt with by the Brussels financial conference before the league takes final action.

WORLD CHAMPIONS CITY SLIPS DOWN TO CLASS C LEAGUE

Washington, D. C., May 8.—Figures issued by the bureau of census today showed that Newark, N. J., with a population of 415,609, has outstripped Cincinnati, which ranked it in the last census. Cincinnati's population, recently announced, is 401,158.

Newark ranked as the fourteenth city in 1910, with a population of 347,469, an increase of 101,399 over its 1900 population. Washington, sixteenth city ten years ago, now outranks both Cincinnati and Newark, with a population of 437,414. The figures issued today follow:

	Population.	Increase.	Pct.

MONOPOLY PACT IN DYES ALLEGED ON SENATE FLOOR

Thomas Reads Alleged Du Pont Contract.

Washington, D. C., May 8.—[Special.]—The dyestuffs tariff bill was shoved higher on the rocks today when Senator Thomas of Colorado read to the senate an alleged contract drawn up by E. I. Dupont de Nemours & Co. with Levinstein, Ltd., of Manchester, England, for the establishment of what Senator Thomas described as a world-wide dyestuffs monopoly.

Senator Thomas read a Boston dispatch describing a suit brought for alleged breach of contract by Edgar Levinstein of Nahant, Mass., against E. I. Dupont de Nemours & Co. for $1,000,000. The petition charged that the Dupont company in 1916 bought from Levinstein of Manchester, England, the exclusive right to manufacture and sell the Levinstein dyes in America, Edgar Levinstein to be continued as the selling agent in the United States.

The contract governing the transaction was set forth, and Senator Thomas said it was, in effect, an agreement to pool patents, secret processes, and inventions, with the purpose to create a world-wide monopoly of dyestuffs jointly controlled by Levinstein and the Duponts.

Dividing Up the World.

"It distributes the world between the two branches of this monopoly," declared Senator Thomas. He called attention to a provision making a distribution of territory. These were:

"Levinsteins shall have exclusive right for the use, manufacture, and sale under its own and the Duponts' patented inventions and secret processes throughout Great Britain, Ireland, India, and all British possessions, except Canada, France, Italy, Spain, Belgium, Holland, Portugal, Switzerland, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden.

"The Dupont company shall have exclusive right throughout the United States and all its possessions, present and future, Mexico, and Central and South America.

Moses Issues Statement.

Senator Moses of New Hampshire, southern manager of Gen. Wood's presidential campaign, issued a statement today declaring he desired "the fullest protection to the dye industry, but wishes it to cover the textile and associated interests as well."

Chinese in San Francisco Burn Japanese Products

San Francisco, Cal., May 8.—Preceded by a parade in Chinatown, in which hundreds of Chinese participated, a huge bonfire was made last night of thousands of dollars' worth of Japanese goods. The merchants carted the Japanese goods, including silks and other finery, from their stores to the street, and the torch was applied.

Hester Wentworth Bride of Galena, Ill., Man

Miss Hester Wentworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wentworth of 2636 Lake View avenue, was married last night to Warren Crawford, son of Thomas Warren Crawford of Galena, Ill. The ceremony took place at Trinity Episcopal church, and was followed by a reception at the residence of the bride's parents.

Aliens Mistreated, He Tells Committee.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 8.—[Special.]—That his guilt was prejudged, exculpating evidence suppressed, and that a propaganda of newspaper persecution was directed against him, were some of the charges made today before the house rules committee by Louis F. Post, assistant secretary of labor. Post was defending his release of alleged anarchists, and his blocking of deportations against the Hoch resolution calling for his impeachment. On the action of the rules committee will depend whether he shall go to the house judiciary committee for an impeachment investigation preliminary to a report and possibly an impeachment trial.

"Committee Report Unfair."

Declaring the house immigration committee's report on his case had been unfair, Post added:

"There has been a withholding of evidence and the putting into the record of extraneous matter which is unfair to me and unfair to the rules committee."

He asserted that the immigration committee obtained from the immigration bureau of the department of labor memoranda which have no legal status. He scored Commissioner General of Immigration Caminetti for permitting the house immigration committee to have the memoranda.

"My contention is that this whole matter has been prejudged for newspaper use within the last six weeks," declared the secretary.

Defends Reduction of Bail.

Post defended his reduction of the bail of aliens held on deportation charges on the ground that the constitution forbids exorbitant bail.

"In many cases the bail demanded was exorbitant and was not for any legitimate purpose of bail, but to keep the aliens under arrest and behind the bars, whether guilty or not," he declared.

"The evidence on which the department of justice arrested aliens was, in some cases, so thin," he said, "that if I am to be condemned for anything it should be for deporting an alien on such evidence."

Innocent Aliens Jailed.

He condemned arrest on what is termed "information and belief," and charged that Commissioner Caminetti allowed innocent aliens to remain in prison for long periods. "He assumed powers that are lodged solely with the secretary of labor," Post said. "His recommendations were of no value to me, and were without authority."

OVER THE WORLD'S RIM.

The little service flags are furled, but the red f those stars will spread across your brow in a carlet, shaming wave if the lonely ghosts that over above the burial grounds of France find one rave forgotten on Memorial day.

A few short months ago you scanned the names rom the battlefields, your breath pent and your eart throbbing until your creeping finger found hat death and harm had spared your boy once nore. But you surely realize that every strange ame you passed in that daily pilgrimage of horror ecame blurred when some other man or mother suddenly crumpled and laid a tear-wet face upon it.

When naked-breasted valor and smiling lips faced he machine guns and overcame the cruel handi- aps our murderous pacifists burdened our soldiers with, and the war came to an end, you thanked the God that created you that He had not taken your loved one. Perhaps you even breathed a pitying prayer for those whose brave little crimson stars had turned to gold.

Did you erase then from the tablets of your memory, and have you forgotten now the chill of fear that clutched your throat when your fingers fumbled across those printed rosaries of blood and pain called Casualty Lists? Does the money you poured out so lavishly to win the war—even while fully suspecting and half knowing that it would go to line the pockets of Judases who grafted during America's hour in Gethsemane—does that represent all your contribution to our country's safety and honor? Haven't you even one dollar left to invest in gratitude and self-respect, one ten cent piece to pay for a single rose to place above the mound where sleeps some mother's stricken lad?

Men, as you glance into your mirror this morning, women, as you stand before your looking glass today—ask yourselves this question: Shall the grave of one American boy lack its simple floral tribute in the dawn of this Memorial day?

THE NEW MILITARISM.

In an interview given at Moscow to John Clayton of THE TRIBUNE news service Leon Trotzky gives us a picture of communism as it works out in reality. The picture offers a significant contrast to the ideal design of a socialistic community presented by theorists. We commend the comparison to our parlor pinks and sentimental radicals.

Trotzky says that in organizing communist society "militarizing economic life" must be resorted to. "This militarization," he explains, "is all the more necessary because we have undertaken the mobilization of peasantry on a large scale for the solving of problems demanding application for a large number of people."

This is a mild phrase, "mobilization of the peasantry," but what does it mean? It means that the farming masses of Russia are molded into a working army by force and in this disciplined and compact form are used as their rulers will and direct.

But Trotzky's "militarization of economic life" does not stop with the peasant. "Some comrades," he goes on to remark, "might say that while we may have recourse to militarization when applying to labor (common) and mobilized peasants, such militarization is not justified when dealing with skilled labor because there are the trade unions to organize." But he holds that the military structure is superior and adds this significant statement: "In a carefully planned organization like ours labor ought to be transferred from one front to another and commanded exactly as soldiers are."

No autocracy in modern or ancient times has conceived, much less executed, such mastery of a whole people's energies and individual freedom. The German system of militarization for war is a pale shadow of autocracy against this tremendous domination. The "militarism" our pacifists are prating about—that is, obligatory training for a few months or even, as in France, for two years, and obligatory service in case of war—is a joke in comparison. Wars, after all, do not occur oftener than once or twice in a generation. But the communist autocracy takes over the daily life of all the Russians, puts the individual in the ranks for a perpetual daily servitude to the will of his rulers. All life is a mobilization and men are "transferrred from one front to another and commanded exactly as soldiers are."

How would the American skilled mechanic or the American farmer or the American day laborer like this system? How would they like being mobilized and under command "exactly as soldiers are," being dispatched to dig a canal in the tropics, to drain the swamps of the lower Mississippi, to mine the coal of Alaska? "Citizen-Comrade Federal No. 3,417,802 will report May 15th, at 6 a. m., with tools, at mobilization station No. 11,708 under mobilization order 702 for service in the Death Valley irrigation project. By order of Chief of Staff, Irrigation division, Economic army, Proletarian Republic of America," etc., etc.

Pleasant thought for Americans. We do not know that such a system is not necessary to save Russia at this stage of her development. It is clear the Russians cannot get along without despotism. They cast down the inefficient despotism of the czardom, but they were not ready for the life of freemen, so a new despotism was set up by the forces of life which always compel order to emerge from the worst chaos. The new despotism is very likely better for Russia than the old. It is more intelligent, more efficient, more powerful. But it is despotism.

We speak of Russia because it is in Russia the tremendous demonstration is going on, but the lesson applies to the whole Socialist experiment. When Lenin and Trotzky took over the revolution they undoubtedly expected, as all Socialist theorists do, that men would discipline themselves and work for the common good. It did not turn out that way. It never will while the nature of man is what it is and has been since time began. The Russian masses, released from the tyranny of the old system and deprived of the incentive of private profit, lost all discipline and ceased to work. Chaos ensued until Lenin and Trotzky were forced to adopt measures of coercion. The czar had his Cossacks and his courts. Lenin and Trotzky formed the Red guard. There was a change of names and personalities. Let us say also a change in purpose and ideals. But the method was identical. Force was a necessity and force was organized and today rules the people of Russia as they never have been ruled before.

The Socialist state must always do this. Remove the private incentive, the force of private need or private ambition, and collective force must be used. The Socialist state can never be anything but a despotism, reaching deeper into private life, controlling more of men's activities than any other form of organization known yet to mankind. It may provide material security and provision for the masses of men more uniformly than individualist society. But it can only do so by the abolition of all private liberty.

The American prefers to take his chance with life as a freeman, his chance to suffer or to achieve. He prefers to grow and to progress through individual effort and not to surrender his all to a collective will even if it purports and sincerely purposes to rule him for his own welfare.

Perhaps the Russians must pass through this experience before they can be efficient as freemen. We must hope the new despotism will become and remain benevolent, although despotism does not tend to remain benevolent. But to be benevolently ruled does not lead men toward freedom.

IS THE REPUBLICAN PARTY OF ILLINOIS PRO-AMERICAN?

The question placed at the head of this editorial is going to be decided—as far as the political leaders can decide it—at the Republican state convention which begins its deliberations in Springfield tomorrow. Perhaps it has been decided already in conference.

If the political leadership acts on the theory that the Republican party of Illinois is pro-German, or pro-anything except pro-American, the Republican voters will be then confronted by the paramount duty of promptly repudiating them, and this duty they will most certainly perform.

For the Republicans of this state and of this nation are pro-American, and no leader whose strength is founded on secret disloyalties and alien issues will be recognized as a Republican leader either at the Chicago convention or among the Republican voters of the nation.

The success of the Lundin-Thompson organization at the recent primaries in Cook county was due to a relaxation of patriotic energy—a natural reaction but not a permanent one—and to the renewal of political activity among the forces which opposed, not on American but on foreign grounds, our entry into the war, and finally to Charles Deneen's persistent purpose to control the anti-Thompson strength of the party or prevent control by any rival.

As a result of this combination of unfortunate circumstances it seems we are to have at the state convention an insolent challenge of loyalist Republicanism by a political power which represents to the minds of American citizens through the nation not the Americanism it impudently pretends to represent but forces directed throughout the war to the weakening of the national morale in the face of the enemy.

Against the patriot governor of Illinois this power, inflated by a fallacious and temporary success, threatens attack. We do not know what candidate seeking the votes of Republican delegates could afford to accept its aid on such an issue. We do know that Illinois Republicanism cannot afford to wear before the nation the badge of its disloyalty.

The duty of the state convention is clear. It must show to the party and the nation that Illinois Republicanism will tolerate no taint of sympathy for or fear of the influences which worked against the nation in its day of trial. It must show that it has not forgotten and will not forget those influences, and that it defies them. It must show that it represents the militant Americanism of historic Illinois, and that it is proud of the patriotic record and stanch Americanism of its war governor.

Any politician who hesitates on this issue, until it is buried forever in its noisome grave, betrays his party and his state. There can be no compromise. Illinois and Illinois Republicanism are American.

Editorial of the Day

ST. LOUIS AS A SEAPORT.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

From time to time citizens of Brazil who visit St. Louis on business missions remind us that we are on a great river, famous throughout the world for size, length, and direction, but kept strangely idle in a commercial sense. The Brazilians have some famous big rivers of their own, which, while largely undeveloped, are better appreciated as an inestimably important gift of nature. If Brazil had the population and wealth of the United States its spacious rivers would not be allowed to take a majestic, but lonesome, course to the sea. Here is the Mississippi valley, the most productive on earth, the center of the richest and most powerful nation, that has long neglected and still neglects its splendid waterway running across the entire country from north to south, with navigable tributaries reaching into more than half the whole number of states. Well may Brazilian or other intelligent visitors ask: "Why this long trance among a people otherwise noted for vigorous enterprise?"

We can assure our Brazilian friends that they are not the only ones who wonder why coffee and rubber are not coming up the Mississippi river in full cargoes direct to St. Louis for distribution instead of philandering over half the globe before getting here, their known destination.

A day will come when ships flying the flag of Brazil will be a familiar sight in the seaport of St. Louis.

In any event we cannot pay the debts of the nation without making some sacrifices. The tax makers may hunt around and conceal and sugar coat the thing as they please, but the fact remains that the people have to pay for the war and the burden must be borne. We might as well continue to buckle down to it.—Cedar Rapids Republican.

The newspapers, as a matter of fact, use only 22 per cent of the pulp that is made into paper. The other 78 per cent is used for other purposes. Just now the newspapers are asked to do all the conserving, but it ought to take less than a wise man to realize that the other users of wood pulp in the form of paper ought to set about conserving on their own account.—Cedar Rapids Republican.

"HOW comes it," queries A. S., "that the letter 'o' follows so conspicuously after the first letter in the names of each of the leading candidates for president? Jo-Lo-Wo sounds like a Chinese laundry."

MORE significant, it seemeth to us, is the 'o' that follows the first letter in the name "Hoover." Doubly significant, indeed. It was thus in "Roosevelt" and in "Woodrow." Although not superstitious, we should be inclined to bet on Hoover.

THE state of the world to-day is so like that which has followed every great upheaval in history, that the philosopher is not vastly concerned about the future. After the French revolution, as after other social eruptions, there was a lowering of public morality conjoined with a general desire to get rich without working. And so world without end.

Popular Science.

Sir: Your technically inclined readers will be interested in a new law discovered by Dr. Remsen, ex-President of Johns Hopkins, and given to the world in an address at Urbana several months ago. "In any discussion," said Dr. Remsen, "the heat evolved varies inversely with the knowledge displayed." Expressed as a formula, this law takes the form H=C-K, in which C is a constant, the value of which depends upon the units used for H and K.

In order to determine the value of C, I recently performed, with the help of the Professor of Heating and Ventilation and the Professsor of Political Science, an experiment on two speakers at a debate on the League of Nations. The heat evolved was determined by directing a measured quantity of air at a given temperature against the speakers and noting its increase in temperature; the knowledge displayed was determined by the Professor of Political Sciences.

As a result of this experiment, I am able to announce that when the heat units are expressed in B. T. U. and the units of knowledge in ounces, the value of C becomes 1. Applications are simple. It is estimated that a million B. t. u.'s are evolved in the course of one afternoon of debate in the United States Senate. Substituting this value in the above equation, the value for K becomes one one-millionth of an ounce.

REDUCING MUSHROOM HAZARD.

LAST year I wrote of an old man whom I saw hunting mushrooms. I asked him how he told the good from the bad, the safe from the unsafe. His reply was: "I stigs to dem I knowa." However appetizing a mushroom might appear, he rejected it unless he knew the variety to be a safe one.

A professor in the University of Illinois was kind enough to send me copies of his reports on mushrooms and to express his approval of the plan of "stigging to dem you knowa." It is all right for scientific gentlemen to study the subject of mushrooms and to make use of "dem dey knows to be safe." The advice to the ordinary mushroom hunter is likewise "to stick to those he knows," even though he deprive himself thereby of some plentiful and safe varieties.

But here I read an opinion by a great naturalist, one of the greatest in the world, a man pronounced by Charles Darwin to be the best observer he had ever encountered—Henri Fabre. In Henri Fabre's book on "The Fly" there is a chapter on mushrooms and insects. He found that insects are fond of poisonous mushrooms, as much so as they are of the safe kind. He knocked out the folk lore opinion that insects avoided poisonous mushrooms. This sign takes its place in the discard along with the silver spoon test.

But Henri Fabre built up as well as destroyed. He lived in a wild district in rural France, on the foot of a mountain side. His peasant neighbors all hunted mushrooms on the mountain side. As Fabre walked abroad prosecuting his studies as a naturalist he encountered mushroom hunters daily. He made it a daily routine to greet them and inspect their finds. At first he was disturbed and perplexed to find all kinds of poisonous mushrooms in the baskets and to be told that they were eaten without harm.

Upon investigation he found that there had not been a single case of mushroom poisoning in that province for many years. And then he discovered the reason. It was the universal custom to boil the mushrooms in order to remove the poison.

"In my village," he writes, "and for a long way around, the rule is to blanch the mushrooms, that is to say, to bring them to a boil in water with a little salt in it. A few rinsings in cold water concludes the treatment. They are then prepared in whatever manner one pleases. In this way what might at first be dangerous becomes harmless because the preliminary boiling and rinsing have removed the noxious elements."

He says that after such treatment he has eaten without harmful results such highly poisonous mushrooms as the ringed agaric, smoothheaded amanita, blue turning boleti, purple boletus, Satanic boletus, mottled amanita, lemon yellow amanita, olive tree agaric, and the belted milk producer.

He concludes: "A good preliminary boiling is the best safeguard against accidents arising from mushrooms." He boils all mushrooms regardless of their kind. Nor did he find that boiling in any way lessened the succulence or flavor of mushrooms. He expresses the hope that he may be the means of popularizing the wise Provencal home recipe for making mushroom eating safe and thus add an appetizing change to the monotonous diet of the poorer farming peoples.

L. C. C. Kreiger, commenting in the National Geographic Magazine for May, 1920, on this method proposed by Fabre, says: "Other reliable evidence speaks against this practice. Soaking or boiling does not render a poisonous species edible.

TREATMENT FOR BOILS.

Rogers Park writes: "I have been troubles with boils in the armpits for three weeks. Is there anything to rid me of them and prevent their spreading? I had two lanced by doctors, one under each arm, but there is one under each arm again. They get quite large and are painful. After the doctor lanced the boils they were dressed and each day after I cleaned the wound with alcohol. I found one small one coming and painted it with iodine, but it is just as large as the other ones now. I have been rather run down and am now taking an iron tonic. Will that build me up?"

REPLY.

Take a cake of yeast suspended in soup, water, milk or beef tea after each meal. Wash your armpits with soap and water and follow by applying boracic acid dissolved in alcohol. Keep up the iron tonic if you are pale, otherwise not. The infection travels down the hair shafts and the abscess starts well below the surface of the skin too deep for the iodine to reach it.

FRUIT JUICES HELPFUL.

Mrs. E. G. writes: "My baby, 6 months old is bottlefed. What food should I give her to have her bowels move more regularly, as she is constipated, and has only one bowel movement a day? She seems healthy and strong, weighs 20 pounds; am feeding cows' milk mixed with oatmeal gruel with a little sugar every two to three hours."

REPLY.

Give her fruit juices and drinking water. The use of vegetable soups can be begun. Finely mashed vegetables will follow. Malt sugar in milk is more laxative than cane sugar.

SEE FAMILY DOCTOR.

M. R. writes: "1. I just came back from a sanitarium for t. b., and would like to know if I can go back to my family doctor instead of my dispensary doctor. I feel good, and my lungs are in pretty good shape. I am willing to pay to go to my family doctor once a month.

"2. Would that be all right?

"3. Can the dispensary doctor make me go to see him?

REPLY.

1. 2. Yes.
3. No.

ANOTHER LOST DISCHARGE.

Anybody find an army discharge bearing the name of Earl Heilbron? If so, please return it to him at the Army hospital, Forty-seventh and Drexel boulevard.

HISTORY OF FLAG DAY.

Oak Park, Ill., May 3.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—Will you please publish a brief history of Flag day in your column, for use in getting up a patriotic service in a local church?

R. H. B.

The first recognized flag celebration was on June 14, 1877, which was the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of the American flag. The government requested that all public buildings float the American flag on this anniversary and all the larger cities were enthusiastic in adopting the plan.

To Dr. B. J. Cigrand of Chicago goes the credit of being the first to advocate setting aside a day for a national holiday to celebrate the birth of the American flag. His article, "The Fourteenth of June," appearing in the Chicago Argus, was the first endeavor in this direction. After that many newspapers and magazines encouraged the idea of a flag holiday.

In 1893 Dr. Cigrand issued in the newspaper an appeal, asking all who wished to commemorate the birthday of the flag to meet at the Grand Pacific hotel. The outcome of this meeting was the organization of the American Flag Day association. The association was responsible for celebrations each year on the third Saturday in June. In 1896 the time was changed to the 14th of June.

Five presidents have approved the celebration of Flag day as a national holiday, and on June 14, 1916, President Wilson issued the Flag day proclamation calling for a nation-wide observance of June 14 as Flag day.

YOU CAN BECOME A CITIZEN.

South Bend, Ind., May 5.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—While I was in camp before I went overseas I applied for citizenship papers. I went to the courts in which county I was at that time and took oath of citizenship. I have written to Washington several times for naturalization papers, but they have never sent me any. Please tell me how to procure them.

J. M.

Communicate with the chief naturalization examiner, 770 Federal building, Chicago, who will advise you how to proceed now. We assume that you were honorably discharged from the United States service, in which event you would be given naturalization on the strength of your honorable term of service with the United States military or naval forces during the war.

RAIN SPOILS THE GARDEN.

Chicago, May 6.—[To the Friend of the People.]—The owner of the property adjoining ours has promised repeatedly for the last six months to fix the gutter to prevent the drainage from his flat from falling directly or indirectly into our yard.

This downpour floods our garden and has about ruined my winter planting and fruit trees.

We spoke to them again this week, and his reply was that it had been that way for "twenty years."

E. A. B.

I have to advise you that on May 1, 1920, an investigation was made by an inspector from this department, as a result of which a notice was served on the owner to "replace defective roof gutters and downspouts."

JOHN DILL ROBERTSON,
Commissioner of Health.

HELP MAKE THE CITY CLEAN.

Chicago, May 6.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Will you kindly notify me in your paper when the city is going to pave the alley from Broadway to Glenwood between Glenlake avenue and Hood avenue.

G. L.

Our records do not show any proceeding at this time for paving the alley in the block between Broadway, Glenwood, Glenlake, and Hood avenues.

If such an improvement is desired, we shall be glad to hear from the property owners.

EDWARD J. GLACKIN,
Secretary Board of Local Improvement.

EVEN AS YOU AND I.

Chicago, May 6.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I rented my present flat in February, 1917, without signing a lease. Feb. 1, 1920, I received notice that my rent would be increased May 1. Building has since been sold and I understand that I will be asked to move. Old landlord will collect increased rent May 1, as transfer of property has not been completed. 1. In paying rent May 1 am I renting flat for a year by implication? 2. Can new landlord again raise rent? 3. Can I be forced to move? In either case [4] what notice am I entitled to?

READER.

1. No. Not where the previous tenancy was not for a year.
2 and 3. Yes.
4. Thirty days.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TO FORECLOSE ON MORTGAGE.

La Grange, Ill., May 6.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—There is a first and second mortgage on a piece of property. First mortgage has two years more to run, owner of second mortgage intends to foreclose. How long will it take before he can get possession of the property after foreclosing?

E. V. R.

Fifteen months, except that he may be able to put a receiver in possession sooner, depending on the wording of the trust and deed and the facts.

EFFECT OF THE TREATY SITUATION ON U. S. TRADE.

Chicago, May 4.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Evidence on the point of how legitimate American commercial interests abroad are being made the football of short sighted administration politics came to my attention today in the course of a conversation with the president of a prominent Chicago manufacturing concern. While we were sitting in his office the mail was brought in. The letter on top was from a wholesale distributor of labor saving appliances in Wellington, New Zealand. Explaining why he could not dispose of this manufacturer's products in a waiting market, the writer said:

"There is, I am sorry to say, a growing discontent against using United States goods unless absolutely necessary. All brought about through the action of your government (whether rightly or wrongly) over the war treaty.

"This country was the first British possession to send men to the front, and, although we numbered but a million, we enlisted over 10% 000 men. The casualties of our men exceeded the whole of the casualties for your American expedition, and now that the war is over there is a feeling that we are being let down and left to carry on the burden incidental to the aftermath of the war.

"It is useless to assure people who do not know that the American business man was with us out and out; somehow or other these things do not come in the press; but the blatant note of 'swagger' and 'we won the war!' talk seems to get a very large amount of prominence from the cable people and your own press."

Obviously this question suggests itself: Why must a giant commercial nation be compelled to submit to the treatment of a beggar at the back door in order to gratify the whims of one uncompromising mind?

STANLEY G. SWANBERG.

A ROMANCE OF AMERICANIZATION.

Chicago, May 6.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The following may prove of interest to many citizens who are unfaithful to this country. This will show what I had to do to come here from Russia, though I knew nothing about America, except what I read from books. My one great desire was to see America. I often told my parents that I wouldn't live in Russia when I grew to manhood.

At the age of 18 I was subject to be drafted into the Russian army, but I declined to serve the Russian government. That was in 1914, when no one could, after war was declared, obtain passage out of Russia. So the only thing for me to do was to escape.

On Sept. 16, 1914, I consulted a friend who was highly regarded on such matters. I told him to arrange things for me. He made his price $1,000. A thousand dollars to me meant nothing to be free.

On Sept 25 he gave me instructions to go to Lebour, where a man would be waiting for me. So I boarded a train from Minsk to Lebour. Before leaving he pinned a white piece of paper on the left lapel of my coat, and told me that the man would meet me there.

Upon my arrival a man came up to me and asked me if I was the man he was looking for. I said "yes," and he told me to follow him. He led me into a warehouse, took my baggage and told me to be ready at 2 o'clock. At the specified hour he came and took me to a barrel and told me to get in it. I did, and then they loaded the barrel on a street car and then on the transport. I was up and down in the barrel so many times I couldn't count them. The boat was to sail at 6 in the evening, but the order was changed, and I was forced to remain in the barrel sixteen hours.

After about an hour at sea, two men came down where I was, and hollowed, "Where is that barrel?" I screamed at the top of my voice, because I couldn't stand it any longer. I was almost paralyzed. They then took me out. I slept for twenty-four hours. After sleeping that long I was half starved. They wouldn't give me enough to eat, fearing something would happen to me.

And after thirteen rough days at sea I sighted the Statue of Liberty. It was the happiest day of my life. Oct. 7, at 11 o'clock at night, I passed the examination at the emigration board. I then boarded a train for Chicago, not knowing any one there, and couldn't speak English. I could only go in a lunchroom and ask for something to eat.

But after remaining her for three years I learned to speak English fluently. In 1917 I enlisted in the Rainbow division, and I want to say it taught me a great deal, and as I live to be a hundred years I'll not forget the American army made a man of me.

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE STAFF.

Chicago, May 4.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I wish to congratulate you on your editorial in your Sunday, May 2, edition, entitled "Wolf! Wolf!" I hope that the management of THE TRIBUNE has compelled each of your city editors, reporters, and headline writers to read this editorial at least ten times, so that it will thoroughly soak in. I believe that if radicalism, revolution, assassination, and general unrest and discontent continue to grow in this country it will be very largely the fault of "sensational publicity" dished up daily by the reporters and headline writers.

PRO-BUSSES.

Chicago, May 5.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Ninety-nine per cent of the south siders want the auto busses this summer on the south side, to relieve the extreme congestion on all our lines of transportation and to allow those of limited means the pleasure of riding through the most beautiful parks and boulevards in the world. Why should the north side have this advantage and the south side not? The people want the busses and not technical objections. I hope every south sider will do as I am doing and write the Illinois public utilities commission at Springfield, stating they want this convenience for 1920 summer use.

FRANKLIN BROWNE.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Last week's six best circulaters at the Chicago public library were:
"The Economic Consequences of the Peace," by John Maynard Keynes.
"The Man of the Forest," by Zane Grey.
"A Man for the Ages," by Irving Bacheller.
"Avowals," by George Moore.
"An American Idyll," by Cornelia Stratton Parker.
"White Shadows in the South Seas," by Frederick O'Brien.

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago book store were:

FICTION.

"This Side of Paradise," by F. Scott Fitzgerald.
"Legend," by Clemence Dane.
"Poor Relations," by Compton Mackenzie.
"A Place in the World," by John Hastings Turner.
"Swatty," by Ellis Parker Butler.
"The Cross Pull," by Hal G. Evarts.

NONFICTION.

"Now It Can Be Told," by Philip Gibbs.
"The Economic Consequences of the Peace," by John Maynard Keynes.
"Letters of Henry James."

"BEYOND THE HORIZON," Eugene O'Neill's play, which has set New York agog with such chatterings as "It can't possibly be so wonderful as the critics say it is, nothing could be," and "It's the most gripping thing I've ever seen on the stage," has finally come to give those of us who must read and not see a chance to judge for ourselves whether the dramatic critics are extravagantly praising a play which Richard Bennett has made a masterpiece or whether Eugene O'Neill has achieved something of great importance. No more than a few pages need be read to know that the playwright has done the creating. By the time the last word is finished the sensitive reader is half sick with the sheer grinding power of the play, the beauty of the technique of the thing, so perfectly done that each speech follows the speech before with the same uncompromising inevitableness that each act follows the act before. It is the dramatization of a man's longing for the freedom of the great world, of his passionate eagerness to sail into the sunrise, and of the stifling of that yearning in a life on a hated farm, of his brother's roots in the soil torn up, never finding another growing place, of the momentary mazing by his poetic thoughts of the girl whom both he and his brother loved and of the cruelty of fate in juggling those three lives by that momentary mazing. It is a drama of all countries. Though it is an American tragedy, it might have happened anywhere in the world where fate slips a noose about the neck of dreamers. Eugene O'Neill paints his canvas with what Henley calls "the exquisite chromatics of decay"—to quote a New York dramatic critic. And what a canvas! It is a masterpiece, such a work of creative art as, translated into other languages, will make foreigners realize that America can produce a dramatist of literary and dramatic quality as cosmopolitan as most of our plays are provincial.

Michael Arlen, quoting Mark Twain, says that the report that George Moore wrote his book "The London Venture" [Dodd-Mead] is grossly exaggerated. That ought to silence those who protest with loud vociferations that nobody but George himself can write like George Moore.

The sixth volume of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's History of the Great War completes the record of four years of tragedy and sacrifice and a spiritual courage undreamed of. Of the longer histories of the war there are now available to Americans Sir Arthur's, Frank Simond's, published by Doubleday, Page & Co., and a two volume history, especially of America's participation in the war, by Bertram Benedict.

"Skinner Makes It Fashionable" [Harper's] is the latest of Henry Irving Dodge's stories about his own big idea, which was Skinner himself. This time Skinner makes economy fashionable and butlers de trop in a new rich community. Old Mr. Hi Cost won't give up the ghost at Skinner's success in Meadeville, but he ought to be getting trembly in the knees when he realizes that even our most expensive magazine writers are turning against him.

What would you think was the best seller on the lists of a publisher whose books trundle regularly into the best seller class? Wrong. It's Holt's "The Care and Feeding of Children." It has just gone into its sixty-first huge edition—editions much larger than the average best selling novel. The latest edition has additional information about the care of older children.

Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, U. S. N., whose autobiography "From Midshipman to Rear-Admiral" enjoyed a deserved popularity, has just written "The Art of Fighting" [Century], a history of strategy from the time of the first sieges to the campaigns of Foch. It is a fascinating volume for any one. It is not in any way propaganda for militarism, merely an authoritative and intensely interesting account of how brains have been used in fighting on both land and sea since history has made any record of battles.

"Something Else Again" [Doubleday-Page] is this year's anthology of the immortal works of Franklin P. Adams, lookout for the Conning Tower of the New York Tribune. It is a collection of his facile rhymes on the jazzy virginibus puerisque, or the league of nations, the high cost of labor, and other current American themes.

"Wanted, a Husband" [Houghton-Mifflin], by Samuel Hopkins Adams, is, according to a learned but otherwise charming young man of my acquaintance, "the best dime novel I ever read."

"The Rising Tide of Color Against White World Supremacy" [Scribners], by Lothrop Stoddard, is a book to make one stop, read, and worry. We are on the verge of being pushed into the pit of oblivion by the yellow, brown, black, and red races of the world, especially, Mr. Stoddard warns us, since the white population and solidarity have been decimated by the war.

"South Sea Foam" [Doran], is the fascinating title of a volume of south sea experiences by A. Safroni Middleton. With his violin he conquered the south seas—and if the rest of the conquering is as charming as the first chapters of the record are, the book will be a chum of "White Shadows in the South Seas."

We were talking about the general exodus to the south seas the other day—Jerome Blum, the vivid painter, is just starting for a year among the wilds and wiles of the islands—when Bob Holliday, editor of the Bookman, said, "What do you want to go to the south seas for? They'll have Ferris wheels and sell peanuts and ticklers." It is certainly true that the world—with or without his wife—is making of the Marquesas an inaccessible and rather fashionable Coney island.

Almost as a direct answer to the prayer of those who stand now in the wilderness and lift their hands in supplication, "O, Lord, would that I had saved my copies of the Stars and Stripes—would that I might look again upon those pages of a life I hated and loved," there comes the announcement that right here in Chicago the seventy-one issues of the Stars and Stripes are bound and will be ready for distribution soon. Mr. Luckett, who worked on the Stars and Stripes in Paris and who published the Paris edition of Roy Baldridge's famous "I Was There," has charge of the publication here. Speaking of histories of the great war, nothing could be a more accurate history of the part that the American doughboy took in the struggle than the complete file of the Stars and Stripes.

Oliver M. Saylor's "The Russian Theater Under the Revolution" [Little-Brown] is a book of books to any one who is interested in art theaters. In it Mr. Saylor—of the Indianapolis News—tells of work done without the slightest lowering of the artistic ideals of the producers and in the very maelstrom of the revolution. There are remarkable photographs as illustrations.

"A new lyricist combining the fluency of Sara Teasdale and the firm freshness of Edna St. Vincent Millay is Winifred Welles. Her book is 'The Hesitant Heart.'" Thus spake Louis Untermeyer. Strangely—for critics rarely agree, especially about poetry—"The Hesitant Heart" [Huebsch] has been just that expression of rare charm and youthful beauty to every one who has read it.

Carl Sandburg says that any one who wants to know Walt Whitman may find all the fundamentals of a sincere appreciation and understanding of his ideals and his work by reading "Leaves of Grass," Whitman's complete poems, and Leon Bazalgette's remarkable biography retranslated from the French by Ellen Fitzgerald and published in this country as "Walt Whitman the Man and His Work" [Doubleday-Page].

Extract from Lord Fisher's Memories and Records: "A cabinet minister, in an article (after the armistice) in a newspaper, stated that the allies were at their last gasp when the armistice occurred as it did as a miracle, for Marshal Foch had been foiled on the strategic flank by the inability of the American army to advance and the unavoidable consequences of want of experience in a new army (immense but inexperienced—they were slaughtered in hecatombs and died like flies) and so the American advance on the Verdun flank was held up, and Haig therefore had to batter away instead (and well he did it). And though the British army entered Mons, yet the German army was efficient, was undemoralized, and had immense lines of resistance in its rear before reaching the Rhine! There was no Waterloo, no Sedan, no Trafalgar (though there could have been one on Oct. 21, 1918, for the German naval mutiny was known! Sir E. Geddes said so in a Mansion House speech on Nov. 9, 1918). There was no Napoleon—no Nelson! but "The Angel of the Lord went forth. . . ."

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

LUCY.
By William Wordsworth.

She dwelt among the untrodden ways
Beside the springs of Dove;
A maid whom there were none to praise,
And very few to love.

A violet by a mossy stone
Half hidden from the eye!
Fair as a star, when only one
Is shining in the sky.

She lived unknown and few could know
When Lucy ceased to be;
But she is in her grave, and, O,
The difference to me!

HOOVER BLAMES ADMINISTRATION IN SUGAR FAMINE

Fault Nowhere Else, He Tells Senator.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., May 8.—[Special.]—Herbert Hoover, in a telegram to Senator Capper of Kansas, today bluntly placed the blame for the present sugar shortage and high prices upon the administration. If the administration had adopted the sugar equalization board's recommendation last September it could have bought raw Cuban sugar for 6½ cents a pound and supplied the finished product to American consumers in abundant amounts at 12 cents a pound, he declared.

Mr. Hoover said the situation could not be remedied by Attorney General Palmer's threats to punish sugar profiteers. The sugar speculation is world-wide and requires something more than a raid on American profiteering, he said.

He made two suggestions: The administration should open negotiations with other nations to obtain an agreement to stop America and Europe bidding against each other for the sugar supply.

There should be a rationing of sugar supplies to nonessential consumers, such as manufacturers of candy and soft drinks.

"Plain Bad Administration."

"The present sugar position is due simply to bad business administration," said Mr. Hoover. "As a result of failure to act last September, we are subject to unparalleled speculation and profiteering. The present situation discriminates terribly against the poor. The increase in price is imposing an additional tax on our people of about $50 per family per annum and will cost our consumers over a billion dollars more than last year.

"The profiteering is international. The situation is as much disliked by the vast majority of our manufacturers and distributors as by the public, for they do not like even to be accused of profiteering. This situation cannot be remedied by the attorney general's conception that forces of this character can be handled by putting a few people in jail.

Still a Chance for Relief.

If our government even bow entered into negotiations with the large European governments to stop bidding against each other and so secure our fair share of the available supplies it might help. Aside from inflation of price, an undue share will otherwise go to Europe, because its purchases are still being carried on under the direction of its governments, and our merchants have not the resources to compete with such organization for forwarding supplies, and thus our fair share is seriously jeopardized. It may be too late to accomplice this.

"Over one-third of our sugar is used by the candy, sweet drinks, and other manufacturers of nonessentials. During the war these trades patriotically cooperated in public interest and found substitutes for the maintenance of their trade. They would no doubt cooperate again.

"It is no use crying over spilt milk, but simply to show that these measures are reasonable I need only to recount that they were carried out for two years by the food administration and the equalization board.

"The impending situation was anticipated by the board and myself last July. The continuation of control and insurance of our supplies through the purchase of the Cuban crop, as in the two previous years, was recommended. When this proposal failed, the board recommended the alternative and less efficient method outlined above. If it were put in action even now it would frighten speculators out of this market and quickly moderate the prices."

ACCUSED AS PROFITEER.

Salt Lake City, Utah, May 8.—A complaint charging the Utah-Idaho Sugar company of Salt Lake City with profiteering in sugar was filed for the government here late today before United States Commissioner E. V. Van Pelt by Floyd T. Jackson of the department of justice.

KAISER HOCKED FOR LOAN?

BERLIN, May 8.—An agreement between Germany and Holland has been signed by which Germany receives credits amounting to 200,000,000 guilders, according to the Vossische Zeitung. The ex-kaiser is at Doorn, Holland.

THAT MEMORY!

Frightened at Elopement, She Forgot Hotel Bill; Arrested.

MRS. T. R. TOD.

High speed courtship is what Miss May Clair Oneal, 20 years old, of St. Louis, always wished. So when Theodore R. Tod of Oak Park popped the question on April 22, after twenty hours of wooing, she listened, and they were married.

And then, frightened after the hurried ceremony in the Cook county marriage court, Mrs. Tod fled to the home of her mother. She forgot to pay a hotel bill of $90, officials of the Great Northern hotel say.

So when she returned to Chicago for a visit yesterday she and Miss Anita Van Kempel were taken into custody at the Congress hotel by Detective Sergeants Byrne and O'Brien. Both are at the Hudson avenue detention home.

DEALERS FIX 27 CENTS AS FAIR PRICE OF SUGAR

Pledge Selves Not to Permit Resales.

Twenty-seven to 28 cents was fixed as the top prices which the consumer should pay to the retailer for sugar at a conference of sixty of the city's most important wholesale grocers held yesterday in the office of District Attorney Clyne.

The dealers also took a pledge to prevent resales of sugar and to sell to the retail trade at the lowest price. They cheered a declaration that orders for sugar should be filled in the order in which they were received and not by attending to the customer who offered the highest price first. This declaration was aimed at candy makers, who, to obtain sugar, offer from 40 to 50 cents a pound.

Clyne Talks of Jails.

District Attorney Clyne promised the fullest cooperation with the dealers and jail for those who violate the pledges taken at the conference.

"If I don't do another thing," he said, "I'm going to see that the consumer gets sugar and gets it at a fair price. I'm going to send to jail each and every violator of the Lever act that I can find."

Steele Fixes Price.

Samuel Steele of Steele, Wedeles & Co., wholesale grocers, told Mr. Clyne what the fair price for sugar should be.

"Speculators in foreign countries have been buying up the Cuban sugar crop at 6 cents a pound," he said. "Manufacturers and wholesalers in this country are helpless and have to pay what is asked.

"But there should be only one resale permitted, and in no case should the dealer make more than 1½ cents a pound on any sale. Based on today's price in New York sugar should be selling to the retailer at $25.40 a hundred, and the consumer should not be charged more than 27 to 28 cents a pound."

Other dealers agreed, and the pledge against resales was taken.

In a statement issued yesterday Armour & Co. declared that the downward trend of food products, which was beginning to manifest itself, was stopped by the switchmen's strike, which reduced retailers' stocks to such an extent that they were forced to raise prices.

500 Swear Off Sugar Use Until the Price Goes Down

East Palestine, O., May 8.—Five hundred members of a tire and rubber company here have signed an agreement not to use sugar in their coffee or tea until the prevailing high price of the sweetening commodity declines. The agreement is said to be the first of a number in an attack against the high cost of living.

GLAD CRY, 'GOING DOWN!' COMFORTS CLOTHES BUYERS

Drop Follows 177 Per Cent Price Rise.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

Clothing is the first banana peel on which High Cost has stepped.

"Going down," is chorused by the trade, and the white collar lads join in the equine laugh, although perhaps somewhat tentatively. Of recent days the retail stores have been displaying reduced priced goods in their windows, and the merchant tailors, too, are looking for a fall in textiles.

During the era of jumping prices clothing leaped higher than other of the necessaries. A survey issued yesterday by the national industrial conference board shows that last March the cost of living in the United States was 94.3 per cent higher than in July, 1914. Food went up 100 per cent; rent advanced 49 per cent; so did fuel, heat and light; sundries increased 83 per cent.

Up 177 Per Cent.

But clothing knocked them all cold by jumping 177 per cent. Men's overcoats, the report shows, leaped 239 per cent; women's coats, 204 per cent; women's knit vests, 230 per cent; men's union suits, 211 per cent; overalls, 247 per cent; men's work shirts, 228 per cent; women's shoes 209 per cent.

One of Chicago's leading loop tailors returned from the eastern markets yesterday with his orders for next season's stuffs still unplaced. Prices were at such a level that he did not care to run the risk of being caught with high price bolts on his shelves.

"High grade woolens," he said, "were apparently trying to make an altitude record. Stuffs I used to buy in 1914 for $6 a yard they now ask $16 or $17 for.

"Everybody in the trade knows that a lessening of effort by the individual workman is one important factor. There are others, of course, but diminished productive efficiency has a cumulative effect upon the price of clothing. The price of wool isn't so much a factor, although it has gone up, but from the fleece to the garment cutter wool is handled a dozen or so times.

Labor Cost Doubled.

"All the labor in each of these dozen spots has gone up on an average of 100 per cent. That is proper enough, but the high wages, instead of meaning as much individual work, have meant a pulling off of 15 or 20 per cent, and this has swelled the labor costs. Every one of the handlers has to make his profit, 10 per cent or so, and he bases his percentage upon what the stuff costs him. If the textile workers, instead of doing less for a high day's wage than they did for a low day's wage should keep up production, or even increase it, why, then, the price of clothing stuffs would fall, and high wages and profits would not be disturbed. As it is, the slump in output simply puts another passenger on the merry-go-round.

"In the merchant tailoring shop a coatmaker who was making $22 to $23 a week four years ago is now getting on an average about $48. He has $36 by the schedule, but to get good workmen we have to pay between $40 and $50. Where a man turned out three to four coats a week four years ago, he now turns out two and one-half to three coats. His day has been reduced to eight hours. I am not talking of the manufacturing of ready to wear garments, which is a different part of the trade. Here is something significant—today three tailors came in and asked me for jobs."

STUDENTS OF HYDE PARK HIGH TO STAGE CLASSIC COMIC OPERA

Camille Robinette, Dorothy Kittle, Charles Scofield, and Barton Gebhart will have the leading parts in the annual operetta, "The Pirates of Penzance," to be given at the Hyde Park High school next Thursday and Friday.

CAMILLE ROBINETTE. [Waters Photo.]

The operetta is being produced under the direction of O. E. Robinson, musical director at the school. The operetta, the famous one by Gilbert and Sullivan, has its setting in the time of Queen Victoria, and a special point is being made of having everything from the scenery, painted by the art talent of the school, to the flags, in keeping with the period.

DOROTHY KITTLE. [Waters Photo.]

Although the school uses only amateurs in its productions, a great array of musical talent has been gathered for the performannce. A great many of the boys protested at being forced to dance, but Miss Lois Russell, their coach, finally persauded them to do so.

LDERMEN EAT ROOF OF 100 PER CENT PROFIT

Food Director Convinces Them Through Feast.

Eight members of the city council ...C. of L. committee, clad in overalls, ...ped deeply into the food problem ...terday and emerged with their ...aches full of sandwiches and their ...ds full of figures.

When the session opened several Democratic aldermen were antagonis... to City Food Director Russell J. ...ole, but after the food director had ...ved coffee, sandwiches, and pie and ...ved himself a walking encyclopedia ...food data the committee voted unani...sly to ask the finance committee ...give him five assistants.

Makes Own Sandwiches.

Mr. Poole, after sharpening a huge ...fe on a glistening steel, took 35½ ...nts' worth of ham, laid it between ...½ cents' worth of bread, on which ...cents' worth of butter had been ...read and announced:

"Gentlemen, these sandwiches are ...sting me 5½ cents each. They are ...rice as thick, both in bread and meat, ...s those you purchase in the ordinary ...staurant. In drug stores and cer...in restaurants sandwiches half as ...ick as these are costing, 20, 25, and ...0 cents.

100 Per cent on Pie.

"This apple pie cost 28 cents, or ...bout 5 cents for each of the six cuts. ...t 10 cents a cut the restaurateur ...s making 100 per cent profit. The ...offee you are drinking costs 40 cents ...r pound. Each pound makes forty-...wo cups.

"This does not mean that all who ...harge more than 10 cents for ham ...andwiches are profiteers. Overhead ...osts must be considered."

Ald. Edward R. Armitage came near ...ausing a half dozen ructions in the ...committee by repeatedly propounding ...he question:

"What are you going to accomplish ...nd how are you going to accom...plish it?"

Ald. Adamowski and Ald. Lyle took ...arms answering the question, but ...when the meeting was over Ald. Ar...mitage declared he was far from clear ...on the point he had raised.

"The people know they're being ...gged?" shouted Ald. Armitage. "I ...now I'm paying $100 for a $30 suit, ...but what can I do? We spent hun...dreds of dollars to go to Washington. ...But did we accomplish? Nothing?"

"Don't be pessimistic," advised Ald. ...Lyle. "We must get the facts first."

"Mr. Poole is here to demonstrate to ...the public that it is being robbed," put ...in Ald. Adamowski.

Restaurant Man Heard.

Then Ald. Maurice Kavanagh, who ...formerly owned a string of thirteen ...restaurants, but who has got rid of ...all except one because "they don't ...pay," took a shot at the committee.

"Is that a union waiter you've got ...there?" he asked Mr. Poole.

Mr. Poole's assistant turned out to ...be a health department employé.

"Are you taking into account the ...cost of overhead—rent and pay for ...the waiters—in this demonstration?" ...he continued. "Henrici's chef gets ...$6000 a year."

Mr. Poole said he was not to blame ...if the public sees fit to go to restau...rants which pay a big overhead."

"Look at that cup you've got there," ...said Ald. Kavanagh. "It costs 22 ...cents. It used to cost 6 cents. If you ...drop it you lose the profit on thirty ...cups of coffee."

"How much sugar do you use a ...week?" asked Mr. Poole of Ald. Kava...nagh, who replied, "about 500 ...pounds."

"Then you are being robbed of $50 ...a week," announced the food director. ...Resales are putting the price of sugar ...up. We have imported 400,000 more ...tons of sugar from Cuba so far this ...year than last year, but the price now ...is 32 cents, and it never got above 20 ...cents last year.

After nearly three hours of discussion the committee approved the following as its campaign to encompass Old Hi Cost:

1. Investigate market conditions to ascertain the present ratio between retail and wholesale prices and the ratio which would be consistent with fair dealing and legitimate profit.

2. Provide means for receiving and investigating complaints, issuing warnings and restraining violations.

3. Expose profiteers and prosecute them through the state's and district attorney's offices.

4. Study the present methods of transportation and delivery of perishable products with a view to preventing waste.

5. Investigate resales within trades.

6. Recommend remedial legislation to the city council, the state legislature and congress.

Clothes Are Missing.

The hubbub in the committee meeting did not hold a candle to that which followed when the aldermen found that a joker had raided their lockers, and made off with their "civies." The joke also exposed the fact that the blue jeans the aldermen were wearing had been borrowed from the city hall janitors.

CITY MAN QUITS $75 A WEEK JOB TO GO ON FARM

The pressure of the farm labor shortage has been somewhat lightened during the last two weeks through the efforts of THE TRIBUNE, in cooperation with the Illinois Agricultural association, but there is still plenty of experienced help needed on the farms.

A few farmers are writing in to state they will take men with slight experience. There is room in the fruit belt of Michigan for summer workers. Kankakee county wants seventy-five men at once, the county farm adviser stated in a telegram yesterday. Single men who can drive a team and who know how to cultivate corn are wanted especially.

"Many laboring men are coming to us for farm jobs," said E. L. Bill of the agricultural association. "One man resigned a job paying $75 a week today to go out on a farm."

The association will have in another farmer next week to help out J. P. Mason in examination of farm applicants. The need for the clearing house has grown, and it probably will be run all summer.

All farmers who need help and all men who wish to go on a farm are asked to call at the association headquarters, 130 North Wells street, if possible, or write. The bureau will charge no fees and will attempt to fill the needs of each applicant.

"Are you attempting to make a moth out of me?" she wrote.

MRS. BESSIE GARVEY.

Leopold Kohls, leader of the orchestra at the Riviera movie theater, was astonished when he read it. He didn't recall any woman who wrote like that.

He went to the police. They arrested Mrs. Bessie Garvey of 1836 North Wells street. She was arraigned before Judge Frank H. Graham yesterday in the Chicago avenue court.

The letter was shown to the judge. He read it twice and continued the case until May 11. Meantime Mrs. Garvey will be examined as to sanity.

"Keep your mouth shut as tight as a clam," Mrs. Garvey advised Kohls. "Nothing goes over my head."

TWO SEIZED AS GIRLS SWALLOW POISON TABLETS

Lured to the City with Job Bait, Police Believe.

Mrs. Marguerite Howard and Ted Barnes of 2921 Indiana avenue were arrested yesterday on orders of Capt. T. J. Caughlin of the Cottage Grove avenue station in connection with an attempt made by two young women to end their lives at that address early in the morning.

Capt. Caughlin said he ordered the arrest because numerous complaints have been made against the house. It is thought the girls were lured to Chicago under the belief they were to be employed as telephone operators. Two men are being sought on the theory they may throw some light on the history of the young women, who refuse to talk. The police are investigating the possibility of a "white slave" plot.

"Everything Went Wrong."

The girls, Ruth Robbins, 19 years old, an Indianapolis actress, and Mrs. Velma O'Hara, 24 years old, of Rock Island, Ill., are at St. Luke's hospital suffering from the effects of poison tablets which they took at Mrs. Howard's home. They are under guard to prevent a possible attempt to escape with outside aid.

Owing to the slow action of the poison, physicians will be unable to give assurance of the girls' recovery for several days. They entered into a suicide pact after two days spent in Chicago's cabarets.

"We are tired of living," reads a note which one of them wrote and pinned to the door of a washroom in Mrs. Howard's rooming house. "It is so impossible for us to live and be square with the world. Everything went wrong. So we decided to die. We are in our right senses. God forgive us."

Relief in Prompt Action.

Mrs. Howard said the young women, escorted by the two well dressed young men, drove up to the house at 4 o'clock in the morning. The young women went to the washroom. When they returned she heard them tell the men they had each swallowed five poison tablets. The men rushed from the house. Mrs. Howard obtained some milk and forced the girls to drink it. Physicians believe her prompt action may save their lives.

Miss Louise Garaghty, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Hunter Garaghty of 31 East Elm street, is to become Mrs. Samuel Morse Felton, Jr., it was announced yesterday. Mr. Felton's parents reside at 1366 North Dearborn street. The announcement of the engagement was made at a luncheon in the Casino.

High School Girls Asked to Teach Face Painting

Chicago high school girls were called upon yesterday to teach the women of the city the art of using cosmetics. The appeal came from Mrs. Jessie Wagner, beauty expert, who lectured before the vocational training conference at the central Y. W. C. A.

15,000 HOTELMEN TAX GUEST ROOM OF DAD DEARBORN

Merchants' Bureau Helps Mine Hosts' Host.

About 15,000 owners, managers, and stewards of hotels, restaurants, and clubs have come to Chicago to attend the second annual hotel show, which opens at the Coliseum tomorrow—and have found the hotels here "all full."

The army of hotelkeepers has had to fall back on the "Chicago plan," as the Association of Commerce hotel bureau is known, and through this clearing house the visitors are being placed.

The Anti-Tip Machine.

The show will last all week and will display nearly everything that goes into a hotel—together with some new stunts. One of these is a "tipless machine." The word tipless does not mean in this instance that the machine cannot be tipped over. It means it cannot be tipped. It checks your hat or coat at so much per check, and that's all there is to it.

Seek "Home Atmosphere."

The hotel men are discussing new problems, one of them being to put the "home atmosphere" into the hotel. There are more permanent residents in hotels now than ever before, it is said, due to the scarcity of apartments and the difficulty experienced by private families in obtaining help.

GRIFFIN WIDOW ARRIVES HERE WITH CHILDREN

Mrs. Helen Prindiville Griffin Bastedo, widowed last Monday by the death of her husband, George Francis Griffin, Chicago capitalist, and married on Tuesday to Lieutenant Commander Paul Henry Bastedo, U. S. N., arrived in Chicago yesterday with her three children, Rosemary, 13 years old; Thomas Francis, 12 years old, and Richard Bulen, 9 years old. The children left immediately with their grandmother for Forest Hills, Mass., where the funeral of their father will be held on Monday afternoon. Officials of the Griffin Wheel company will leave Chicago today in a private car to attend the funeral. Mrs. Bastedo will remain in Chicago for a few days.

INDIA TO VOTE ITSELF OUT OF MOSLEM FIRES?

Dominion Plan Relied On to Curb Fanatics.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[By Special Cable.]

LONDON, May 8.—India is more peaceful than it has been in years, but I would not feel justified in saying that all dangerous excitement is over until after the Turkish treaty is published and some time has elapsed. Indian Moslems are excited over the question of the maintenance of the caliphate. Formerly that did not worry them much except of course that, like every good Moslem, they insisted that no Christian power should have any control over Mecca or Arabia; but now the agitation has been cleverly worked up and there are many agitators in Arabia, more than ever heard of before.

"These persons are digging up old texts which describe Syria so as to include Aleppo and Damascus. The Indian Moslems are devoted to their religion, and as they supply a large part of the Indian army, this situation calls for very careful handling."

Has Had Wide Experience.

This statement was made today in an exclusive interview by Sir William Duke. He is permanent undersecretary of state for India. Sir William probably is more familiar with conditions there than is any other British official, as he had thirty years' service in India and is in constant touch with its affairs now. He is satisfied that there is every prospect of India's settling down to an orderly government under the legislatures being set up in accordance with the Indian reform act recently passed.

"The act itself is only a skeleton which we must clothe with flesh and blood," he said. "Throughout the winter the government has been working with advisory committees, composed mainly of Indians, framing rules and working out the details of administration necessary for the setting up of the new all-Indian legislature and the eight subsidiary legislatures. The next step is the appointment of the joint committee of the imperial parliament to consider and approve these rules.

Parliament Must Consent.

"These rules must have the consent of parliament, for which the secretary of state already has moved. That consent must be obtained during this session. Then the general election in India must be held, and we hope the legislatures will meet early next year.

"The whole new organization is very similar to the dominion and provincial legislatures in Canada. Extremists in India are very vocal, and, like all vocal and active minorities, they have control of the political machines, which include the large body of moderate men. Even the extremists, however, are willing to work the new scheme for what it is worth in their opinion, although I dare say they will not very readily accept the period of ten years laid down in the act before it can be amended.

May and December Aid N. U.

"Youngest and Oldest Co-eds" at Northwestern Join in Helping Alma Mater's Campaign for $1,000,000.

Henry M. Kidder, Graduate of '59, And Miss Adele Hall, Alumna of 1907, "Sign up" for Good Cause.

Henry M. Kidder fought in the civil war and now he's donned his fighting togs again. This time it is to aid the alumni of the College of Liberal Arts of Northwestern university in their campaign for a million dollar fund to meet the higher operating costs of the institution.

Mr. Kidder, who has lived in Evanston for sixty-three years, was a sophomore at Northwestern in 1857. He was graduated in 1859. Mr. Kidder won a colonelship with the union army in the civil war. He was born in 1839.

He called in Miss Adele Hall, an alumna of 1917, and the granddaughter of his chum of the fifties, Richard Somers, to collect his donation to the university fund.

Chicagoan Is Indicted for $200,000 Oil Land Fraud

Kansas City, Mo., May 8.—William H. Woods, a resident of Chicago, was indicted by a federal grand jury here today on thirty-six counts charging the use of the mails to defraud.

BUDGET GIVES $6,445,215 FOR COLUMBIA "U"

New York, May 8.—[Special.]—Columbia university budget for the year beginning July 1, 1920, carries $6,445,215.26, it was announced today by President Nicholas Murray Butler. That of the state of New Jersey is about $8,000,000. The Columbia pay roll is greater than that of the state of New Jersey.

The annual auditing of books and accounts of the university is done by certified public accountants, having no official relations with the corporation.

TERMS TO TURKS GUARD RIGHTS OF ALL MINORITIES

Wilson's Idea of Armenia Border Still in Dark.

Washington, D. C., May 8.—[By the Associated Press.]—Provisions safeguarding the rights of minority populations make up a large portion of the Turkish peace treaty. A summary of the treaty, which will be handed to the Turkish delegation in Paris Tuesday, was received here today.

Fourteen articles are devoted to protection of the Armenians, Greeks, and other minority populations which will remain with the new boundaries of Turkey.

Turkey agrees to annual all conversions to Islam which have occurred between Nov. 1, 1914, and the coming into effect of the treaty, and undertakes to assist in the recovery of men, women, and children of wholly or partly non-Moslem parentage, who have adopted the Islamic faith since Nov. 1, 1914, and who are claimed by their families or communities.

An Eye on Harems.

The fullest right of search for lost persons in private houses and institutions is conceded.

Such reciprocal and voluntary emigration of persons belonging to racial minorities as the allied powers may consider opportune is recognized, and Turkey agrees to adhere to the treaty between Greece and Bulgaria of last November relating to reciprocal emigration.

Turkish subjects of non-Turkish race, such as Armenians and Greeks, who have been driven from their homes by fear of massacre or any other form of pressure during the war, may return to their homes and assist in the recovery of their property and re-establishment of business.

Religious Freedom Guarded.

Racial minorities are given freedom to establish, manage, and control charitable, religious, and social institutions, schools, and other educational establishments, a right previously exercised exclusively by the Turkish government. The power of the sultan in Constantinople is further limited. The Armenian question probably will be left open pending President Wilson's reply to a request that he fix boundaries.

'COUNT,' COUNTED OUT OF SOCIETY, SUES FOR $50,000

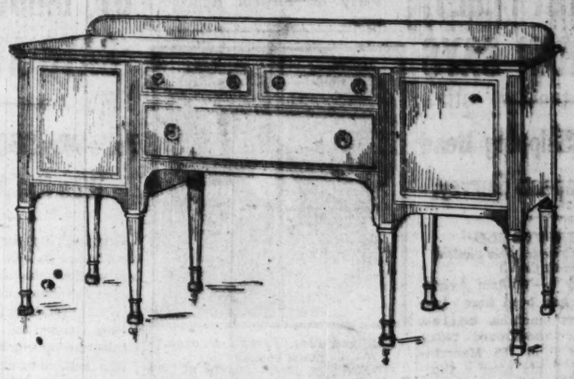
New York, May 8.—[Special.]—Presenting Bernard Francis S. Gregory in "Slander." Bernard, a few years ago, as "Count" Gregory, accumulated numerous and sundry blue ribbons at horse shows. He admits the "count" title is "no 'count"—he hasn't any ancestral hall or spreading fam'ly tree, y'know, nor any right to the title.

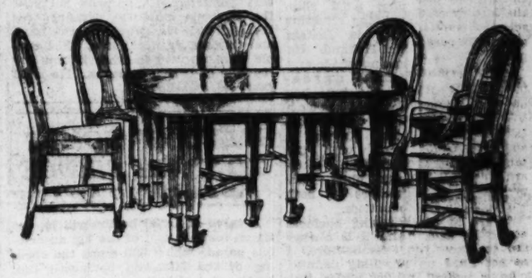
PRINCESS THURN.

Today he counted his woes in a suit filed in the Supreme court. He asks that the court order the Princess of Thurn and Taxis to count out to him $50,000 as damages. He alleges that false and slanderous statements concerning him made by the princess caused social circles, in which—before the princess talked—he had been cordially received, to "count him out." He also obtained an order from Supreme Court Justice Lydon attaching the property of the princess.

The princess is a niece of Joseph V. Thompson, banker and coal operator of Pittsburgh. She was Lida Nicolls of Uniontown, Pa. In 1899 she married Gen. Gerald Purcell Fitzgerald of Ireland, nephew of Edward Fitzgerald, translator of Omar Khayyam's "Rubyiat." In 1906 she got a divorce with $20,000 a year alimony and $300,000 in trust for her sons, John and Gerald Fitzgerald, now 21 and 19 years of age respectively. She was married in 1911 to Prince Victor of Thurn and Taxis.

Scholle's Good Furniture





Adam Dining Room Room Suite, made entirely of solid mahogany — Oblong Round End Table, 8 feet extension with aprons on two leaves, 5 Chairs and 1 Arm Chair in Haircloth: six foot Sideboard and Console Serving Table. 9 pieces. Special price $750.00.

YOU may buy anything in our store with the utmost confidence that the quality is up to Scholle standard. Of course, prices have advanced; they are much higher than in 1914, but that is common to all the things you buy these days.

One doesn't complain so much at paying more as at getting less, and we guarantee that all you buy here will give you complete satisfaction—in every way.

The suite shown in our illustration is one of those products whose makers would go out of business rather than sacrifice quality. These are goods that we could buy with our "eyes shut" and know that we are getting the best for our money; and we pass this confidence in the goods along to you backed by our guarantee that you will be satisfied, or you can at any time get other goods or your money back.

The prices are low, remarkably so, considering the goods and the times.

KEEPING PACE WITH THE TIMES

Present conditions prevent the adherence to former institutional policies. In previous years O-G sales and selling events occurred at regular intervals—as a result of a steady market and normal conditions. Today, however, it becomes necessary to swerve from formerly rigid principles—to govern this business from the public's viewpoint, rather than from the dictates of the business itself. These are times when good will means more than profit. Accordingly, it is requisite to keep faith with the public—to reduce prices when reduced prices are wanted.

U. S. MUST BUILD MERCHANT FLEET, HARRIMAN SAYS

American Shipping Head Ends European Survey.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[By Special Cable.]

LONDON, May 8.—William Averill Harriman, who has been here two months, sailed homeward today on the Mauretania after a thorough investigation of the shipping and shipbuilding situation both in Britain and Holland. He has not made any definite agreements, but has acquired much useful information. He was in touch with the Harriman interests' chief competitors in both countries.

W. AVERILL HARRIMAN.
(Photo Copyright: Paul Thompson.)

"We are in the shipping business to stay," he said, "and it is always useful to know your competitors. I have not fixed up anything definite, but have several things under way which may lead to definite agreements.

Believes in U. S. Future.

"I am a believer in the future of the American mercantile marine. We must have it. I recognize difficulties in the shortage of personnel and in other ways, and am not prepared now to say how these will be overcome. But they must be overcome.

Must Have Shipping.

"Before war we had no export trade. Now we have it, and must have ships to carry it. Export trade and banks must co-operate in building up our shipping. We are producing steel today cheaper than Europe, although labor costs here are higher, and the same is true of many other articles. We must export and import in our own ships."

He is 70 years old, and she is 68.

SALVO OF BOMBS TO START BRIDGE OPENING PARADE

A salvo of aerial bombs will be the signal for the start of the big automobile parade which will mark the opening of the Michigan boulevard link bridge at 4 o'clock next Friday afternoon.

Mayor Thompson has issued a proclamation urging all citizens to be present and requesting motorists who will take part in the parade to enter Grant park at Van Buren street not later than 3:15 o'clock.

Residents and business firms along Michigan avenue, from Twelfth street north, are urged to decorate their buildings "to mark in an impressive manner the marvelous progress of our wonderful city."

The mayor ordered the city hall closed at 3 o'clock on Friday afternoon that city employés may watch the ceremonies.

A squadron of fifteen airplanes, flying in battle formation, will soar over the new bridge during the parade and the dedication proceedings. The ships will be piloted by members of the Aviation club of Chicago, which has prepared the flying program of the day. There will also be stunt flying.

The "Ship by Truck" movement plans to have 500 machines in line.

WASTE TO CARRY UP BRIDGE SUIT, SAYS ATTORNEY

Tells Why $500,000 Case Was Not Appealed.

Responsibility for failure to carry the Strauss Bascule Bridge company's suit against the city to the United States Supreme court was laid on the city law department yesterday by Attorney George A. Chritton, special counsel for the city in the suit.

The suit, alleging infringement on patents in the construction of twelve city bridges, was lost in the United States District Court of Appeals and the damages may run as high as $1,000,000. The Strauss company's offer to settle for $500,000 is being investigated by a council subcommittee.

No Good in Appeal.

"There was absolutely no use in petitioning for an appeal," said Mr. Chritton. "Unless there is a disagreement between circuits the United States Court of Appeals has the power of final decision in patent cases. There was no such disagreement in this case, as this patent had not been litigated before."

"But there was nothing to prevent a petition for an appeal, was there?" persisted Ald. Capitain.

"We considered such action, but the corporation counsel, after reviewing our report, concluded that an appeal would be a waste of time and of the people's money," replied Mr. Chritton.

Young Makes Charge.

Hugh E. Young, city engineer of bridge design, told the committee that he was the only employé of the bridge department who was called on to testify when the case came up before Judge Carpenter in 1916.

"Attorney James R. Offield was in charge of the city's defense at that time," said Mr. Young. "He put me on the witness stand without notice and without conferring with me as to he questions I was to be asked."

Ten City Courts to Hear Rent Disputes Tomorrow

Ten branches of the Municipal court will be on the job tomorrow to hear hundreds of disputes between landlords and tenants.

Heretofore, Judge Heap has handled the work, but it piled up so rapidly it clogged the docket. Then the jury trials went to Judge Swanson's court and it was overwhelmed. Chief Justice Olson then took action.

Judge Cook will now assist Judge Heap and the jury cases will be heard by Chief Justice Olson and Judges Gemmill, Wells, Swanson, Rooney, Newcomer, Haas and Hayes. Judge Heap considered fifty cases yesterday. Nearly all the truants involved were given from ten to fifteen days to find new homes or meet the terms of the agents and owners.

CITY NEWS IN BRIEF

FOUR MEN WERE injured when a scaffold fell 20 feet at 5660 Taylor street.

EDITH SHELDON, 3, 814 Webster avenue, died of a fall on the stairs of the De Paul Day nursery while playing tag.

MRS. PAUL C. HARZ, 3318 Pierce avenue, made a second appeal for the recovery of her daughter Dorothy, who, she says, was kidnaped by Harz.

POLICE ARE LOOKING for Ruth Norman, 17, missing from Grand Rapids, Mich., and believed to have been lured here by three men.

LIQUOR WORTH $20,000 was taken in a raid by federal agents on the Birchmont hotel, 1456 Fargo avenue, and W. F. Sommers, the proprietor, was arrested.

PETER YARUTIS drew $1,000 to buy stock for his grocery store in Waukegan. He was robbed by three men near Forty-seventh street and Ashland avenue.

TWO SAMS, MORRISON and Minus, 1331 Kedzie avenue, were held to the federal grand jury on a charge of conspiracy to conceal the assets of Morrison's oriental store at 3454 Roosevelt road.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY SWANN of New York wired Chief of Detectives Mooney to search Chicago hospitals for D. B. Von Beszdite, who may be going by the name of Baron Beszelelnyl Beszedite Derze. Rio de Janeiro sent a cablegram to New York about the man.

POLICEMAN BARTLEY McFADDEN, who shot Thomas Domek, saloonkeeper, 3018 Milwaukee avenue, was upheld in his contention that he was detailed to watch Domek's place as a gambling house by the investigation of the homicide squad and Lieut. John Rieck.

Steel Union Convention Bars John Fitzpatrick

Scranton, Pa., May 8.—John Fitzpatrick and J. Brown, both of Chicago, chairman and secretary of the organizing committee which directed the recent steel strike, were denied admission to the forty-fifth annual convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of North America here today.

Fitzpatrick and Brown were returning to the west from Washington and had made formal request to appear before the convention, which has been in session several days. The delegates voted refusal, saying:

"This is no time to allow them to address the convention."

Examine the Boiler First

You know, if you live in an apartment, or a flat, that it is going to set you back a big wad of money this year. So make the most of your flat, old top. See that it is air-tight, water-tight, bug-tight, has a janitor who can say something besides "No;" and above all, see that it has a Kewanee Boiler.

As a matter of fact, the way this world is going, most any apartment is worth what you have to pay for it, if it is heated with a Kewanee. That boiler in the basement insures your having a warm, happy winter, even if the rent does remind you of the New York Bank clearances.

KEWANEE

Gee: How many of you suffered this last winter and spring because the heating plant in your building was N D G. The "N" means "No" and the "G" means "Good" Guess what the "D" means and when you get it, it will express what you thought when you didn't get the heat you were paying for.

When you rent an apartment this year, Look in the Basement First. Find the boiler. And be sure the name K-E-W-A-N-E-E is on it. If it is you can laugh and scamper around your little home in your "nightie," even in the middle of winter. If it isn't Mr. J. Frost will do the laughing and the scampering.

If you live to be as old as Methusaleh, always remember that the boiler either makes or breaks an apartment. And if you don't rent according to the boiler you are renting a lot of woe and worry for yourself.

Hulbert Buys RIGHT — Hulbert Sells on HONOR — Hulbert Charges No INTEREST

Riches and wealth are, today, within your grasp in Chicago Real Estate. Hulbert's big new 2nd Addition now open and on the market. Located on the beautiful northwest side. $35,000 worth sold the first day. This is the last tract near the loop. I bought this for cash at one-half of what I could buy it for today and will close it out in thirty days. This is very unusual and should be looked into. Terms: A small payment down and fifty cents a day—without interest—including sewer, water, cement sidewalks and shade trees. Thirty-five minutes from the loop — good transportation — schools — churches — parks and playgrounds. The enormous growth of Chicago has made the increased demand for real estate at this time and higher prices for the future are certain. Buy now and profit later. Send coupon for detailed information, including our new three colored map. There is no time like the present. Do it now.

THOMAS H. HULBERT, 81 E. Madison St., Chicago
Gentlemen: Without obligation on my part, please send me full information about your new development.

RK ANIMALS EADY TO TEACH CITY CHILDREN

ed Only Simple Text Books for Job.

BY EYE WITNESS.

ew York, May 8.—[Special.]—Over Lincoln park cage of one of the st specimens of tiger in captivity ear the two words:

SIBERIAN TIGER

hat, and nothing more.

Well, Siberia is a pretty big place—re than 2,000 miles across—and the word label leaves the uninformed der with a wide field of territory ignorance to range in.

So guide book or printed catalogue the 2,700 creatures inhabiting our supplements that label, because the coln park commission does not ge one. It says it can't afford it.

New York System Different.

In front of the three acres of island and water where the beavers build and play in the Bronx zoo ands an ample signboard painted een — green so that it won't clash th the foliage of the park—and lettered in black with these words:

AMERICAN BEAVER

(Castor Canadensis Fondator.)

The beaver now exists only in widely separated fragments of its former habitat. Found in Maine, the Colorado river delta, the Adirondacks (by restoration), and a few other localities. Plentiful only in the Algonquin park region of Canada and a few other localities.

Remarkable for its constructive ability in the building of canals and dams, the felling of trees, and the construction of winter houses. The original stock of this colony came from Algonquin National park, Ontario, Canada. Received May, 1912.

Supplementing that label are a couple of pages of entertaining narrative—not mere routine data—about beavers, their wonderful ways, and their unconquerable shyness—in a 200 page guide book prepared for the big public.

Easy Text for Children.

In the "Wild Animal Stamp Primer" prepared by the authorities of the park zoo for children, are two more pages about beavers, written, not in baby-pamby, but in graceful language, readily comprehended by a child.

The print is large. At the top of the first page about the beavers is an illustrated space, where the child may paste an authentic 2x3 inch beaver picture in colors after he has searched out in an oil paper packet of fifty similar pictures attached to the back cover of the book.

Both books are written in a singularly ingratiating, friendly style, and are packed with information. If an adult visitor thoroughly assimilated the contents of the larger guide book he would be a pretty decently informed zoologist. As for the primer for children, it is fascinating. I puttered away a whole evening pasting up one of them, and by the time I had finished I had learned as a Buffon.

Noted Scientist in Charge.

When I reached Dr. Hornaday's office on my way through the Bronx zoo, and there congratulated him on the system of labels—which is almost the first thing that captivates you in the wonderland, that is at the same time a school—he said:

"We have made a specialty of our labels. We tell all we can on them and are sorry we can't tell more."

When I confessed to him that we had no guidebook to our zoo, he looked half startled—and sort of irritated, too—and said, "that's too absurd!"—adding, "inexcusable!"

You see, Hornaday, the director and general curator of the Bronx zoo, is a man of science and an educator as well as a provider of public entertainment, and such an omission as ours in an institution on which we spend $75,000 a year irks him to the soul on the ground that it deprives the public of all the instruction and a large part of the entertainment.

He knows, as every instructor knows, that an object concerning which the beholder possesses not one iota of exact knowledge, takes but a feeble hold on either his imagination or his memory. So he spreads information unobtrusively, but everywhere through the park.

Easy Way to Learn.

As you are standing in front of the capacious rhinoceros your eyes wander involuntarily to a bright hued map that tells in a few bold colors where in the world the rhinoceros flourishes. You glance above the map and there is a sheet about the size of a TRIBUNE page which tells you in vigorous black lines how many kinds of rhinoceros there are, and what are its habitats, and how it is found in America only as a fossil remains, and how it lives well in captivity, and so on.

After that you feel as if you had got on a certain basis with the box headed and friendly creature in front of you.

The information has not been rubbed in. You just happened on it.

Little Old Polar Bear.

Same way about that polar bear, Silver King. He was captured with a lasso off Ellesmere Land, latitude 77 degrees north. He weighed 880 pounds upon arrival at the Bronx. Paul J. Rainey gave him. The record of growths in measurement and weight from period to period is an interesting feature of many of the labels.

Dr. Hornaday told me that the great point in making a zoo mean something more than a peepshow was to get the public past the stage where it comes and takes one look into a cage or a den and then passes on. He said that to understand an animal a man wants to see it again and again and take note of how and what it eats, and how it examines its food, and how it sleeps, and how it exercises itself, and how it behaves toward others of its kind, and how its coat varies with the seasons, and how its eyes may one time be cloudy and another time bright—and what that means—and how it behaves towards its keeper.

SEIZE FIVE MOROCCAN TOWNS.

MELILLA, Spanish Morocco, May 8.—Spanish troops commanded by Gen. Fernandez Silvestre yesterday occupied five new positions between Tlatz and Oarazugan. A squadron of airplanes assisted.

Joseph T. Talbert

Born Aug. 15, 1866. Died May 8, 1920.

Joseph T. Talbert, former Chicago banker, died yesterday of paralysis at his home in Pasadena, Cal. He had lived there since 1919. From 1897 to 1909 he was vice president of the Commercial National bank of Chicago, now the Continental and Commercial National bank. He was president of the Chicago Clearing House association in 1909. He then went to New York to accept the vice presidency of the National City bank. Mr. Talbert was for years one of the city's most eligible bachelors. He was a member of the Chicago and the University clubs. In 1917 he married Mrs. M. T. Gibson.

Chicago Pastor Attacks Bill in Congress.

BY THE REV. F. L. GRATIOT.

Des Moines, Ia., May 8.—[Special.]—The following subjects were included in the variety of resolutions inroduced in the Methodist quadrennial conference today:

Sabbath Observance in the District of Columbia, the Negro Immigration Northward, Maternal and Infant Welfare, Woman Suffrage, Postal Employés, Lynching, Unification Between the Methodist Church and the Methodist Episcopal South Church, Prohibition, and the Roman Catholic Church, Salaries of School Teachers, Industrial Courts, the Boxing Bill, and several others.

Denounces Boxing Bill.

Dr. W. R. Wedderspoon, pastor of St. James' Methodist church at Chicago, introduced a resolution condemning the boxing bill now before congress. He said the claims that it was merely the adaptation of army boxing to civilian life were false. He pointed out that it makes no safeguards such as were observed in army boxing, allows unlimited gambling, and aims for a knockout.

"We Methodist folks are not against any manly sport," said Dr. Wedderspoon, "but this is a nefarious plot against public morals."

Possibility of a crusade for a further constitutional amendment is foreshadowed in a resolution introduced today against cigarets.

Favor Bill for Mothers.

Mothers' day occasioned the passage of a resolution commending a bill in congress which provides for the care of mothers and children by the government. It is the Sheppard-Towner bill creating a federal board of maternal and infant hygiene. Ralph B. Urmey and James R. Joy of Newark conference introduced the resolution.

The woman suffrage amendment was also approved and immediate ratification by the states urged in a resolution introduced by U. G. Johnson of the Dakota conference.

E. E. Higley of Des Moines introduced a resolution urging that postal employés be given a bonus of "not less than $1,000 per employé annually."

Says Japs Lose Military Tastes.

Dr. Frank Herron Smith of Seoul, Korea, tonight said Japanese boys were no longer anxious to enter either the military or naval academy. He gave as further evidence that Japan is turning from militaristic tendencies the fact that the enormus war profits of that nation are being used to build twenty-nine new colleges, ten new universities, and to educate hundreds of Japanese young men, both at home and abroad, to assume professorships in these new institutions. He said the most popular word in Japan today is "demokurashi," which is the Japanese equivalent for democracy.

OBITUARY.

For Children's Sake

Test this new teeth-cleaning method

All statements approved by high dental authorities

Children's teeth are most important. Their whole lives will be affected by bad teeth. And rarely a child, under old methods, has escaped tooth troubles.

Glistening teeth appeal to adults, but with children the great question is proper tooth protection. Judge what this method means to children by what it does for you.

The enemy is film

Dental science has discovered that the teeth's great enemy is a viscous film. You can feel it with your tongue.

Film clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Then it discolors—sometimes tartar forms. And that film causes most tooth troubles.

It is that film-coat which discolors—not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also many other troubles are now traced to them.

Brush is inadequate

The ordinary tooth paste does not dissolve film. A soapy tooth paste even makes it more viscous. So the tooth brush has failed to end film. Millions know that well-brushed teeth discolor and decay.

Tooth troubles have been constantly increasing. So dental science has for years sought a way to combat film.

Now that way is found. Able authorities have proved its efficiency by careful clinical tests. Dentists have watched its results for years. And now leading dentists all over America are urging its daily use.

A new-day tooth paste has been developed, called Pepsodent. It meets every modern requirement. And this new film combatant is now embodied in it.

Applies a digestant

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to day by day combat it.

This method long seemed impossible. Pepsin must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. But a harmless activating method has been found, and now active pepsin can be twice-a-day applied.

Two other new requirements are met in Pepsodent, but its chief importance lies in action on this film.

Watch teeth whiten

The results of Pepsodent are evident and quick. Your mirror will soon show them. Then you will realize that those whiter teeth mean cleaner, safer teeth.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coat disappears. It will be a revelation.

Compare your teeth now with your teeth in ten days. Then judge the method which is best for you and yours.

Millions now talk Pepsodent

Millions of people are now using Pepsodent. You see them everywhere, and you can know them by their glistening teeth. These users, plus thousands of dentists, are fast bringing this new method into general use. Make your own test now. It is highly important. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

An Unusual Sale of Furniture

Save 20 to 30%

Unusual conditions due to the freight embargoes curtailed factory shipments to other cities and have enabled many of our nearby furniture factories to fill our orders, which were placed months ago, at old prices. The result is that we find our stocks of furniture unbalanced. All this surplus stock is placed on sale tomorrow, together with all odd and discontinued patterns. In some cases there may be just one of a kind.

Every piece of furniture is of standard Richardson quality and carries our guarantee of dependability. Your savings average fully 20 to 30% under prices based on replacement costs. The special reduced prices will not permit us to send any of the sale goods on approval, but you can have them reserved a reasonable time for future delivery. No mail or phone orders.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

MAY 9, 1920.

INDIANS BOMBARD 4 SOX PITCHERS AND WIN, 10 TO 6

Sixteen Hits, 6 Passes, 2 Errors, Tell Tale.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

By the simple process of hitting the ball, Tris Speaker's Indians were able to walk away with the fourth of the series yesterday, the White Sox being on the shy end of a 10 to 6 count. The visitors collected sixteen safe blows and also enjoyed the benefits accruing from six passes, two Sox errors and a balk.

LARRY GARDNER.

Gleason staged a regular parade of pitchers during the nine rounds of toil. Faber was the first offering but was off color and was yanked in the sixth. Dick Kerr took his place and proved a poor rescuer. He was walloped unmercifully in the seventh and George Payne relieved him and finally got the side out after the Indians had batted around and five of them had tallied. Grover Lowdermilk toiled in the two closing innings and proved the best of the lot although he, too, was scored on.

Meyers on Job Until Seventh.

Speaker started Elmer Myers, the tall, rangy right hander who once performed for Connie Mack. The Sox couldn't do much to the big fellow in the first six innings. In the seventh, however, he got careless with an eight run lead and Speaker finally chased him off the slab. "Lefty" Niehaus took the vacancy and the side was retired with only two runs across. Three more Sox scored in the ninth which was more or less of a joke session.

The Indians got down to business right in the first inning and never relinquished the advantage. Twb men scored in that session when Gardner doubled after Graney and Chapman had singled.

The Sox picked up their first tally in the second when Felsch singled, advanced on a passed ball, and raced home on Risberg's single. The Indians offset this count by scoring once in the fourth on Risberg's two base wild throw of Wamby's roller, a sacrifice and Myers' fly to Leibold. They picked up another in the fifth on a double by Speaker and single by Gardner. From this point the affair ceased to be serious.

Kerr Walloped in Seventh.

Kerr came on in time to relieve a distressing situation in the sixth, but in the seventh he fell into evil ways. For a starter he passed Speaker and Wood. Gardner then beat out a bunt to fill the bases. Wamby bounced to Kerr, who tossed to the plate to force Speaker. A double play was possible, but as Schalk drew back his arm to heave to first he dropped the ball.

With a trio of mates waiting to score, Johnston soaked a single to center, Wood and Gardner easing across the plate. Felsch fumbled the hit, so Wamby went to third. While Kerr was watching the runner on first Wamby stole home and this so confused Dick that he committed a balk, giving Johnson a lease on second base. O'Neil doubled to left and Johnston scored. The wallop finished Kerr and Payne came on, only to be greeted by Myers' single, sending O'Neill home. The next two batters flied out.

Felsch Starts Belated Rally.

Felsch opened the home seventh with a two-bagger past third and Jourdan walked. Risberg poked a bounder at Myers, who heaved wild to second, Felsch scoring and Jourdan going to third. Schalk walked, loading the sacks. Murphy batted for Payne and popped out. Jourdan scored on Leibold's roller to Johnston. Weaver walked and E. Collins started to do the same, but Speaker suddenly derricked Myers in favor of Niehaus. Eddie then lofted to Chapman.

Lowdermilk faced the Indians in the eighth and was a howling success, only three batters testing his wares. In the ninth, however, Grover began to act up and Johnston scored on his own sin gle, a fluky hit by Niehaus and Chapman's single.

Indians Generous in Ninth.

The runs collected by the Sox in their final stand were gifts, the Indians not extending themselves. Risberg opened with a single and went to second on a passed ball after the next two batters were retired. McMullin batted for Leibold and singled, scoring Risberg. McMullin ran from first to third, but the Indians refused to pay any attention to him. Weaver walked and when Chapman booted E. Collins' roller, McMullin scored. Weaver counted on a single by Jackson, after which Felsch made the last out. Score:

COLUMBIA MAN OVERBOARD AS NAVY CREWS WIN

Annapolis, Md., May 8.—Another big triumph was achieved by the naval academy here this afternoon when the three "middy crews" beat Columbia. The closest the visiting crews could get to the midshipmen in the three races was five lengths. The naval varsity eight won by five lengths in 7:19, the middy seconds by seven lengths in 7:25 4-5, and the "plebes" beat the New Yorkers by ten lengths in 7:49½ seconds.

Each Columbia crew outweighed its Middie rival. Cooper, No. 6 in the Columbia varsity, furnished a spectacular feature by jumping overboard. He disabled the outrigger, which threw his oar out of commission. To relieve the shell of his dead weight he jumped into the river and was picked up by a launch.

NOTES

Indians and Sox again today. It will be the last game on the south side lot until June 4.

The Sox go east tonight for their first swing around the seaboard. The invasion opens at New York Tuesday. Before coming home again the Sox will play in six cities of the circuit.

Niehaus shouldn't have had a single in the ninth. The ball was bounced to Weaver, who ran half way across the diamond before making the throw. When he did toss it was too late.

Faber went to the slab with only a two day rest, and evidently it was not enough. Manager Gleason used him because there was no other choice.

Speaker will come back with Stanley Coveleskie today. Covey pitched the first of the series, and has won six straight this season.

Although the day was decidedly chilly, fully 18,000 fans were present to see their favorites take a mauling.

Faber couldn't pitch to Steve O'Neill. Red gave up only three passes and Steve got all of them.

Joe Wood horned into the game in Cleveland's seventh, when he took Smith's place at bat. Smith was taken out to give the Indians one more right handed hitter against Kerr.

Notes

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 8.—[Special.]—Home tomorrow—same teams.

Cubs and Pirates left tonight on the same rattler for Chicago to conclude their set with one battle on the north side.

The Mitchells got an even break with the Pirates and won two of three from the Reds, giving them four wins and three defeats on the trip.

This was the third game of the season Vaughn has pitched and won with his own bat.

Another haul of gamblers from Forbes field yesterday raised the total fines, accruing to the city this season from Barney Dryfuss' crusade aginst betting, almost to $6,000. The local authorities are coöperating effectively with the Pirate owner in suppressing gambling at the park.

Carey started to steal second in the third inning, but got such a poor start he turned back when he saw Killifer peg the ball, and returned safely to first base.

Unless it rains on Sunday the Cubs will have an open date Monday. The first eastern invasion of Cub park will begin on Tuesday with Brooklyn as the vanguard.

VAUGHN'S TRIPLE IN NINTH GIVES CUBS 4-1 BATTLE

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 8.—[Special.]—Hippo Vaughn added another to his 1920 series of personal triumphs today when he beat the Pirates in the final game of the set by a score of 4 to 1.

Hippo not only pitched a shutout game, in which the only Pirate run was scored on an error, but he broke it up with a three base drive in the ninth round, when the bases were loaded with Cubs and two were already out. Earl Hamilton opposed Hippo on the slab and gave the Cubs a lot of trouble, but they would have licked him without the aid of Vaughn's bat if Whitted had not pulled a miraculous double play unassisted in the second round.

Terry's Triple Scores Deal.

Each team squandered a hit in the first round. Hollocher singled with one Cub out and stuck around Grimm town while Paskert skied and Barber rolled out. Carey led in the Pirate half with a single. Cutshaw forced him out, then stole second and went to third on Whitted's out, only to be left there.

The Cubs broke the ice in the second in spite of highway robbery by Whitted. Deal walked with one gone. Terry pushed a three bagger over first base, scoring Deal. Killefer slammed a liner toward left, Whitted reached out and the ball stuck in his mitt giving him a cinch double play on Terry.

Deserves Shutout Win.

The visitors had scored one run on a pass and Terry's triple before this stab happened. That would have been enough for Vaughn if Hollocher had not fumbled a chance to retire the side in the sixth, giving Pittsburgh a run which tied the score.

That knot lasted until two were gone in the Cub ninth, then a pair of scratch hits by Deal and Terry and a pass to O'Farrell filled the bases, setting the stage for Vaughn to win his own game. He cleared the arena with a triple, and the rest was easy.

They robbed us again in the third when Southworth raced back and picked a long drive by Flack out of the air with one hand, but there was nobody on at the time. In the other half Carey singled with one gone. Cutshaw flied, Whitted walked, but Southworth flew out.

Cub Chance Wasted.

Chicago wasted a bully chance in the sixth. Flack began it with a two bagger past third. Hollocher's out advanced him to third, but Paskert fouled and Barber grounded out.

Pittsburgh tied the score in their sixth with the help of two errors. Whitted walked, went to second on Southworth's sacrifice, and made third on a wild throw by Vaughn. Nicholson struck out. Caton was safe on Hollocher's fumble, scoring Whitted. The decision at first was so close that Killefer kicked himself out of the game. O'Farrell put on the mask and nailed Caton stealing.

Hippo Wins Own Game.

Both teams went out in order in the seventh, but in the next chapter the Cubs lost another fine opening. O'Farrell broke off a single and Vaughn sacrificed him to second. Flack fanned and Hollocher walked, but Paskert hit softly to Hamilton.

"Vaughn broke the tie himself in the ninth. Two were out when Deal and Terry beat out scratch hits toward third. O'Farrell was passed intentionally to bring up Vaughn. Hippo walloped a long fly to left center for three bases, driving in three runs. Flack rolled the side out.

In the Wake of the News

THE KENTUCKY DERBY.

THE Kentucky Derby, run at Churchill Downs yesterday, is more than a horse race to the citizens of Louisville and the Blue Grass state. Inaugurated in 1875, it has become an institution, or a classic event, as the turf writers prefer to call it.

For the Kentuckian it combines both sentiment and business. The Blue Grass country long has been known for the quality of its thoroughbred horses, and their every success under silks adds to the prestige of the breeding farms, and, incidentally, adds to the breeding revenues.

For a Kentucky bred colt to win the great 3 year old event in competition against the best youngsters bred in California, or the east or abroad, is the wish of every Kentuckian, and this sentiment is carried to their wagers.

In a state where the horse is loved for itself, as well as for what it will bring, public opinion sanctions wagers upon the outcome. It is part of the day just as was the Derby pool in "Tom Brown's School Days." These wagers, many of them, are largely sentiment as compared to the more sordid wagering in localities where racing is simply a means for gambling. The breeding of the winner and the chance of his becoming a great sire are more important than the odds to the true Blue Grass partisan.

Derby Day is a great day in Kentucky.

It once was in Chicago. Speed the return of that day!

Well, One's Born Every Minute.

Dear Wake: Kindly advise me how often the Masonic Temple has been sold. I have checked up the Momence, Ill., and Battle Creek, Mich., purchasers who were piloted by Mr. Doc Donahue, now enjoying the table d'hote furnished by Warden Murphy at the state's Spa on the C. and A., but a La Salle street impresario informs me I am several chips shy. Something Similar.

Lord Byron, you will plainly see,
In some respects, was quite like me:
He loved his licker, and was fond
Of ladies, both brunet and blonde;
He was a democratic bird
In principle, so I have heard;
He craved the spotlight glare, and when
He wrote, he shook a sassy pen.

I'm egotistic, but admit
That so far he's the bigger hit;
He's got it on me, yes, you bet,
Except in this: I'm living yet!
Although for speed he beat my time,
We started off, at least, in rime:
He spent his youth in Aberdeen,
And I grew up in Abilene!

Market Letter.

Greater stability prevailed last week as bankers began to pan the panic. Their interest in the interest rate, however, was maintained. It's now seven and may come eleven. We still advise caution.

U. S. Alcohol was steadily absorbed. Baldwin Loco drives one that way. Loft Candy, after going up, went down. There was a cleanup by Great Lakes Dredge.

Sell Carp Caviar short. It looks fishy.

OHIO STATE NINE TRIMS PURDUE IN LOOSE 10-2 FRAY

Columbus, O., May 8.—[Special.]—Ohio State took advantage of Wagner's wildness today and pounded out hits at opportune times, netting ten runs while Purdue's batsmen were working hard to get two. Kime for the Buckeyes was wild, but effective with men on the bases, and was aided by some stellar fielding.

COLUMBIA WINS WITH SAME SLIPS AS MARK BIG TEN

Eastern Collegians Beat Cornell Nine, 6-4.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Ithaca, N. Y., May 8.—[Special.]—Eastern college boys seem to get fussed in a game of ball just as often as they do in the west. It would have been a close and hot contest here today between Cornell and Columbia if all the boys had possessed the cool heads of big leaguers. Cornell was a trifle more fussed than Columbia, so the latter won, 6 to 4. Without any "blowing up" Columbia would have won about 1 to 0.

There was plenty of natural ability and athletic prowess on each team, perhaps a bit more than one would find on any of the western colleges except Michigan, or possibly Illinois. There was a great hurler for Columbia, a six foot two giant named Meany, with wonderful speed, who probably would rival Capt. Parks of Michigan for slab honors. But there was plenty of bad baseball—more than Michigan would be apt to execute in any one game.

Score in Businesslike Way.

Columbia produced the first run in the third inning with such neatness and dispatch that I thought it must be an unusual bunch of collegians. The first man was hit by the ball. The next tried to bunt him along, but fouled out to the catcher. The next batter popped up, and then the man on first went through with a pretty steal of second, coming home when the following batter drove a single to left field. There was a run produced like they do in the big show.

A few minutes later Columbia failed to do the right thing in its defense and did not look so good. After two Cornell men were out in the fourth, Ensworth reached third on a wild throw to first, and Cross drew a pass. With the tying run on third and the winning run on first, the Columbia fellows let Cross steal second without even making a play for him.

Pay for Omisson.

That put two men where they could score on a hit and two would not only tie, but put Cornell one to the good. When a moment later the batter delivered a hit and sent them both home, I thought Columbia must have learned a lesson, but durn if the same thing didn't come up in the sixth and once more they let the man on first steal without a play.

It can't be they teach baseball that way in the college on Columbia has a veteran name ckley on the job and Cornell has Henry, who was catcher at Washington for years.

Numerous errors were made but they are always excusable. Capt. Murphy of Cornell at first base makes one think of "Stuffy" McGinnis in his fielding, not in his batting. "Sammy" Weinstein at short for Columbia looks like he might be a Buck Herzog some day.

ST. LOUIS TAKES 11 INNING SCRAP; BEATS REDS, 5-4

Two Hits and a Sacrifice End Overtime Game.

St. Louis, Mo., May 8.—St. Louis defeated Cincinnati, 5 to 4, in an eleven inning game today. The winning run was scored on singles by Lavan and Clemons, and Smith's long fly to Roush. Ring forced over the tying run in the ninth when he walked Smith, sending Fournier home. Manager Moran of the champions was sent to the clubhouse in the eleventh by Umpire Rigler for arguing when the latter refused to allow Groh to take his base after he claimed he had been hit on the hand by a pitched ball.

MAROONS ON TOP IN TRACK GAMES AGAINST PURDUE

Harris Star of Meet with Eleven Points.

Handicapped by the absence of Charley Higgins, the star weight man who is nursing a strained muscle in his right shoulder, Chicago opened its local track and field season yecsterday on Stagg field by defeating Purdue in an interesting dual meet, 73½ to 61½.

Higgins' loss was felt severely as Miller of Purdue scored fifteen points by winning the shot put, javelin and discus throws with mediocre marks. The boilermaker topped these performances with a victory in the running broad jump which made him the individual star with 20 points. McGregor aided materially by scoring twelve points for the Boilermakers.

Harris Best Performer.

Harris was Chicago's best performer. The Maroon won first places in the 100 and 220 yard dashes and finished third in the quarter mile for a total of eleven points. Harris took the century in 10 1-5 and the furlong in 23.

The running of Otis of Chicago in the two mile was one of the features. Previous to starting in the long race, Otis had won the mile after an interesting fight with Furnas of Purdue. When the gun was fired to denote the last lap for the two mile run, Otis was fifty yards back of Moore of Chicago, the leader. On the backstretch Otis turned loose all his reserve and won second place by inches over Stevick of Purdue.

Maroons Pick Up Points.

Chicago's victory, however, was due mainly to the winning of second and third places. Performances in some events were good but the others only mediocre. Summaries:

ILLINOIS BUMPS MICHIGAN MEN ON TRACK, 90-44

Well Balanced Team Wins Games at Ann Arbor.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 8.—[Special.]—Illinois, with men who placed in every event and taking all three places in four events, was an easy victor over Michigan in the dual track meet today, 90½ to 44½. The absence of Johnson, Losch, and Burkholder told heavily against Michigan, but it is doubtul if the Wolverines could have won even had they been able to compete. Every man from Illinois was a star. Summaries:

100 yard dash—Won by Cook, Michigan; Lashmet, Michigan, second; Nagle, Illinois, third. Time, :10 2-5.

One mile run—Whortman, Illinois, and Yates, Illinois, tied for first; Caskey, Illinois, third. Time, 4:33 2-5.

220 yard dash—Won by Emery, Illinois; Butler, Michigan, second; Cook, Michigan, third. Time, :22 2-5.

120 yard hurdles—Won by Beardsley, Michigan; Wallace, Illinois, second; Kenney, Illinois, third. Time, :16.

440 yard run—Won by Emery, Illinois; Sprink, Illinois, second; Wetzel, Michigan, third. Time, :49 3-5.

Two mile run—Won by Dusenberry, Illinois; Maynord, Michigan, second; Allman, Illinois, third. Time, 9:58 3-5.

220 yard hurdles—Won by Beardsley, Michigan; Wallace, Illinois, second; Prescott, Illinois, third. Time, :25 2-5.

Half mile run—Won by W. Brown, Illinois; D. Brown, Illinois, second; Schuh, Illinois, third. Time, 1:57 4-5.

Shotput—Won by Baker, Michigan; Weiss, Illinois, second; Cannon, Illinois, third. Distance, 43 feet 11¼ inches.

Pole vault—Won by Buchanan, Illinois; Slaughter, Michigan, second; Wesbrook, Michigan, third; Cross, Michigan, and Howard, Illinois, tied for third. Height, 11 feet 6 inches.

Discus throw—Won by Weiss, Illinois; Wilson, Illinois, second; Bennett, Illinois, third. Distance, 133 feet 3 inches.

High jump—Osborn, Illinois, and Later, Michigan, tied for first; Howard, Illinois, and Rae, Michigan, tied for third. Height, 5 feet 10 inches.

Hammer throw—Won by Bennett, Illinois; Wilson, Illinois, second; Later, Michigan, third. Distance, 144 feet.

Broad jump—Won by Wesbrook, Michigan; Osborn, Illinois, second; Overbee, Illinois, third. Distance, 22 feet ¼ inch.

Javelin throw—Won by Brede, Illinois; Wilson, Illinois, second; Bennett, Illinois, third. Distance, 158 feet 2 inches.

Boston College Captures Intercollegiate Title Meet

Springfield, Mass., May 8.—Boston college won the eastern intercollegiate [New England] A. A. annual track and field championships today, leading Springfield college by one point, 33 to 32, in the totals. New Hampshire, with 24 points, and Holy Cross, with 21, finished third and fourth. Colgate, last year's winner, gained only two points. Other colleges scoring were:

Stevens, 11; St. Lawrence, 8; Worcester Polytechnic institute and Massachusetts Agricultural college, 5 each; Trinity and Middlebury, 4 each; Hobart, 3, and Tufts and Rhode Island State, 1 each.

WOLVERINE NET SQUAD WINNER.

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 8.—[Special.]—Michigan tennis players were victors in today's dual contests with Ohio State, 5 matches to 1.

STAGGS TO MEET PRINCETON MEN ON THE GRIDIRON

Plan Home-Home Combats in 1921 and 1922.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

The dream of the east meeting the west on the gridiron with representative elevens for sectional supremacy has been realized with the scheduling of home and home games between Chicago and Princeton in 1921 and 1922. The first game will be played in the Tigers' lair and the second on Stagg field. Both contests will be played in mid-season, probably on the last Saturdays in October.

Slating of these games is one of the biggest events in modern football history. It will be the first time that Princeton has ever left home to meet an opponent except Yale, Harvard, Army, and the Navy. Until Harvard journeyed to the coast last winter to meet Oregon, no member of the Big Three has ever played away from home except to meet its ancient rivals.

Finally Get Together.

It developed yesterday that Princeton has been eager to enter into a home and home contract with Chicago for years. Back in 1915, T. W. Cloney, alumni representative on the Princeton athletic board of control, tried to arrange a series of two games, but was unsuccessful. Mr. Cloney did not give up in his efforts.

On April 20, Cloney, who is no longer on the athletic board, and G. R. Murray, graduate manager, came west especially to see Stagg. The matter was talked over thoroughly, and Stagg agreed to the contest, but said he would have to take it up with the athletic bzoard at the Maroon institution. The matter was placed before the board on April 27, and this body gave its unanimous consent.

O. K. by President Judson.

Director Stagg held another conference with Murray at the Penn relays on May 1, but before entering into a final agreement wanted to take the matter up with President Judson. This was done last week, and the Maroon executive readily sanctioned the action of the board.

BRIEF BITS OF SPORT.

NEW YORK.—England's great relay team, which made a world's record in the two mile race in Philadelphia last Saturday, sailed home on the Lapland. Col. A. N. S. Jackson, manager of the team, and Alfred Shrubb, trainer, remained for a visit. Col. Jackson will attempt to get the consent of Harvard, Penn, Yale and Cornell to enter the Oxford-Cambridge meet in England next summer. If he can secure a position as coach with some American university Shrubb will remain. Before leaving, Jeppe, the Oxford hurdler, said he would return to America this fall to enter Massachusetts Tech. He is a Rhodes scholar from South Africa.

LOS ANGELES.—A new national interscholastic record for the 440 yard relay race was established by Los Angeles high school, which made the distance in 45 2-5, bettering by 1 2-5 seconds the record of 46 4-5 seconds held by University high of Chicago since June 11, 1910.

NEW YORK.—May 8.—Pete Herman of New Orleans, bantamweight champion, will engage in two bouts this week, opposing Jabez White of Albany in an eight round bout at Philadelphia Monday night, and contracting for a bout at Scranton, Pa., Wednesday, against Earl Puryear of St. Paul.

ITHACA, N. Y.—Mercersburg academy, with 47½ points, for the third consecutive time won the interscholastic track meet here this afternoon and became the favorite to gain possession of the Cornell cup next season. Twelve schools competed.

SAN FRANCISCO.—A court fight to determine the rights of Pitchers Tom Seaton and Casey Smith was foreshadowed by statements from Manager Charles Graham of the local Coast league club and Seaton. Graham said he would welcome an opportunity to prove in court that he was justified in releasing the two players unconditionally for the good of baseball. Both players have retained attorneys.

VICTORY FORCED ON NOTRE DAME

Notre Dame, Ind., May 8.—[Special.]—A pass to George Gipp in the ninth inning with three men on bases enabled Notre Dame to defeat Michigan Aggies, 11 to 10. Both teams were strong at bat, but Notre Dame excelled on defense. Score:

Notre Dame	1	1	0	1	0	5	0	2	1	—11
Mich. Aggies	3	0	0	1	0	1	0	5	0	—10

ANDERSON ROLLS FIRST IN SINGLES IN STATE PIN PLAY

Rex Team Gets 3d Place with 2,818.

A. Anderson of the Rex league jumped into first place in the singles at the state bowling tournament at the Randolph alleys. His counts were 223, 233, and 197. He was the only new leader to show.

The Rex team did the best shooting in the main event, with 2,818, which is third high. The Dernbach brothers, William and George, took first in the doubles with 1,176. Scores:

What if the country is dry?

One day last Fall when I was having dinner with an old friend, he asked me if I wanted a bottle of beer. It certainly tasted like more and I drank several bottles; each tasted better than the one before.

Later in the evening he told me it wasn't beer at all, but Buck—made by taking out the alcohol by a superior process that leaves every bit of that good old flavor.

Say, I wouldn't believe it! He had to prove it to me by showing me the bottle and the case of Buck down in the cellar. It certainly had me fooled.

Now I keep a case of Buck on hand all the time. It has everything I ever wanted in real beer; it satisfies, it's great with meals and a dandy bracer on a sweltry, hot day. What's more, the doctor recommended it for my wife as a tonic and it does us all a lot of good.

So what of it if the country IS dry? Buck is good enough for me—and it'll be just what you want, too. Try a bottle and you'll decide you'll want a case at home. Look for the name, Buck, on the crown cap.

BAT LEVINSKY MIXES BRAINS WITH PUNCHES

Veteran Battler Finds Gray Matter Useful.

BY RAY PEARSON.

Barney Williams, better known in ringdom as Battling Levinsky, is a mild mannered, pleasant sort of a chap who possesses considerable intelligence. He demonstrates that not only in the ring but outside, but because he adopted the profession of swatting other fellows on the chin doesn't mean that he is less human than those who earn their living at less precarious professions.

Perhaps as good an example as any other mental attitude of Levinsky while working at his chosen occupation may be gained from a bit of conversation between Levinsky and Tony Melichar, who fought at Kenosha a few days ago. Bat, a winner in nearly every round came to the middle of the ring to shake hands with Melichar for the tenth and final round, with a smile adorning his face.

No Feeling Against Opponent.

There isn't any hard feeling, is there?" spoke Levinsky softly.

"No, none at all," answered Melichar. "It's all in the game."

A few seconds later Levinsky sat on the canvas to which he had been knocked by a left hand jolt by Melichar. Levinsky didn't take the count, but got up and dealt retaliation to Tony in relentless fashion.

Levinsky incidentally is not without humor. In the sixth round he let a right haymaker fly at Melichar's head. Tony was out of range, and the blow shot through the atmosphere at lightning speed, but missed by more than a foot. Missing his target that far amused Levinsky, who dropped his hands to his side, grunted "zowie," and had a good laugh at his own expense. Melichar had to laugh, too.

Make Friends Swapping Punches.

"Friendly enemies" of the ring, Levinsky and Melichar didn't close their acquaintance with the punching in the ring. Mooching along to the railway station after the fight, I saw a couple of big fellows standing on the platform, one with a puffed face, the other not looking as if he had been in a scrap. They were Melichar and Levinsky.

Levinsky, the veteran of the ring, was giving Tony a bit of advice, which Melichar is sure to heed, and which may help him move upward in this pugilistic business.

In this game of fisticuffs which requires brains just as well as any other sport we have had scrappers of many races. White and Negro boxers we have had a-plenty, and we also have had some Indian and Filipino glove wielders; but whoever heard of a Chinese fighter? Whoever heard of a Chinese boxer as contender for a title?

Pretty Fair Boxer.

No one ever heard of one until now, and probably never would have, were it not for the presence in this country of George Lee, a Mongolian bantamweight. Lee is being touted as a championship possibility in California, where he is located at present. This wee Chinese boxer has beaten some of the best boys in the four rounders held in the coast state, and among his achievements is a draw with Bud Ridley, who is considered the best bantam on the coast. Georgie is considered good enough for main events.

EVERS TO ASSIST M'GRAW AS PILOT

ILLINOIS STATE SEINING CREW AT PISTAKEE LAKE

Fisheries Department Proves to Doubting Anglers That Catches Are Still Possible Near Chicago.

"FISHED OUT" LAKES AND OTHER SUBJECTS.

YOU can go to almost any section of the United States and find lakes or rivers reputed to be "fished out." Every old "resident" in the district will tell you how plentiful fish used to be and how they have "all been cleaned out" in recent years.

These tales of fishing in other days persist mostly in much fished regions. Take the Fox lake region in northern Illinois as an example of this. Here we have eight sizable lakes with a fine river for the inlet and outlet, immense weed beds, deep holes, rocky ledges, and everything suitable for fish life. These waters, being near Chicago, are fished heavily, and sometimes anglers are disappointed, as is to be expected; fish do not bite all the time in any waters, and this has convinced many that the lakes are "fished out."

The other day the writer and a staff photographer journeyed to the Fox lake region to witness the state fisheries department haul their seine. The haul was made in Pistakee lake, and, while the results were below the average, due to cold water, enough fish were caught to convince any angler that the fish are there. Innumerable bass, and big ones; pickerel up to ten pounds; crappies averaging a pound, and lots of them; blue gills almost as big; white bass; channel cats; carp up to thirty-five pounds; to say nothing of red horse, dogfish, gars, and other minor leaguers.

The Illinois fisheries department has a sane policy in its seining operations. Instead of following the old way of taking game fishes from where they are plentiful and putting them where they are scarce, only a few breeders are taken from any one piece of water, and these are put in the breeding ponds at the Spring Grove hatchery, where the young will be raised, instead of being eaten by other fish.

Several millions of bass will be raised here this season, as well as crappies and other game fishes.

VANITIE SHOWS SPEED IN FIRST CUP TRIAL SPIN

Crew Cheered by Showing of American Boat.

New York, May 8.—[Special.]—Despite a brisk southeasterly blow and rain, the America's cup defense candidate Vanitie made its initial trial spin of the season late this afternoon off City island.

George Nichols, rear commodore of the New York Yacht club and managing director of the trim, Gardner-designed, bronze single sticker, took the wheel, and Earling Burgess and C. Sherman Hoyt, two of the Vanitie's regular afterguard, were along. Only the mainsail and jib were carried.

This is the first spin Vanitie has had in four years, and although it was brief the craft was out long enough to enthuse the already enthusiastic crew, as the result of the speed shown under unfavorable conditions.

SHAMROCK DESIGNER SAILS.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, May 8.—Charles E. Nicholson, designer of Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV., sailed for New York today on the Mauretania, lamenting that Shamrock III. was still weatherbound at Falmouth, thus preventing tuning up races with the challenger. Nicholson declared W. P. Burton, skipper of Shamrock IV., to be the best amateur yachtsman in the world and added that Sir. Thomas had given himself and Burton a free hand in creating the new challenger.

Senn High Students in Finals of Mat Tourney

Senn High students held the finals in their school wrestling tournament, the winners in each class receiving medals. The school is the first of the city to take up the mat game as a regular sport. Winners:

Featherweight—Brown [78 pounds] threw Freter [75] in 1:45.
Lightweight—Livinston [118] won by default from Kaub [118].
Middleweight—McGillivray [131] threw Richardson [132] in :40.
Heavyweight—Dresser [150] threw Denney [155] in 6:10.

TWO TIE FOR TOP IN CITY CUE PLAY

With two games each yet to play, Jim Shea of the Ace and the Morin-Kenney combination of the Recreation room are tied for first place in the Chicago Billiard league. Each has 14 wins and 6 losses. Augie Kieckhefer, who lost one game last week, is third with 14 wins and 7 losses.

Bert Tredick, scored two victories and landed in fourth place with 12 wins and 9 losses, passing Ben Klatcher, who has 12 victories and 9 defeats. Tredick has finished his season and is tied with Dougherty of Hart's, who won three games last week and finished 13-9.

CANCEL SHARKEY-LOADMAN BOUT

Milwaukee, Wis., May 8.—[Special.]—The Dick Loadman-Jack Sharkey fight, scheduled for next Tuesday, was declared off by the boxing commission today after it had inspected Sharkey's mauler, injured in a fight a week ago.

Pugilistic Pointers by Ray Pearson

WHEN Capt. Bob Martin and Sergt. Ray Smith clash in their ten round bout under the auspices of the American Legion at Kansas City tomorrow, the third man in the ring will be the Rev. Earl Blackburn. Rev. Blackburn is chaplain of the 35th division of the United States army, and his efforts as referee will be watched with interest by the fans.

Another show tomorrow is listed at Springfield with a windup in which the performers will be Willie Green, the ex-navy lightweight, and Jack Lawler of Omaha. Leo Patterson, an A. E. F. champion, is billed to meet George Ford of Peoria in the semi-windup. The show is being promoted by Johnny Connors.

LUTHER COLLEGE TENNIS VICTOR.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., May 8.—[Special.]—The tennis team of Luther college of Iowa defeated Campion college, two matches to one.

EASTERNER TIES TRAP RECORD IN NATIONAL EVENT

New York, May 8.—J. Clark Jr. of Worcester, Mass., won the fifteenth annual national trapshooting championship at Travers Island today, and equaled the record of 197 of a possible 200 breaks. Clark made a straight run of 135. A field of 155 competed in the event through a driving rainstorm.

The five man team match between the New York A. C. and Boston A. A. resulted in a tie at 1,887.

The first ten in the national match: Jay Clark Jr., Worcester, Mass., 100—97—197.
E. S. Staples, Boston A. A., 95—100—195.

National SEXTET

BUILT IN FIVE CUSTOM BODY MODES

Enduring Beauty That Only a Coach Finish Can Give

A month in the paint shop!

That amount of time is profitably spent in imparting a custom coach finish to the custom-styled body of the National Sextet.

And because that body progresses, slowly and systematically, through twenty-four distinct finishing operations, the Sextet's color and its lustre withstand the punishment of sun and rain, of winter's cold and engine heat.

Time and its careful employment, in fact, are the most essential elements in the fine finish of this fine, smart, low car.

It takes time to apply paint and varnish with a brush. Haste would minimize the skill of hands that spread each coat so deftly and so evenly.

It takes time to dry this paint and varnish in ovens where both the heat and the humidity are accurately controlled. Yet such thorough drying alone can give to the finish of an automobile body both that metallic hardness which makes for endurance and the elasticity to withstand expansion and contraction due to seasonal changes in temperature.

It takes time, too, to rub out by hand every hair-fine ripple and leave the body surface glassy smooth.

Sextet bodies, of course, are sand-blasted before painting and only the finest pigments, oils and varnishes are used.

Each operation is performed by experienced craftsmen, who have become proficient in their individual tasks through specialization in the one and only operation for which they are held accountable for perfection.

The adage of the old copy books—time is precious—is all very well, but in every department of the National factories, quality and the satisfaction born of it have even a higher rating.

The time taken in making the National Sextet fine has endowed this car with an excellence that successfully challenges time.

Behind the "FAIRBANKS O. K."

MORE—much more—than the goods themselves comes to you when you order from us. The "FAIRBANKS O. K." means accurate knowledge of everything mechanical; intelligent advice when you ask for it; ability to supply your need from a bare market. By such service this Branch House backs up the national reputation of The Fairbanks Company.

For a factory or warehouse truck, a gasoline or oil engine, or a valve for water, steam or air, you can come to us with certainty of satisfaction. If you want a machine tool for some special purpose, a shafting layout to drive it, a Lincoln electric motor for power, our experts in each line will select what will serve you best. Louden overhead conveyors, mechanics' tools, railway supplies, automobile repair equipment are other lines equally guaranteed by the "FAIRBANKS O. K." tag.

Ample stocks are not the only reason why wise buyers are centralizing their buying here. A call will show you what real eagerness to serve means in convenience to you.

Our Mammoth Operations!

The intensive operations of Harris Brothers Company, owners of the Chicago House Wrecking Company, are world famous. We purchase complete factories, railroads and commercial institutions. Besides these, our purchases of Government Merchandise are bound to be of interest to you.

¶ The completion of big deals, which are successfully handled by us with clocklike regularity, brings enormous stocks of merchandise and supplies of every description to us, secured below regular market prices. In addition to our regular operations we are extensively engaged in purchases from the United States and Foreign Governments of Army Camps, merchandise and supplies.

¶ Innumerable leading commercial establishments readily recognize the value of our company as a source of securing staple and standard supplies with profit and satisfaction. They never think of buying until our vast stocks are consulted. This announcement outlines in a brief way the more important of our recent purchases from the Government and other sources. The material is all of a class and quality unusually attractive just now, and our quick sale methods present lowest prices, offering you dependable material with big economy.

Twenty-eight years of honest dealing have gained an enviable reputation for us.

Army Training Camps!

Our purchase of big, well equipped Army Training Camps from the United States Government enables us to make quick delivery at attractive prices on the following material:

LUMBER AND MILL WORK

RAILROAD SUPPLIES — ELECTRICAL APPARATUS
PIPE—VALVES—FITTINGS — HEATING SUPPLIES
PLUMBING MATERIAL — POWER PLANT EQUIPMENT

Complete Buildings for Immediate Delivery

At each of these camps we have thousands of buildings that were used for the purpose of warehouses, barracks, infirmaries, stables, mess halls, power plants and the like. We offer you an opportunity to visit these camps and select and purchase outright such buildings as are suitable for your purpose, and if you will buy the building as it stands we will make you a price accordingly.

If you prefer to buy your lumber, sash and doors and such other building material as you may require loaded on board cars, the purchase can be effected in that manner. In either event, do not overlook your chance to buy staple building materials at such a time at a price that is bound to mean a considerable saving to you. Add to this the fact that you can obtain prompt delivery.

Chicago's Greatness Backs These First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds

Paying 6, 6½ and 7 Per Cent Interest

CHICAGO—already great among the metropolises of the world—is your sound and safe security behind Hool First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds—never placed on any but high grade Chicago business and residential property, all profitably rented. Their present and future safety is as sound as Chicago's present greatness and future greater growth.

Under the Hool Plan these First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds are made even more secure by our exclusive method of personally managing, during the term of the loan, the property securing the bonds. Businesslike management and prompt payment of interest and principal — payable ahead of all other charges—are thus guaranteed.

The Chicago Title & Trust Company is always trustee and guarantees title to every loan. No mortgage is accepted for more than 60% of the value of the property—nearly double the loan. Every Hool bond is a part of a direct First Mortgage on Chicago buildings, fully rented, and with an annual income four times the average annual interest on the bonds. The Normal Income tax is paid by us. The bonds mature serially, thereby yearly increasing the security behind the bonds and affording you choice of maturities.

In Hool First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds you are absolutely assured of a steady income and certain, prompt return of the principal, unaffected by financial disturbances—an investment free from all care and worry—as safe as Chicago. Send for booklet B, "14 Points of Safety."

You Now Can Buy These Safe Bonds in Your Own Neighborhood.

We have now made arrangements whereby you may purchase Hool Realty Co. First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds from our special representative, right in your own neighborhood.

You may transact all business with these representatives with the same feeling of security as you would in our downtown central office. For we have carefully chosen each of these representatives, and we will be fully responsible to you. Every representative is a responsible, trustworthy business house—the type of firm that is glad to be associated with such sound securities.

This new Hool Plan is another step in advanced conservative finance in bringing within the reach of every home—both in convenience and easy methods of payment—the highest grade, soundest securities. For you may now purchase these bonds in denominations from $50 up on the easy payment plan. Interest begins with first payment. For full information apply—without obligation—to any of the following

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Grain prices continue to fluctuate in a most erratic manner. News developments are ignored and bulges and breaks, on the whole, reflect the operations of the local element. In the main the latter are bearish and get short on the minor breaks, finding offerings limited when they try to cover.

Corn had a range of 2¼@3c for the day, and, while fractionally higher than the previous day's close at one time, finished well toward the bottom with net losses of 1⅝@1¾c. Oats were ¾@1¼c lower. Rye gained ¼@1⅞c, the latter on May, while barley was 1c lower.

All grains sold at new high figures on the crop during the last week. Net gains on corn, as compared with a week ago, were 3¾@14¾c, the latter on May, while oats were up ⅞@3¼c, rye 6⅞@10c, and barley 4c. September showed the least advance in corn and oats.

Rail Tieup Big Factor.

Excellent weather conditions for field work and plant growth prevailed over the belt and the forecast was generally fair, with temperatures above normal for this week. The strike and car situations are still the dominating influences in the markets, however, and until there is a material change in conditions rapid price changes are expected.

Local traders got short corn on an early break and covered, only to be forced to sell out toward the last, due to week end realising through commission houses. Oats followed corn, but have been showing a heavy undertone, as crop prospects are a factor, especially in the September.

Strength in cash corn had some effect on sentiment, as prices were unchanged to 2c higher, with No. 2 yellow up to $2.06, a new high for the season. The east cancelled corn and oats. In both instances the grain could not be shipped.

Provision Support Fair.

Buying of provisions was mainly by shorts and by a few investors. Offerings were light early and larger later, after a small advance.

BIG SHORTAGE ON WINTER WHEAT, SAYS U.S. REPORT

A winter wheat crop of 485,000,000 bu was suggested by the government report for May, given out late yesterday. It was about as the trade expected, being 1,000,000 bu more than the April showing. In May last year the estimate was 900,000,000 bu and the final harvest returns 732,000,000 bu. The loss of acreage was 4,605,000, or 11.9 per cent, of that seeded last fall, leaving 34,165,000 for harvest. The loss last year was 1.1 per cent and the area harvested 49,905,000. Condition May 1 was 79.1, compared with 75.6 last month, 100.5 last year, and a ten year average of 87.1.

Largest losses in winter wheat acreage are in Kansas, 16 per cent; Oklahoma, 13; Texas, 10; Nebraska, 15, and in the states where soft winter wheat is largely raised. Winter killing in Illinois being 18 per cent, Indiana, 13, and Ohio, 16 per cent.

Big Loss in Kansas.

Kansas promise of 95,790,000 bu is 55,000,000 bu short of last year. Nebraska is off 7,000,000 bu, but has a large crop. Oklahoma has a prospect of 27,310,000 bu, or 25,000,000 bu short. In the central west losses are 24,000,000 to 30,000,000 bu. Southern states make a fair showing and on Pacific coast reductions from last year are 2,000,000 to nearly 6,000,000 bu.

The rye crop is estimated at 80,000,000 bu, against 107,644,000 bu in May last year and 88,000,000 bu harvested. Condition was 86.8, against 95.4 last year.

A hay crop of 111,831,000 tons is estimated, compared with 108,666,000 tons last year. Supplies on farms May 1 were 11,377,000 tons, compared with 88,559,000 tons last year, and a five year average of 11,559,000 tons.

Farm Labor Short.

Shortage of labor and a backward spring are believed to have resulted in less abandonment than normally would have taken place, farmers for these reasons allowing fields to stand that otherwise would have been plowed under and planted to other crops.

Work on the farm generally is much behind owing to the cold and wet spring. Plowing on May 1 was only 60.1 per cent completed, compared with a ten year average of 71.4 per cent. Spring planting was 50.2 per cent finished, while normally it is 59 per cent done on May 1.

Spring plowing to May 1 was 60.1 per cent, against 72.7 per cent last year. Planting, 50.2 per cent, against 61 last year. Condition of meadow, 89.4, compared with 94.2 last year, and ten year average of 89. Pastures, 79.8, against 90.3 last year, and a six year average of 85.5.

GRAIN MOVEMENT INCREASED

Grain receipts at Chicago last week increased 1,625,000 bu, or 26 per cent over the previous week, but were 46 per cent short of last year's and 60 per cent below the average. The big losses were largely in corn and oats. Western lines are heavily short of box cars and the best they can do is to furnish about 60 per cent of their orders, while eastern roads are furnishing only 30 per cent. A request has been made to the interstate commerce commission that western roads be given 100 per cent of their box car ownership immediately, so that grain can be moved from the interior to terminal markets. If it is not moved within a short time, the prospects of moving the new crops will be very poor.

COTTON MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 8.—Selling was less urgent than for several days, although weather conditions over the cotton belt were better. Texas had beneficial rains and improved crop prospects are expected. Nearby deliveries were well supported and gained 17 points at the last, while the distant deliveries were easy and lost 4 to 6 points. Traders are more cautious in their operations because of the lateness of the crop and the fears of easier prices for manufactured goods. Prices follow:

Closing hog trade was strongest of the week, notwithstanding that arrivals for the week were the largest since January at 179,800. There was a general narrowing of the price range with heavy weights 50c@$1.00 above Tuesday, while top light closed only 10c above low point that day at $15.40.

The second largest week's hog shipments since February, 1919, was the strengthening factor in the late market. Saturday's average at $14.55 was 15c above Friday and as high as any time in ten days. The average a year ago was $20.56. Last week's estimated average weight was 241 lbs, against 245 lbs the previous week.

The week's average price of good native beef cattle advanced 45c, while top kinds were slightly lower than previous week. Cheaper grades of cattle advanced 40@80c. Closing sheep trade was strong.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 18,000 cattle, 44,000 hogs, and 16,000 sheep, against 16,748 cattle, 47,656 hogs, and 19,158 sheep a week ago and 15,930 cattle, 32,632 hogs, and 16,701 sheep the corresponding Monday a year ago.

Next week's receipts are estimated at 58,000 cattle, 160,000 hogs, and 60,000 sheep, against 41,516 cattle, 128,809 hogs, and 61,593 sheep the corresponding week a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs for next Monday are estimated at 34,000 to 50,000. J. M. Waters marked 50,000; F. W. Waddell, 48,000; E. R. Gentry, 47,000; F. R. Burrows, 45,000; H. H. Moore and W. H. Overman, 40,000, and G. Brittain, 34,000.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

Sunshine, a moderate increase in the country offerings of corn and oats, and a possibility of a slightly larger movement of grain from the country created a very bearish feeling, especially toward the last. The market took a great deal of long stuff and the close was easy, with prices well toward the low point of the day. A feature was the increased pressure on September corn and oats and the active demand for bids after the close. As most traders viewed it, the market is in a condition where it would take little encouragement in the way of bearish news to induce greatly increased short selling. Should the latter develop without better buying support, traders look for lower prices.

At the special meeting of the board of trade members yesterday President L. F. Gates gave a brief summary of the work done at the wheat conference Friday. A resolution was offered by former President C. H. Canby, and unanimously adopted, protesting against the proposed tax of 2 cents on each $10 valuation of all sales of grain or produce for future delivery made on exchanges. A copy was ordered sent to representatives in congress and the United States senate and to the chairman and members of the ways and means committee and the senate committee on finance.

"With the deliveries well placed the immediate pressure on provisions was removed and the general tone is better, regardless of heavier hog receipts and good progress for more heavy receipts of very good quality and large lard producers," says W. L. Gregson. "The domestic trade continues very good. Lard and meats are a surplus proposition this year."

It was understood that arrangements were being made with the various railroads whereby shipments of grain can be made direct to elevators and industries on their lines.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Shipping sales of cash grain at Chicago Saturday were 28,000 bu oats. The east canceled 45,000 bu each of corn and oats.

British and Dutch governments offered to resell cash wheat at the seaboard, according to a New York message to E. W. Wagner & Co. One of the best posted men there wired that there was not a buying order in the market. At the same time 10,000 bu were sold at $3.08 c. i. f. Georgian bay, and 5,000 bu at $3.20, track New York. No. 2 and No. 2 red and hard winter sold on track here at $3.05, and No. 1 northern at $3.30. Shipping sales 10,000 bu. Receipts 7 cars.

Offerings of cash corn were fair, but sold readily with prices unchanged to 2c higher. Oats unchanged to 1c lower.

NEW YORK BANKS' EXCESS RESERVE SHOWS BIG DROP

The weekly statement of the New York associated banks made a poor showing, which came as a surprise in view of the comparatively easy call money rate that prevailed last week. Although loans decreased $42,700,000, reflecting liquidation in stocks, the excess reserve dropped $25,441,520, and now stands at $5,397,640, a purely nominal amount, compared with $30,839,160 the preceding week. This suggests a further curtailment in loans.

Aggregate deposits showed a sharp decline of $58,052,000, demand deposits falling $59,913,000, but time deposits increasing $1,861,000. Aggregate reserves declined $33,278,000. The curtailment of loans was unable to keep pace with these sharp declines and the drop in the excess reserve resulted. Government deposits declined $3,000,000 and note circulation increased $48,000.

Chicago Showing Better.

Further improvement was shown by the Chicago federal reserve bank in its weekly statement. The chief feature was a considerable decrease in loans to member banks secured by commercial paper, marking an effort to bring about a deflation of credits. These loans dropped $16,383,123, but as loans on government securities increased $8,384,185, the decrease in aggregate loans was only $7,998,938.

The improved position enabled the bank to reduce its borrowings from other federal reserve banks by $8,554,000, this item, represented by loans on paper imported and turned over to sister institutions, now standing at $29,917,000. Gross deposits declined $14,739,687, and the member banks decreased their aggregate reserve account by $9,749,482. Note circulation increased $4,353,759. Government deposits increased $595,903. Total net reserves increased $156,732, and total reserves increased $754,289. The ratio of reserves to net deposit and note liabilities combined rose to 40.75 from 37.9 per cent in the preceding week, and the ratio of reserves to note circulation, after setting aside 35 per cent against deposit liabilities, rose to 43.3 from 39.7 per cent in the preceding week.

New York Reserve Improves.

The weekly statement of the New York Federal Reserve bank showed considerable improvement in the reserve position, due primarily to an increase in gold and a reduction in loans. Total gold reserves increased $15,366,000. Loans declined $43,828,000, those secured by government obligations dropping $44,883,000, but those otherwise secured increased $1,054,000. Gross deposits declined $41,867,000. The member banks' reserve account decreased $30,817,000. Note circulation increased $6,405,000 and holdings of treasury certificates of indebtedness increased $6,419,000.

The ratio of total reserves to deposit and note liabilities combined rose to 43.4 from 39.9 per cent in the preceding week, and the ratio of reserves to net deposits, after deducting 40 per cent gold reserves against note circulation, rose to 42.1 from 39.7 per cent in the preceding week.

Consolidated Statement.

The consolidated statement of the twelve federal reserve banks shows a more favorable reserve position. Total gold reserves increased $4,860,000 and total reserves increased $5,322,000. Loans declined $30,449,000, those secured by government obligations falling $21,145,000 and those otherwise secured declining $9,304,000. Total gross deposits declined $37,185,000 and government deposits fell $37,185,000. The member banks' reserve account declined $41,229,000. Note circulation increased $17,789,000. Holdings of treasury certificates of indebtedness increased $6,388,000.

The ratio of total reserves to net deposit and note liabilities combined rose to 43.7 from 42.4 per cent in the preceding week, and the ratio of gold reserves to note circulation, after setting aside 35 per cent against net deposit liabilities, rose to 47.1 from 46.7 per cent in the preceding week.

METAL MARKETS.

NEW YORK, May 8.—No change of importance was reported in the copper market this week. Producing interests report some small sales for July delivery at 19.25c, but generally business has remained quiet and quotations for small lots have ranged from 18.34c to 19c for spot and nearby delivery. Iron was quiet.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—LEAD—Lower at $8.65. SPELTER dull at $7.90.

SHORT COVERING BRINGS STRONG RALLY IN STOCKS

The New York Times.

New York, May 8.—[Special.]—Short covering, which became brisk as the trading period drew to a close, today brought about a vigorous rally in stocks. Several of the high priced oil and steel issues gained from three to more than eight points and the rank and file members of these groups left off one to two points above Friday's last quotations.

If the market reflected anything, it was the absence of offerings around quotations current on Thursday and Friday. This was exemplified especially in United States Steel common among the standard shares, for a gain of 2 points on a Saturday was unexpected by speculators who had sold the stock short.

While the general credit and business situation disclosed no change, the appearance of time money offerings and continued ease of call money may have had some effect in lending courage to holders of stocks on margin.

Sentiment has become highly confused in stock market quarters over the outlook for goods prices. A fortnight ago the bears on security quotations had confidence that a sharp relaxation of prices was under way. Cut rate sales at department stores and an easement in index numbers of food materials show that there has been a downward tendency, but now signs are appearing that demand has been reawakened where concessions have been made and an adverse transportation situation is acting as an artificial barrier before natural trade processes.

CHICAGO CURB STOCKS

The local curb market shows slight improvement in the majority of issues, although the volume of trade has been comparatively small. Butler Brothers improved about a point and a half, to 48½, but closed easier with stock offered at 48 and buyers at 47½. Kellogg Switchboard and Supply changed hands between 220 and 228. Harris Brothers common was unchanged at 65@72. Lindeman Steel was quiet at 23@25. Small lots of Pyle National were traded in at 220, but at the close the stock sagged to 208 bid, offered at 222. Wahl preferred remains steady at 85@88. Monarch Paper sold at 14 and Bryant at 20@21½. Gossard Corset changed hands at 50, closing at 49½@51½. Consumers preferred was quiet at 85@86½. New Inland Steel was traded in at 61@61½, and United States Gypsum preferred at 66@67.

Little change was noted in the implement group, Avery preferred being quoted 98@100, and the common 116@120. Emerson Brantingham preferred was unchanged at 80 bid, 82 asked, while the common was quiet at 20@23. Moline Plow preferred improved slightly to 90½ bid, with stock offered at 91½. Columbia Sugar improved to 18¾, closing at 18 bid, 18¾ asked. Michigan was steady at 11¾@12¼.

Paige-Detroit was the feature of the motor issues, the declaration of a 33 1-3 per cent stock dividend, payable to stockholders of record May 30, causing an advance of some eight points to sales as high as 46. A quick reaction set in, however, and the market declined to 43 bid, 44 asked. Packard was strong on rumors of a 50 per cent stock dividend, advancing to 25, closing at 23@24. Stearns was traded in between 34@35. Peerless Truck was easier at 37@39.

The Immortal Works of Science

Here Is a Scientific Boiler That Will Bring Heat Satisfaction to Your New Home or Building

The works of Science are legion. Their influence upon the daily life and comfort of men is all-enveloping.

Science is the highest court—a power almost infinite—to which all things are possible.

What Science has done in machinery—in medicine—in surgery—in foods—in power—in light—it has also done in heating.

Among the immortal works of Science may not the Weil-McLain Scientific Combustion Boiler be numbered?

Men—skilled men—have built heating plants for years. But Science discovered the weak link. Science laid its finger upon the exaggerated feature—the special selling point—the cause of wasteful "boiler indigestion."

Science proved that harmonious functioning is the great essential in heating boilers.

Look critically at a Weil-McLain Scientific Combustion Boiler—the scientific, modern boiler. Note its clean-cut construction.

In this modern boiler scientific precision rules. Each and every part has its certain definite and limited function. And each and every part is in perfect harmony with every other part.

You vainly look for some special feature—some unusual development. There is none. You find instead only the evidences of fine workmanship and business-like simplicity. For Science has proved that those commonly found exaggerated features are a prolific source of faulty combustion—waste—cold rooms—big fuel bills. Too often they are designed merely to be talked about.

Does the past winter leave you with sad memories of balky heating—a coal pile that melted rapidly—cold rooms—and big coal bills?

What about the new home—the new building—the replacement? Will you risk the same thing next winter?

Now is a good time to settle the boiler question. Now is a good time to decide upon a Weil-McLain Scientific Combustion Boiler—the boiler that is scientifically correct.

Visit our modern display rooms. Inspect these Scientific Combustion Boilers. If you cannot come, write us for information. Let us tell you of specific instances which prove Weil-McLain Scientific Combustion Boilers one of Science's greatest achievements.

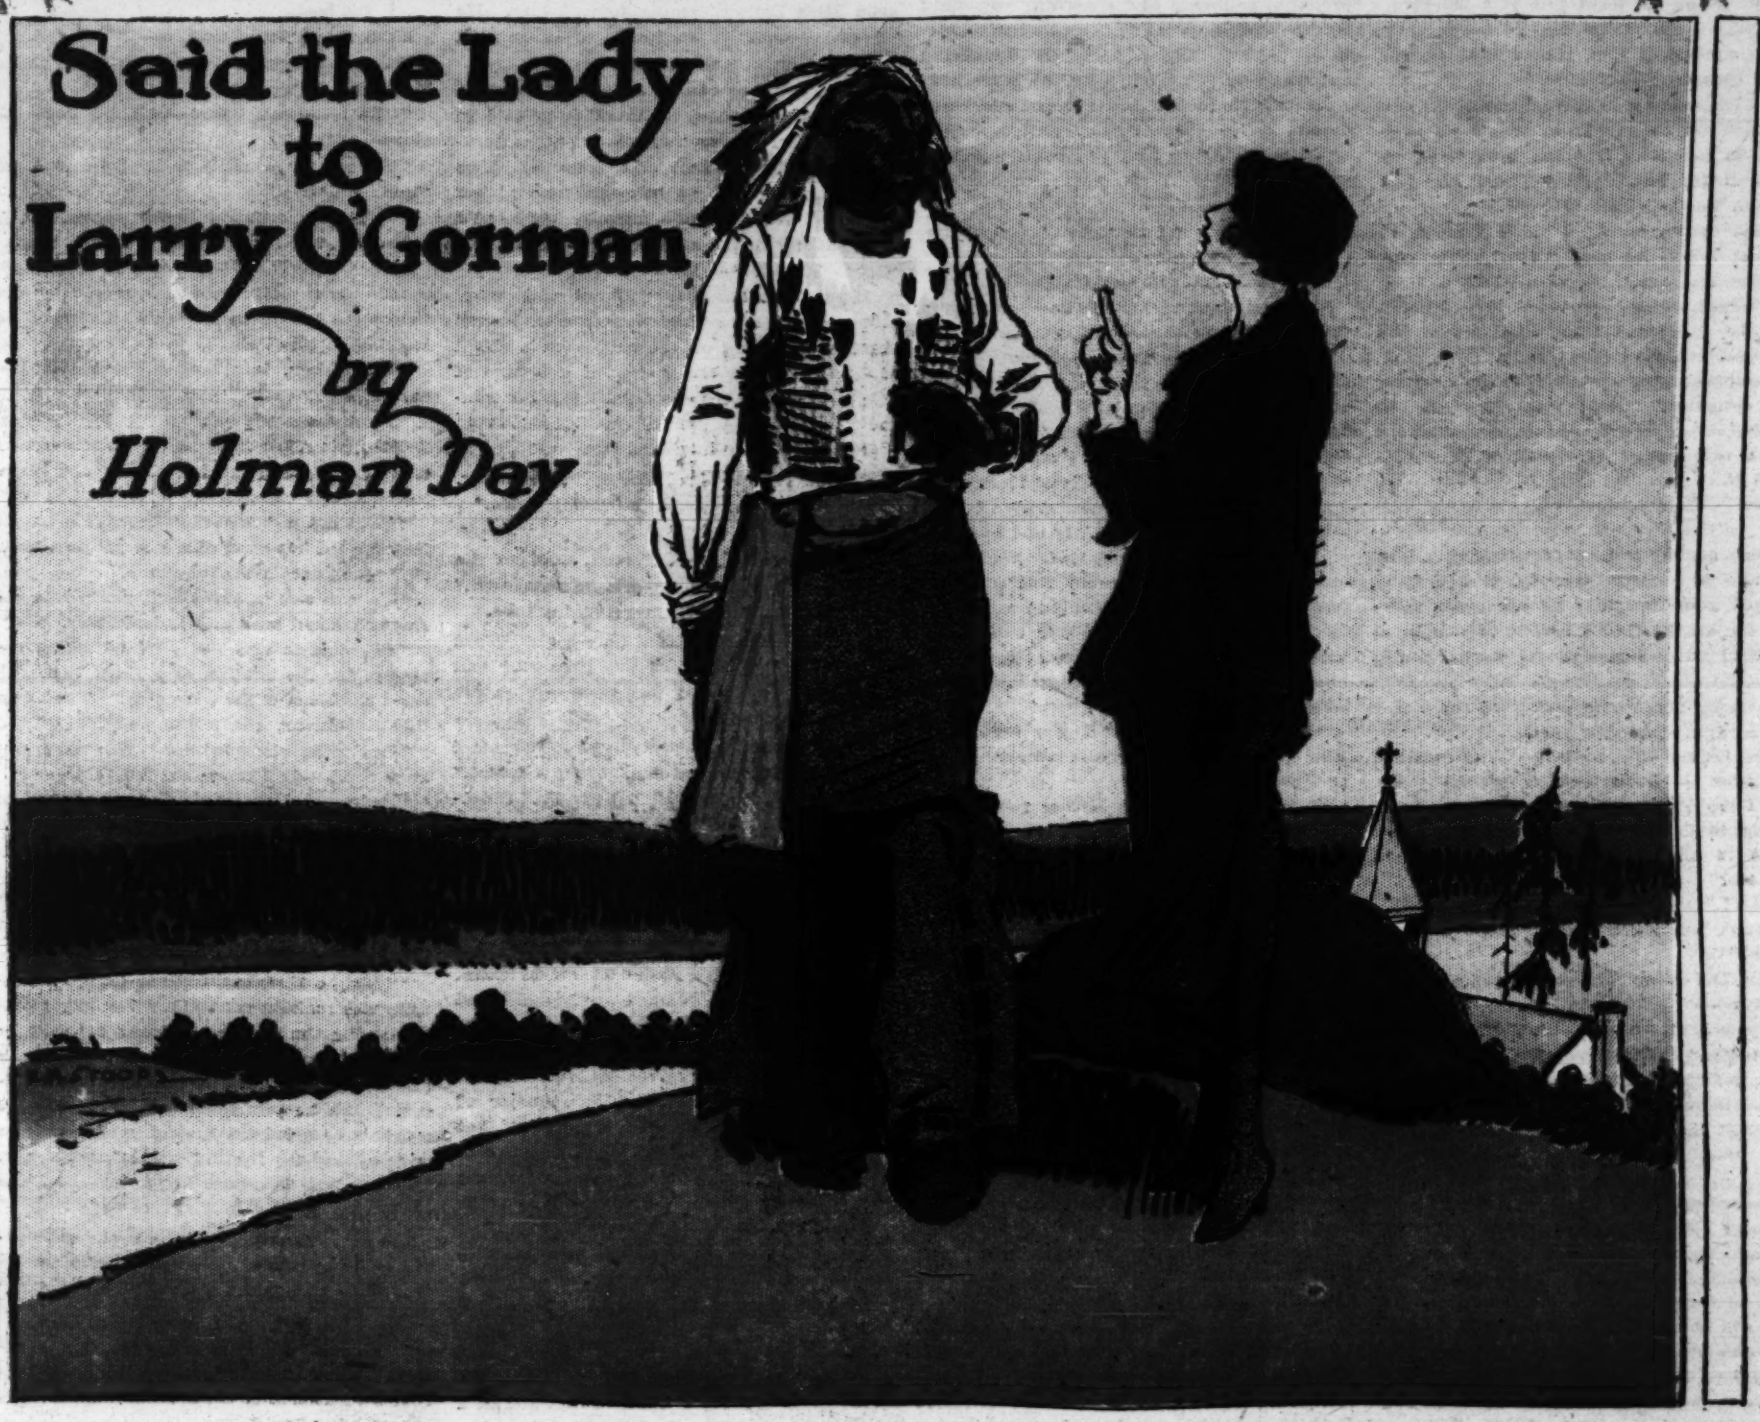
Said the Lady to Larry O'Gorman

by

Holman Day



"That plan—it means she marries Tomah Danah? I have no ears for such a plan, mam'selle. No!"

"For 'tis all abowit the ladee fair who strowied acrost the greem;
Most bewtifullest ladee fair 'twas ever, ever seen!
Says she to me: 'O, bow ye down!' And sure I bent my knee;
'Cause I do whate'er a ladee says when she says a thing to me."

—By Larry O'Gorman, the Woods' Poet.

Young Mr. Lochinvar Fares Forth to Find That It's Not Such a Cut and Dried World, After All

AMONG the attentions humbly paid to Miss Esther Virabell by Boss Larry O'Gorman of the depot camp of the Great Telos company, he introduced what he considered an especial compliment by obliging the red headed cookee to render a ballad—fifteen verses in addition to the sample which opens this tale. The song is very popular all up and down Wild river.

Young Miss Esther, though she was plainly not at all set up in her own estimation, was entitled to elaborate deference, in Mr. O'Gorman's opinion; she was of the Virabell family, who owned much stock in the Great Telos.

For three days, now, she had been coming down the river from the big hotel as if possessed by a lively interest in the work of Boss O'Gorman's crew of fifty "busters" who were toting supplies around the Big Carry. Such attention to affairs was understandable and excusable in one of the Virabell family. But if Mr. O'Gorman was any kind of an observer—and he thought he was—the pretty young colleen from the city had something on her mind, outside of supply toting.

As for Miss Esther's guide—there certainly was something on that guide's mind! It was no ordinary guide, the one who paddled the canoe daily to the pullout near the camp. That guide was a handsome young girl from the Tarratine tribe—and Boss O'Gorman had never seen her on the river before.

Miss Virabell was showing uncommon interest in her guide and in young Tomah Danah as well, a Tarratine who was a member of O'Gorman's crew. But it was a question in the puzzled Mr. O'Gorman's mind which was exhibiting the more woeful countenance, the Indian maid or the stalwart Tarratine.

The boss had discovered early that Esther was an impetuous and impulsive young lady, and he possessed a sentimental nature and it suggested that she was fostering a romance in thus adopting "a couple of Injuns for summer pets," as his thoughts put the case. He pried a bit, and Esther frankly confessed that she considered "Zarlona a dear whom anybody must love."

But Miss Esther's impulsiveness did not lead her to inform Boss O'Gorman of certain facts which she had gleaned by keeping vigorously at a problem in which her sympathy had been enlisted. On the third day at the depot camp Esther resolutely decided to act on the knowledge she had been able to gather—knowledge that explained the heart broken demeanor of the girl.

She knew that Zarlona was the daughter of Gov. Susep Nicolin of the Tarratines—that she was a fugitive from her home on a queerly named island and had come out into the world to earn a way for herself and to escape hook nosed Docite Carriveau, the habitant farmer, chosen for a husband by paternal will, and had come to the big hotel on Wild river because there were city ladies who might be willing to hire an Indian girl. Taking advantage of the exile's upheaved emotions, Miss Esther had "jumped" that much of confession out of Zarlona. But the reticent maid of the Tarratines would not confess that she had come into the territory of the Great Telos company to find Tomah Danah. Miss Esther had borne down hard on that point, avidly seeking an opportunity to bring to flower the bud of a romance.

"No, mam'selle!" Zarlona had insisted over and over.

"O, have it your own way, but I know better, my dear! I saw the look he gave you—that was enough, really! But the look you gave him—that settled it with me. I'm going to call him right over here—and if I have to tell him what to do, I'll tell him."

But after Miss Virabell had expressed with herself great intrepidity, the Indian boy stood like a stick.

"To look at the two of you, one would think I'm your Governor Nicolin, glowering here with a war club behind my back," she declared. "But I'll turn right around and you'll see there's no club. And now that I'm turned around I'll walk off, leaving you to yourselves, showing you that I'm not an old, foolish father, thinking only of money, money, money!"

She marched away. "I hope," she said to herself, "that Indians know how to talk to each other when there's no paleface nigh to hear 'em."

Esther had seized an opportunity when the crew had gone up the carry trail with burdens; she had dropped a hint to the boss, and Tomah had been left behind to sort supplies.

She went and sat behind some alders that bordered the sullen pool at the foot of the Big Carry. When the canoe came into view from down river, rounding a wooded curve, she was annoyed; the tête-à-tête that her complacent guardianship was protecting would be disturbed. It was a big canoe, of birchbark, and there were paddlers at bow and stern. Two passengers were seated amidship. She noted curious markings on the bow, thinking that they were mere ornaments, lacking the knowledge that would inform her that this was the sachem canoe of the Tarratines, bearing the totem of the tribal chief.

But though Esther was not up on tribal totems, she had a keen sense for identities, and a few words had been dropped by Zarlona in the way of description. As soon as the canoe came closer to her—the paddlers taking advantage of the eddy drift by keeping close to the shore—she perceived that one of the passengers had a hooked nose, and her dislike for that person was immediate and instinctive. His companion was an elderly Indian, but he wore a hard hat and a butterfly bow and store clothes and, therefore, distinctly affronted Esther's conception of the fitness of things in that north country, where Indians ought to match the scenery in picturesqueness, she told herself. Her mental assertion was that an Indian who called himself a governor instead of a

The Toy-Boy Workers of Toy-Boy-ville

Chugging along in his auto so gay,
Whee! Whay!
On a beautiful day!
The Toy-Boy Motorist came this way:
"Chigg-i-ty, Chugg-i-ty,
Chigg-i-ty, Chugg!
Jigg-i-ty, Jugg-i-ty,
Jigg-i-ty, Jugg!"
And, rounding the corner, oh, what should he spy
But a bottle that towered 'way up to the sky,
And working upon it with hearty good will
The Toy-Boy Workers of Toy-Boy-ville.

"Good morning," he shouted, "and what have we here?"
The Toy-Boy Workers replied with a cheer:
"All together, Edel-once!
All together, Edel-twice!
With your luncheon it is nice,
What is nice?
EDELWEISS!"

And then, as they cheered in their rollicking way,
Whee! Whay!
On this beautiful day!
The Toy-Boy Golfer happened to stray
And look while they labeled the bottle with care,
Pulling it here,
And pasting it there,
Smoothing the wrinkles
And fixing the crinkles.

While high on the scaffold far up in the air
The two bravest workers you'd find anywhere
Were capping the bottle with wonderful skill,
And, "Cap-a-Cap-Capping," they sang with a will:
"We will cap it in a trice
Then we'll put it on the ice—
There's nothing quite so nice
As a drink of Edelweiss."

And then, in a chorus, their work all done,
The Toy-Boy Workers sang out as one,
(Joined by the Toy-Boy Baseball Star
And the Golfer and Motorist in his car):
"All together, Edel-once!
All together, Edel-twice!
Cooling, soothing; oh, it's nice
What is nice?
EDELWEISS!"

chief would be just the sort to wear into the woods the air of dignity expressed by a bowler hat.

"What's the world coming to! And I'm not the least bit afraid of him in that rig!" she declared, her sole auditor a kingfisher who had just swallowed a minnow and who agreed with her by a cheerful rattle of "whir-r-r chir-r-r!"

But her heart was beating fast. "If he had feathers on his head, like you, fish-bird, instead of his ridiculous hat, I'd never dare even to squeak at him, romance or no romance! But now——"

When the canoe was abreast where she sat she raised her voice. There was a bit of a quaver in her tone, but her eyes were on the reassuring hat. "Pardon me! Are you Governor Susep Nicolin?"

He did not as much as touch a finger to that hat when he said "Yes!" She was searching for something with which to prop her courage; quick resentment helped her a lot. The paddlers halted, finning the ash blades to keep the canoe steady.

"I suppose you are up here looking for your daughter!" Miss Virabell lifted her chin and strove to present the most approved air of aristocratic hauteur, as she conceived it.

"Yes!" This governor was a blunt person!

Esther decided to be blunt along with him. "I have to inform you, sir, that I have engaged your daughter as my guide for—well, for all the time I expect to remain at the Wild River house. Some weeks, probably."

The hook nosed man addressed the father with a rapid sputter of patois.

Miss Esther interrupted. "I understand even that kind of French perfectly, sir. And I am not a cheeky, silly fou! I am talking to Governor Nicolin. Sir, do you refuse to allow your daughter to remain with me?"

"Yes."

"Won't you please let her stay?"

"No!"

"But she is my guide—I must get back up river——"

"My daughter is not a guide!"

"I tell you that I have hired her!"

The governor's black eyes glittered. Miss Virabell found that even a Tarratine could talk when his anger drove him into speech. "You listen to me! You talk foolishness. My girl has run away from her good home. She has shamed me and herself. Do you hide her? Where?"

"But I'm not hiding her," said Esther, intimidated. This Indian certainly had plenty of fury, though he lacked feathers.

"It will be bad for anybody who hides her. She is to be married. This is Docite Carriveau, the man for her."

Esther's resentment touched a goad to her courage once more. "You ought to know better than to marry off a dear young girl to an old man!"

Governor Nicolin opened his mouth, but he shut it. He swapped a long stare with the hook nosed man. Then he growled away in a language that was not French.

"I suppose that is Tarratine talk," commented Esther with all the serenity she was able to muster. "I don't understand that language. I hope what you're saying isn't too impolite."

It was evident that the talk had something to do with the probable whereabouts of the fugitive daughter. The governor ordered the canoemen to run the craft ashore.

Esther scrambled to her feet and fled around the screen of alders. Tomah was seated with his back against a big tree and he had taken the girl in his arms and she was looking up into his face while he talked to her.

"Thank heaven for that, anyway—though I don't know how much time he has been wasting!" muttered Esther, hurrying toward them. "And now it's all ending just when it's beginning!"

The lovers rose when they saw her. Tomah kept his arm about Zarlona's waist. He did not remove the arm when the courier warned, "Your father!"

Esther turned from them and ran toward the governor when he marched into view from behind the alders. Her arms were outstretched as if to bar his way. One of the canoemen at the governor's heels grinned; probably, as a woodsman, he saw in this frantic damsel a comical imitation of a hen partridge venturing all in order to protect her young.

"You must listen to me, Governor Nicolin! I know that he is a fine and noble young man."

"You know, eh? How long you know him?" inquired the governor, trying to avoid this defendant, who danced to and fro in front of him.

"His looks show what he is—his looks are enough!" insisted Esther. "You don't dare to say that he is not good."

The governor stopped and held up his forefinger. "All I say about Tomah Danah is this: He is not the one I have picked to be the husband for my girl. And my business is no business of yours, mam'selle, whoever you may be."

He was calm again and stoically true to race; that calmness and a certain menacing reserve had more effect on Esther's mercurial nature than any wordy blustering that would have matched her own methods of attack. He looked past her and addressed Tomah.

"I have told you that you could not have my girl, eh?"

"Yes."

"Take your hand from her."

The lover obeyed.

"Zarlona, here! Come here!"

She went slowly, her arms across her eyes, stumbling along the rough ground.

"We understand, Tomah Danah. We are men. We must not let a girl be foolish and shame her home and make a father break his word. I am your governor. If I don't command my home, I cannot set example for the people. You understand. You obey. You are man like me!"

Miss Esther listened closely and surveyed all the details of this exposition of tribal authority, this surrender by supreme command, this "understanding" between men. There was grief in her eyes, there was a wrinkle of disgust across her pretty nose, there was a curl of indignation at the corners of her red lips.

"Men!" she scoffed. "You're breaking a poor girl's heart, and you're all swelling up as if you were proud."

Zarlona was passing; Esther reached out and snatched the maiden into a close embrace.

After a little while the protectress lifted wet eyes and regarded the somber father over the daughter's shoulder. "Won't you listen to any reasons why you shouldn't do this awful thing?"

"It is not an awful thing for a girl to have a good home and a kind husband, mam'selle. Tomah Danah, who stands there, knows that he has not a roof over his head, nor a foot of land and no money in the bank. Some day, if he stays a good boy, he will have land and house and can choose a fine girl."

"If it's only money—listen to me—I have money!"

"Yes? Use it for yourself and among your own kind, mam'selle," retorted the governor, his pride touched.

He shoved his arm between Esther and Zarlona and took his daughter along with him when he strode away.

This contemptuous rudeness shuttled Esther's impulsive nature back to anger again. "One moment!"

Nicolin halted.

"When does this wonderful wedding take place?"

"This foolish girl ran away on the day set for the wedding. So it will be for tomorrow night, before the priest in the chapel at Pattagamon."

The governor met her flaming gaze with the dignity of one who had triumphed.

"Where is Pattagamon?"

He pointed his finger. "Ten miles down the river."

Esther caught the sullen eye of Docite Carriveau and bobbed a curtsy that was a mere flash of deference. "I was wrong when I disputed your opinion of me, monsieur! I am cheeky! For I'm inviting myself to your wedding. Governor Nicolin, may I come?"

"It is for all, mam'selle! Our village is open. The word has gone out!"

"You're not wonderfully cordial, but I thank you for the invitation just the same." She put away her air that was half mockery, half defiance. "I don't really mean to be disrespectful or flippant, sir." She hastened to the girl and folded Zarlona's trembling hands between consoling palms. "I'll come to your wedding, dear!" she faltered.

After the sachem canoe had departed, Esther sat down under the big tree and surveyed Tomah Danah. He stood for a time and gazed straight away at a distant loom of the mountain range, as if his simple nature found a steadying influence in the contemplation of the serene heights.

Larry O'Gorman came whistling down the trail, followed by his men on their way back for other loads. Esther rose and advanced to the boss.

"Mr. O'Gorman, may I hire Tomah for the rest of the day? I must get back to the hotel."

Mr. O'Gorman searched all the surrounding landscape with his eyes and then looked up into the heavens as if in search of a maiden who might have acquired wings during his absence.

"Something wicked has happened. Her father is the governor of the Tarratines and he has come and taken her away with him."

"You may have Tomah, miss! And so the old man took the colleen?"

"Yes, sir. She is to be married tomorrow evening to a man named Docite Carriveau."

Larry had pulled off his hat when he had seen Miss Esther coming toward him. He slapped it back on his head. Then he took it off and bit into the brim.

"Marry-mar-mar-mar!" he growled, worrying the hat, pulling his head from side to side. "Marry Canuck Carriveau—that horn-snouted old parrakeet of a Quedaw? Two wives a-ready has he had—and one of 'em was the colleen he stole when he told her I'd ben sluiced on the snubbing-slope at Misery Gore. Why he——"

He put on his hat. "Excuse me, miss! I'm going down and express meself to yon kingfisher sitting on the popple stub. He'll understand! He has a way of language of his own when he dives and misses his minnow."

Boss O'Gorman hurried away.

Esther went to the Indian. "Tomah, Mr. O'Gorman says you may go as my guide."

"Yes!"

"You may walk on, Tomah, and get the canoe ready. I'll follow you in a moment."

She walked to meet the returning boss.

"I feel better, miss, but only a bit! What I have said to the bird has been raw and rough and only in my own poor way on the spur o' the moment."

"I feel exactly as you do, Mr. O'Gorman! I indorse all that you said to the fish-bird!"

"Thank you, miss!" But Mr. O'Gorman's memory of what he had been saying caused him to shift his eyes from hers in considerable confusion.

"But of what use is talk?" Indignation surged up in the girl. "Men only talk these days! They take it out in talk! They allow talk to kill all the spirit that's in them. That old governor talked to Tomah—and Tomah wilted. O, for the spirit of young Lochinvar."

"Yes'm," meekly agreed Boss O'Gorman, though he had not the least glimmer of knowledge about this Lochinvar person. But he had a standing of his own to preserve in the estimation of this sophisticated young lady from the city. "I make so bold as to say that the lad would know what to do."

"In his case talk would be of some use, Mr. O'Gorman! One word to him and such a dreadful sacrifice of a sweet girl would not happen."

Esther ran away. "Isn't it a pity that Lochinvar hasn't a hand in this affair, Mr. O'Gorman? I'd say a word to him and he'd be the man for me," she called over her shoulder.

Larry wrinkled his forehead and narrowed his eyes and watched her out of sight, rubbing his ear. Nils Uppling came trudging down to dip a drink of water from the stream.

"It sounds like a Squarehead name," pondered Larry. "Hi, Nils, who's Lochinvar?"

"Ay ban tank I don't know dat feller, sir!"

A few tallenders of the crew were loading themselves at the pile. The boss noted that they represented a fair assortment of nationalities and he went to them and asked whether anybody in the gang knew Lochinvar. All shook their heads.

But the matter of the identity of this Mister Lochinvar, spoken of so highly by a young city lady who undoubtedly knew what she was talking about and who needed such an agent in her business, had become an obsession in the case of Larry O'Gorman by the time he had finished his supper and was settled on the deacon seat with his pipe going full blast.

"Who knows a laddybuck, name o' Lochinvar?" he shouted.

"The braw laddie, Lochinvar!" scoffed old Angus Bain. "Next I'll hear, will be somebody speerin' who is Jock o' Hazeldean?"

"If you know aught, Old Oatmeal Cake, out with it!"

"Why, there's a fine bit of portry about the young Lochinvar," the red-headed cookee shouted, with the haste of youth to display superior knowledge.

"Ay, by Sir Walter's ain hand' tis writ," said old Angus.

"I've been too busy with me own pomes to bother me head about the scribblings of others," stated Larry, defending his lack of general information. "Cookee, you have a memory for my songs—your head and your mouth are full of 'em. So be, do ye know the jingle by the other pote?"

"Sure! I used to speak it for a piece in school."

"Set your feet on the dancing block and sluice," commanded the boss.

The cookee took his place and pitched his voice in a shrill monotone, staring up at the camp rafters.

"'Ow, young Lochinvar is come out of the west,
Through all the wide border his steed was the best,
He rode all alone—and he—'"

The cookee gulped and paused and rolled his hands in his apron.

"'He rode all alone—and he rode all alone——'"

"Try a new needle!" a helpful friend advised.

"There's a gouge in your record," suggested another satirist from a dark corner.

Angus Bain rose and beat his fist down on his palm. His face was ridged by the furrows of indignation. "Ut's sacrileege!" he shouted. "Nowt else!".

"Well, then, kiss it with your mouth—and let's have it!"

"I hae too much vener-ration for the bard to keep his noble lines in my noddle—along wi' the tillyvally sculch thot's aye yammered in my ears."

"Ye're not now making riference to aught that the lad has sung of my songs past-back, eh?" was Larry's baleful query.

"Ut was not in my thoct, sir!" But old Angus blinked hard and looked away.

"I'm glad it was not. I'd be losing me respict for the caution of a Scot, that's always the boast o' the tribe o' ye! D'ye know this Lochinvar, that's the point?"

"Eh! The braw laddie? Who does not know? Though I canna tiri the varse——"

"Never mind the varse! It's not so much! As it was running it's not half a pome, without a chorus. The story, man! The story! I have need of it. Waste no words!"

O'Gorman was on his feet, wagging his forefinger with the threatening violence that always drove his men to quick action.

"Then ye shall hae it! The laird o' Netherby was making sair fash for young Lochinvar—for the laird was giving his dochter to a cogging knave o' nae guid. Into the wedding at the laird's hall came young Lochinvar, and he saw the tears in the lassie's een, and he spied the carle of a limmer who was waiting for the lily white hand o' her, and then the lad gave her a touch on the ar'rm and a word in her ear——"

"Now I remember," piped the cokee—but O'Gorman made a vicious palm swoop that sent the boy ducking.

"On with the yarn, Angus!"

"And awa' he flew wi' her on his lightsome naggie, and all the swankie chasers couldna fall foul o' them, and so they lived happy aye after!"

"There! There ye have it!" proclaimed O'Gorman. "The way it should be, and a happy end."

"Won't you let me speak off what I remember, now that I have had the jog?" implored the cookee, taking advantage of the boss' enthusiasm.

"Ye may!"

"'There was racing and chasing on Cannobie lee,
But the lost bride of Netherby ne'er did they see.
So daring in love and—tum-tum—in war,
Have ye e'er heard of gallant like young Lochinvar?'"

The boss crawled into his bunk and lulled himself to sleep by muttering the last lines.

"And so that's what she had in her mind when she said the word to me, eh?"

The cookee's morning song while he rattled the pans in the dingle fayed with O'Gorman's waking dreams.

"'——and sure I bent me knee,
'Cause I do whate'er a ladee says when she says a thing to me.'"

His men found much abstraction in the manner of Larry O'Gorman all the forenoon. But when Esther marched down the carry path just before noon O'Gorman came out of his preoccupation. Tomah walked behind her, carrying a canoe on his shoulders like a tortoise bearing its shell. And he was exhibiting a tortoiselike sluggishness in his gait.

"Of that young Lochinvar ye were speaking!" exploded Larry. "So daring in love and a divil in war—ye were right about him, miss."

But the maiden showed no interest in the hero she had vaunted the day before. Her forehead was puckered with a frown. She broke in on O'Gorman impatiently. "I want to go to the wedding of Zarlona Nicolin. I have been invited. I'm taking along Mrs. Jocelyn." She directed Larry's attention to a matron, whom he had not noticed in his

The Turn of the Wheel — by Olney Fred Sweet

His Revenge Was Well Planned, But He Didn't Take Into Consideration This Changing World

"GLOAT? Why shouldn't I gloat?" defended Jacob Winston. "Every man has a big desire, but I have had mine fulfilled. The possibility of this hour has been in my thoughts every day for the last ten years. I swore I would get even with the Pettigrews, and I've just bought their house, haven't I?"

"I'm glad to have sold you the house," said the real estate agent, "but don't you think you have harmed yourself with these hate thoughts that you have been carrying about in your system? Hold a grudge long enough and it's pretty sure to react."

"Nonsense," chuckled Jacob Winston, "I start now to taste the first real happiness I have ever known. I'm only fifty. I may look older, but that's because of those ten years out there away from civilization. I put up with a good many hardships for the sake of accumulating what I have come back with. But it was worth it—the thrill of coming back here and giving the Pettigrew family a taste of its own medicine. The power is in my hands now, and it is they who will do the cringing."

"You talk like the villain in an old fashioned melodrama," smiled the agent. "Just what did the Pettigrews ever do to you?"

Jacob Winston glanced about the big bare rooms to which he had just brought his bachelor belongings. A twitch came to his lips and he rubbed his hands together.

"Up until ten years ago," he began, "I was always working for the Pettigrews. They had money; I had nothing but my hands and my health. I planted every shrub on the lawn out here, Mrs. Pettigrew standing over me and finding fault. She was right at my heels with complaints while I graded the lawn. She called me to task if I rested for a minute to light my pipe. She made sure that I didn't quit a minute before her own timepiece said it was 6 o'clock. She paid me a dollar a day after I'd dunned her for it, fingering it out a nickel at a time out of her little pocketbook with the thick clasp. And I had to stand for it; I needed the work. But I swore to myself that I would turn the tables—that I would go somewhere and get hold of big money, too, and that the power that was theirs should be mine. I'm back here. I've kept good my threat. The Pettigrews were said to be worth thirty thousand. I plugged until I got my forty thousand."

"Things went wrong with the Pettigrews a couple of years ago," explained the agent. "The old man invested wrong somewhere. It was a big surprise when the crash came."

"Did me good to hear of it when I got back here," grinned Jacob Winston. "Things turned my way about the same time they went under, as near as I can figure. The Pettigrew shops closed down without any warning, they tell me. Served 'em right. I put in enough time in those shops ten hours a day. Asked the old man once if we couldn't have a little more ventilation and he just about took my head off. Asked him once for a raise and he fired me. Well, he had all the power then. I'm closing a deal for an interest in those shops. I may have been up against it the last fifty years, but I'm on my feet now."

"One of the Pettigrew boys is now working down at the shops," the agent remarked.

"Is, eh?" cackled Winston. "Quite a come-down. And the old man?"

"Gone into chickens and truck gardening."

"About all there was left for him to do, I suppose. Well, I used to come to the back door here with vegetables and he used to pick my stuff over and talk me down on the price until he made me feel I was lucky not to have to throw the stuff away. The old man was good at that. I'm waiting right now for him to come to the back door when the back door is mine. I'll—I'll——"

"You're tired and excited," soothed the agent. "You've had a long, hard trip. I'm going to congratulate you on having won out in your life's ambition and bid you good-night."

"Good-night," agreed Winston at the door. "Tomorrow I wake up to really live."

Mr. Jacob Winston went to sleep in the room that had once been Orson Pettigrew's. He gave a sigh of relief as his head touched the pillow. His ten years in the South American wilds had been tough ones, his years of struggle before that in the neighborhood to which he had returned had been full of bitterness and envy. But the triumph of which he had dreamed was about to be realized. Had he not acquired at last the magic thing that gave one man power over another?

He wakened to a spring morning and went out on the lawn to look at the shrubs which his own hands had planted more than ten years before. He had been nagged and harassed as he had planted and he hated the shrubs. He decided that he would have them torn up and replaced. And what should be more than fitting that he should hire one of Orson Pettigrew's once pampered sons to do the job?

When Harold Pettigrew responded to a telephone call, Mr. Winston found that the boys had grown considerable. He had anticipated that, but he had not anticipated the youth's attitude as an employé. He had answered the telephone call in no great haste.

"Now, just a minute," cautioned the young man before Mr. Winston had progressed very far in the role of overseer; "who's doing this job—you or I?"

"But—but," stammered Jacob Winston, thoroughly taken back, "I'm doing the paying, ain't I?"

"You don't think you're the only bird around here willing to pay a dollar an hour, do you?" the youth wished to know. He had straightened and his lower jaw shot out.

"A dollar an hour!" gasped Jacob. "Who said I was paying a dollar an hour? When I used to do this sort of work for your mother she fixed what she considered a fair price."

"When was that?"

"Why, ten years ago."

"You're living in the past, old timer. The only reason I answered your telephone call was because I wanted to do you a favor. There's half a dozen parties wanting me this morning."

"Young man," choked Jacob Winston, "do you know that I am worth forty thousand dollars?"

"Tell that to the income tax man."

Jacob Winston was breathing heavily, but he saw something that for the moment diverted him from the unexpected and unsatisfactory dialogue. A truck wagon was coming down the alley, and on the seat was old Orson Pettigrew himself. Gloating returned to Mr. Winston's countenance. He strutted over to the garden gate.

"Why, good mornnig, Winston." Pettigrew was first to speak.

"We seem to have changed places," retorted Jacob Winston. It was his moment. He intended to make the most of it. He would attend to young Pettigrew later.

But old Orson Pettigrew swung about on the wagon seat with a smile. "I hope you'll like the house," he said kindly, "but you'll find it hard to heat in winter. Now, especially with our continual coal shortages. It's been a relief to me to get into a small place where the rooms are few and small. Don't take so much work and it's more comfortable."

"What you peddling there?" snapped Winston. "How much are those eggs?" He advanced with a scowl, intending to poke among the contents of the cart with his cane. He looked up with a jerk. Pettigrew had nonchalantly answered, "Only a dollar a dozen."

"Why, I used to sell a dozen of 'em and the hen that laid 'em, for half that," he started to complain in shrill tones.

"We won't haggle," interrupted Pettigrew, lifting his hand. "I've got too many customers begging for them. If you expect me to stop here mornings you'll have to use more diplomacy and take what you can get regardless of price."

"Are you aware," shrieked Jacob Winston, clearing his throat, "that I now have a part interest in what was once the Pettigrew shops?"

"I didn't know," answered Pettigrew, showing no signs of being impressed. "I'll tell my son, Tom. He's working down there. He told me this morning he was on the committee to wait on the owners concerning a raise all around the first of the month. He'll probably be here to see you before the day's over."

"I'll fire him outright if he does," snorted Jacob Winston. "That's what you did to me."

"Tut, tut," cautioned Pettigrew, benevolently. "You can't do that. Not that Tom would care, because there's other places where he could do as well or better. But nowadays you meet the committee half way. I think myself the boys ought to have shorter hours. How about some of these apples? Two pounds for a quarter."

Jacob Winston purchased nothing, but his failure to do so did not deter old Mr. Pettigrew from whistling as he continued his way down the alley.

Mr. Winston turned back toward the house, but he did not stop there. He started down the street for a walk. He wanted to think. No, he didn't want to think. There was an old acquaintance downtown who kept a place he had patronized in the days before he had started to save for his triumph—his triumph that was in ashes. For more than ten years Mr. Winston had not tasted liquor in any form, fearing that doing so would interfere with his bank account. Now——

In a haze he reached the street number, brushed past the swinging doors, stepped up to the bar. In a haze he answered the greeting of his old acquaintance, who was polishing glasses.

"Haven't seen you for a long time, Jacob. Where you been?"

"Out of the world for ten years," sighed Winston, drawing a hand across his eyes. "Buried in the wilds for ten years, drubbing away. Give me a stiff one—the strongest you've got!"

Jacob Winston withdrew his hand from before his eyes, looked up. After his experiences of the morning he was prepared for almost anything, but a minute later he received his final shock. He discovered that he was drowning his disappointment in a dish of strawberry sundae.

Said the Lady to Larry O'Gorman

Now I'll go and lie to him and say ye know naught. It'll be all on meself—and that for his law!" Larry snapped a contemptuous finger in his palm.

"But what has been done?" wailed Esther.

"Lochinvar!" insisted O'Gorman. "According to the pome—and I'm strong on the hint in a pome. But we had to tie Tomah Danah's feet to get him down there. He's sure a stubborn jack, and his brain is obchuse to the jog in a good pome. Howe'er, we got him to the castle hall—and then we made a bee of the Lochinvar job—and we broke the jam with a clean sweep and took the lad and the lass to a place so snug that all the racing and chasing amounts to naught—and Injuns ain't Injuns to spy the trail no more. And the men who keep company with Tomah and the lass, till we have the word from you, will ne'er give 'em up if all the Tarratines this side o' tophet dig up the tomahawk! Now, where will it be, and when will it be? The word is for you to say."

Esther slumped down on the stairs. She stared up at the amisible blunderhead who was making no account of convenances or licenses or authority.

"I'll go over to him and tell the lie for your sake," volunteered Larry. "I sure owe ye the payment of a few lies for my letting mintion o' you slip into the tumblehop o' the mixup!"

The strength came back to Esther's limbs and the color to her cheeks. She leaped up from the stairs and grasped O'Gorman's hand. Craven enough to desert her champion in that crisis? She stamped upon the mere suggestion of such cowardice when she clicked her heel hard on the polished wood.

"Mr. O'Gorman, I have already told you that you are a man after my own heart!"

"Ah! Ye did so, miss!"

"And you are! I accept all the responsibility for this affair. I'll take charge of it from now on. Will you wait here for me? I'm going to talk to Governor Susep Nicolin, now that I can talk to a man instead of to a bunch of feathers."

She returned past O'Gorman, the somber chief trudging at her heels; she had obtained from the hotel clerk the loan of the private office for a conference.

Larry O'Gorman grabbed Nicolin's arm and detained the Indian with a clutch that sank into the flesh. He spoke low. "Whisht, Susep! You do as the colleen asks you to do. You know the way o' Larry O'Gorman now. And I'm telling ye that if ye don't come out of your nonsense it'll be as the pome says: 'The lost bride o' Netherby ne'er shall ye see.' This is one time that a pote speaks truth as well as portry! On with ye! Mind your ways, man!" He shoved the father along at Esther's heels.

Larry sat down on the stairs and waited, his eyes on the door that barred him out.

The clerk came from behind the desk and strolled to the big boss. "You seem to know Miss Virabell pretty well, O'Gorman!"

"O, aye!" returned Larry.

"Special business on today with her?"

"Yes!"

"Well, the women folks are dabbing into affairs—even the young ones—these days. Hope you're standing in well enough to get a boost!" The clerk was then called back to his duties by a guest.

Larry set his elbows on his knees and propped his chin in his hands, never moving his eyes from the closed door.

Being a man after an impulsive girl's own heart in the poetry of romance was all right enough—maybe! Even in the case of a Virabell! But business was business when it came to the hard and fast system of the Great Telos! He had been swaggering before a stockholder, laying off men, guaranteeing wages, and had boasted to her, not five minutes before, that a crew that ought to be toting supplies was serving as escort for a captured bride and an involuntary Lochinvar!

"It's all right whilst the whir of it all is in the noddle of her! But later the colleen will cool and her folks will mind themselves o' the money part. It's the way of 'em from the city! A boost, said he! A bump, says I."

When she came hurrying out to O'Gorman her face was alight with the ecstasy of success; but she stopped in the little brisk of a dance she did before him and was plainly daunted by the lugubrious sag of his countenance as he struggled up and made his obeisance.

"Are you ill, Mr. O'Gorman?"

"I am hearty, Miss Virabell, sir—esquire—no—no; I know naught what I say. It's only that ye're me boss and——"

"O pshaw! That has nothing to do with the wonderful thing you and I have managed! Listen and smile, or else I'll be tempted to box your ears. Come along here, Governor Nicolin! I want you to tell Mr. O'Gorman the news. 'Twill sound so good coming from you."

The sachem's face was impassive. But in his eyes glowed unmistakable satisfaction. "My girl will have Tomah Danah for a husband very soon."

"That's no news!" growled Larry, his gloom unpierced.

"Tomah Danah will have a new and very fine set of camps, where he and Zarlona will live and have city boarders who pay well."

"I'll fill his camps with so many rich folks that his place will be paid for in no time," promised Esther, and she gave O'Gorman the benefit of a moue. "These Tarratines!" she murmured. "They are so notional about obligations!"

"The news is not so bad," admitted Larry. "But a good white water man is lost from the Great Telos drive."

Nicolin drew a deep breath. "And Docite Carriveau, with his broken nose——"

O'Gorman leaped forward and smashed down on Nicolin's shoulder the flat of a big palm with a force that knocked both breath and speech out of the astounded governor. Then the boss seized both of the sachem's hands and danced the offended and crestfallen dignitary around the hotel office in a dizzy rigadoon, to the astonishment of the guests and the shame of the stoical Indian.

"I hope all congratulations on ye!" Larry shouted. When he was at a safe distance away from Esther he rasped in Susep's ear: "Another lisp o' that or aught else what happened and I'll lape astraddle the tongue o' ye and spur ye with spike soled boots from here to Pattagumon."

"But Mr. O'Gorman! One moment," called Esther when the boss had completed an understanding and had moderated his transports. He went to her.

"I want you to have something of your very own to rejoice over. As soon as I can see Uncle Andrew in New York——"

"Your pardon, miss!" he entreated, his eyes glistening. "But there's only one thing I'm looking for'rard to right now!"

"And what is that?"

"I showed Tomah Danah that I was the best man when I downed him and lashed his ope foot to t'other. And now that he runs to his wedding, upstanding, as becomes a rale lad of a Lochinvar, who'll be the best man onst again?" He slapped his hand on his breast. "'Tis Larry O'Gorman. I'm looking for'rard to it!"

chief would be just the sort to wear into the woods the air of dignity expressed by a bowler hat.

The governor stopped and held up his dare to say that he is not good."

"All I say about Tomah Danah is this: He is not the one I have picked to be the husband for my girl. And my maiden who might have acquired wings during his absence.

"Something wicked has happened. Her father is the governor of the Tarratines and he has come and taken her away with him."

"You may have Tomah, miss! And so the old man took the colleen!"

"Yes, sir. She is to be married tomorrow

"Sure I used to speak it for a piece in school."

"Set your feet on the dancing block and sluice," commanded the boss.

The cookee took his place and pitched his voice in a shrill monotone, starting up at the camp rafters.

absorption in Miss Virabell. "But Tomah says he cannot guide us beyond here."

The young Indian had set down the canoe.

"Why do you tell her that, Tomah Danah?" demanded the boss.

"I must work for the Great Telos."

"I give ye the day off!"

"I cannot go to Pattagamon," declared the Indian.

Larry turned to Esther. "You'll have a guide to take you to the wedding, never ye fear. I order ye to go, Tomah Danah!"

"I cannot go."

"Who is bossing this crew, me man?"

The Indian shifted his gaze from the scowling overlord to the ground, after a lingering and piteous appeal with his eyes.

"Please, will you walk aside with me for a moment, Mr. O'Gorman?" Esther invited.

"Of course you understand why he doesn't want to go, sir," said Esther when the two were out of earshot.

Larry expressed himself promptly as to Tomah's quality as a Lochinvar.

"O, that's not it!" declared the girl disconsolately. "There's no more of that spirit left in this cut and dried world. I'm not dragging him down there to make him reckless or miserable. But I have something to say to Governor Susep Nicolin. I'm hoping that I'll find him in a more reasonable state of mind. I need Tomah with me when I talk."

"I'm always strong meself to play a hunch, miss."

"I don't dare to explain my plan to Tomah just yet, Mr. O'Gorman. I'm finding Indians such obstinate creatures!" she complained.

Mr. O'Gorman fondled his ear. He had discovered, according to his own appraisal of the situation, a great deal of significance in the earnest stare she was giving him.

"But I must have your help, Mr. O'Gorman. You understand!"

"I have a wit of me own that has never gone back on me in a pinch," admitted Larry complacently. "I'm on! Bless ye, I'm in, too! L'ave it to me!"

Esther was bewildered by this headlong spirit of coöperation.

"We have come to an understanding, and I take the main burden on meself. When a lady has used her head, it's for a man to use his hands. Niver ye fear! And I have reasons of me own."

In spite of her efforts to receive O'Gorman's proffer of aid with thankfulness, Esther's manner showed doubt instead of relief.

"Mum's the word, miss. I'm no hand to peer and pry. A lady must needs save her face—and anny word that it was connived shall ne'er bring a blush to ye!"

"Just what do you mean, Mr. O'Gorman?" stammered the girl.

The boss pointed to Tomah. "I mane I'll handle him."

Then Miss Virabell did show distinct relief. Of such was her quest; it was the service that she required from this master of men.

"O, now we understand each other, Mr. O'Gorman!"

"I'll handle him according to your own taste! You have hinted on the thing in only a genteel, lady way, but I know what is wanted. I'll manage him."

"You're one after my own heart, Mr. O'Gorman!"

"But whisht! It must be after my own way!"

He stepped a few paces away from her and called: "Here, Angus Bain!"

The Scotchman, who was toiling up the trail, laid down his burden and advanced. "I lay ye off the job, my man, till ye guide the ladies to Pattagamon and the return."

"But——" Esther raised protesting hands.

"No better tyke than Angus on the river, miss, with the ash breeze! And ye can swap with him all the talk ye will about Lochinvar, because Angus knew the lad well."

"But I need Tomah!"

"Ye'll sure have him, miss, all in good time! But the whisht must be held! Ye must step lightly. I have known the trick ever since I kicked the froth of the Racing Horse into a bubble and rode ashore on the bulge of it."

He hurried away from her and lifted the canoe upon Angus Bain's shoulders. "On your way, man, for the wedding won't wait."

His tongue running full tilt, to the exclusion of all of Esther's efforts to put in a plaintive word, O'Gorman sent the matron and the maiden on their way, showering them with good-bys and good wishes.

"Ut's aye a headstrong mon he is, wi' high conceit of his ainsel'," Angus ventured to comment. "I'd not trust his judgment——" He broke off in order to adjust the canoe which had been tossed upon his shoulders by the boss with scant care for the guide's comfort.

Esther gasped and slowed her pace with the air of one about to abandon an enterprise.

"His judgment," continued the guide, "on matters connected wi' the gr-rand meenstreelsy o' Scotland. But on the ways o' men—and on his opeenion o' mesel' as a braw mon wi' a canoe—and in doing the deed he says he'll do, he's toler-r-rably richt!"

The dea ex machina went on with a better display of confidence.

The beauties of the ten miles of placid river below "The Devilbrew," on the way to Pattagamon, interested Mrs. Jocelyn; she and Angus did all the talking; Esther was allowed to busy herself with her thoughts. She was comforted and encouraged in spite of her doubts! Mr. O'Gorman seemed to be sure of himself and of the right way to manage Tomah Danah!

Rounding a great bend of the river, they saw Pattagamon. The thrust of the chapel's steeple from among the willows and from the huddle of the little houses did not suggest to Esther the consolations of religious peace; that spire was a warning finger, like the finger that the Governor had raised the day before. "Here, this night, is to be wedded the daughter of Governor Nicolin of the Tarratines," the steeple seemed to signal. "Let no meddlesome pale-face interfere," it warned.

"I'm glad I came," confided Mrs. Jocelyn amiably. "You were lucky to have an invitation that would include me, Esther, dear. It's going to be so picturesque, and such a lovely experience, I'm sure!"

Miss Virabell was not at all sure. But she informed herself that, in spite of his title, Susep Nicolin was only a squatty man who wore ready made clothes and a hard hat. Of course, there was his Indian pride, and all that, but he had distinctly stated his reason—his sole and especial reason—why he would not have Tomah Danah as son-in-law. Her plan, so Esther induced herself to believe, would take care of his objection. Talk of the people? Surely there could not be much more talk than had been stirred by a girl's flight on the day set for the wedding! Another postponement, and even another bridegroom, would not make much more opportunity for gossip.

Angus, displaying his ability as a canoeman, made a gallant spurt of the last stage of the journey, for there was a considerable crowd of observers on the shore, near the landing place.

The ranks of the people opened when the canoe surged up to the float with froth at the prow. Governor Susep Nicolin walked through the press and stood at the edge of the shore, his hands outstretched to assist Esther from the canoe.

But this was Governor Nicolin in the sachem garb of the Tarratines—the festival dress of his forefathers. The eagle feathers towered from the fillet that bound his hair. Esther stared up at him from the canoe and wondered how it was that he had grown so tall; her eyes were dazzled by the flash of the rays of the setting sun reflected from the cuirass of his beaded jacket.

"You are welcome to the wedding, mamselle."

He helped her to step from the canoe; he assisted Mrs. Jocelyn and bowed when Esther stammered an introduction. "All are welcome to Pattagamon today."

The girl instantly realized that if she hesitated, if she waited to weigh the pro against the con, if she paused to take full account of stock of this new personage, her cause was lost. She lashed her flagging courage with the limp things of her natural impulsiveness. "Governor Nicolin, may I have a few words with you in private?"

He led the way to a knoll and the two of them stood on the crest of it. The people gazed up at them from below.

"It doesn't seem so very private," complained Esther.

"They will not hear."

"Of course you know it's about Zarlona. That's why I am here. I have a plan."

"That plan—it means she marries Tomah Danah?"

"Yes! But listen!"

"I have no ears for such a plan, mam'selle. No!" He put up his hand.

"But this is business!"

"Business at Pattagamon waits till after the wedding! I have given orders. I set the example." He waved his hand, directing her attention to the throng of idlers.

"May I talk with Zarlona?"

"After the wedding."

"Will you not listen to——"

"After the wedding, mam'selle! Now I go. Have much to do." He turned his back on her and started down the mound. The eagle feathers, horrent in his crest and trailing to his heels in a double row, his manner, all his dress, made him something almost unreal, in Esther's new estimate of him. Arguing with that personage seemed to be like trying to beat sense into a picture in a book!

Esther, with all those upturned eyes circling her, was stricken with stage fright. The Indians continued to survey her as if they expected her to make a speech! That embarrassing situation in itself was enough to put a girl to flight! But the thought of the mental torture she would suffer by remaining to behold the poor victim sacrificed to Docite Carriveau was a stronger compelling motive for retreat.

Esther ran down to Angus, who was carefully upturning the canoe on the pull-out rack. "Put it in the water! Come, Mrs. Jocelyn!"

"Come?" echoed that incredulous lady.

"Yes! We're going to start back—at once—back to the hotel!"

Mr. Bain entertained no doubts as to who were his bosses on that day and date—one was present and the other was up the river—and O'Gorman was never a reasonable man when orders had not been obeyed.

"But it's coming night!" sputtered the matron.

Bain set the canoe upon the water and Esther stepped in.

Angus turned to Mrs. Jocelyn. "'Tis the full o' the moon and moonlicht aye makes the gr-rand path o' the reever. Gie me your hand, madam, and step carefu'."

Mrs. Jocelyn obeyed orders.

"Esther Virabell, tell me what all this means!" demanded Mrs. Jocelyn as soon as they were on their way.

"I have not one word to say."

"You're getting to be quite an Indian in this new freak of keeping your mouth shut!"

The lurch that Miss Virabell gave the canoe when she swirled around from her seat in the bow to face Mrs. Jocelyn nearly upset the craft. "Don't you dare to intimate to me that I'm like an Indian or want to be like one! I hate the whole tribe! I don't care to spoil the peace of a calm evening by silly gabble, that's all!"

After that robust retort there were no sounds except Angus Bain's rhythmic grunts of effort and the lisp of his paddle blade in the water. Even when the moon rolled its disk of glory into the eastern sky—a spectacle to provoke the usual paean of feminine praise—Mrs. Jocelyn maintained her reproachful silence.

Therefore, in that stillness, those in the canoe could hear sounds from afar. Esther listened for some time to a chorus of men's voices, increasing in volume, coming nearer from up the river.

"If I may make so free as to ventur-re my thoowt, ut's the Busters of O'Gorman's crew, and they're singing one of his come-all-ye's. On to the wedding, most like!" said Angus.

"I don't care to be seen by any rabble of that sort! Turn the canoe to the shore and wait under the shadows!" commanded the girl irritably.

To meet Boss O'Gorman—to venture into the tumult of that oncoming hilarity—to confess that she had not been able to wedge in edgewise one word of her grand plan when she had been face to face with Governor Nicolin! Her cheeks burned while the canoe floated in the blessed shadows. Thinking on Governor Susep Nicolin, as she had seen him last, pondering on her puny efforts at meddling, Esther quite convinced herself that she had been going through an attack of midsummer madness; that she was sane once more was proved by her ability to perceive now what a fool she had been making of herself and by her determination to mind her own business from then on, she decided.

Bateaux went surging down the middle of the moonlit river. Men were crowded into boats and the blades of the sweeping oars tossed up the flashing waters. A voice, which was unmistakably that of Larry O'Gorman, bawled the singers into silence. "I'll give ye the lilt o' the new varse, meself, and ye're to come in on the chorus.

"'Qw, the ways o' her were all ginteel, tho' roguish were her eyes.
Says she to me, 'The lad for me, 'tis e'er the lad who tries!'
Says I to her, ''Twill sure be done! Fair maid, I bow my knee,
And I do whate'er a ladee says when she says a thing to me.'"

Then came the call for "chorus!"

"'Whoop, all good men, and mind your step whene'er the ladees say!
So shall ye win the hearts o' them, sing larry down ay day!'"

"Paddle on!" commanded Esther when the river was clear again.

"Ut's a gang thot kens better what to do at a log jam than at a wedding," averred Angus. "I wonder what's prompting 'em to mak' so free wi' the merrymakings for Nicolin's dochter!"

Esther was obliged to stir Mrs. Jocelyn into resentful wakefulness at the Big Carry.

The same services were required when Angus put the canoe alongside the float at the Wild River house. He put up a protesting palm when Esther drew her purse. "It's all in the day's work, miss! And a moonlicht sail I hae e'er relished from my young days till now."

But she persisted and jammed money into his fist. "I will call the watchman and he will provide a bed for you."

"Lbsh! Naething o' the sort! I relish the first prickings o' daylight as well as I relish the moon. And it's not long, as I paddle down, ere the sun will be in my een. Good morning to you!"

In the dimly lighted rotunda Esther halted and surveyed Mrs. Jocelyn as if wondering just what to say to the blinking and furious chaperon.

"Esther Virabell, if you think you're going to talk to me now—I warn you——"

"I have no notion of talking—I'll even save my apologies till after breakfast, Mrs. Jocelyn."

Esther was considerably surprised when she woke and glanced at her watch and discovered that it was near noon. The purring of the house telephone had awakened her. A voice from the office informed her that a man was waiting. "It's Boss O'Gorman of the Great Telos, Miss Virabell, and he says that the business is important."

Stricken, ashamed, apprehensive, Esther faltered a promise to come down as soon as possible.

In the first tumult of her emotions she hurried to attire herself—and then she dallied over the final touches, dreading to face what was awaiting her below.

Once more her telephone summoned her. "Beg pardon, Miss Virabell, but an Indian who says he is Governor Susep Nicolin of the Tarratines is waiting."

The young lady would have felt fully justified in pleading indisposition at that moment, but she gasped some sort of a reply and hung up the receiver. She descended by way of the broad stairway, slowly and shrinkingly.

Larry O'Gorman was posted at the foot of the stairs. But instead of the ominous scowl and reproaching words that she expected she was greeted with an ecstatic grin.

"The top o' the morning to ye, after a night o' glory," he cried, sweeping her a bow.

In her uncertainty as to how to meet his expansive joviality she looked past him; saw Governor Nicolin standing in the broad door of the hotel rotunda, a black splotch against the streaming sunlight, in the mufti of his store clothes; but his matter of fact garb no longer helped the courage of Miss Virabell. That saturnine visage was distinctly alarming.

"Whisht! Old Big Warwhoop has trailed me here, but don't ye mind him."

"Trailed you?" Visions of the enormities of the warpath flared in the girl's mind.

"Aye! But not by sniff and squint as they did in the old days when an Injun was a rale Injun. He followed close at me back after I started for here when Angus had reported to me. And now, when will ye have it, and where will ye have it?"

"Have what?" choked Esther.

"Ah! Your play is the right one!" indorsed Larry, cocking a knowing eyebrow. "A lady must aye save her face in a ginteel way." He laid his forefinger beside his nose and winked. "Lochinvar!" he whispered.

Esther stared anxiously at that threatening blur in the sunlight.

"Ye need not mind him, miss! He daren't come closer, after my word to him. We had our understanding, him and me, at the depot camp when he came ranting in there this morning. He may be chief on Pattagamon, but I'm boss on the lands of the Great Telos!" He opened his hand and then slowly closed his big fist. His face dismissed the grin. "Now he knows I'm boss."

But Mr. O'Gorman was not finding in this young lady's countenance that triumphant joy for which he had been looking—not even after he had reassured her in regard to Governor Susep Nicolin's new tractability.

"Sorry the day! You must have guessed, for I don't see how you could have heard. But, mayhap, you'll give me pardon after confession," he went on contritely. "I was taking it all on meself! 'Twas your head for the plans but the hands of meself for the job—and 'twas open and above beca'se all could see the face of me and the mugs o' my boys who were with me. But in tussling with all the Injuns on Pattagamon—in the stir and the whir of it—you know how a hint may slip o'er the teeth—and the Busters were bound to cheer for 'the colleen o' the city' after 'twas over—and—and——"

"Mr. O'Gorman, what is it—what has been done?"

"Ah! Bless ye, that's it—that's the play to make whilst he's peering and harking!

The Thrill of the Wheel

His Revenge Was Well Planned, But He Didn't Take Into Consideration

By Olcy Ethel Street

"The old man invested wrong somewhere. It was a big surprise when the crash came."

"Did me good to hear of it when I got back here," grinned Jacob Winston. "Things turned my way about the same time they always set Alice on the warpath. And it had that undesirable effect now.

"But, madre," she challenged—though the gauntlet was evidently intended to land at the feet of Merrial—"Uncle James married Aunt Theodora, and she was English, and certainly we are English, and he has sent Merrial over here to stay with us."

"O no, he hasn't; dad never sends me anywhere," said Merrial quietly. "I sent myself."

There was a moment's silence. Surprise flashed from one to the other of the Beaufort faces. Winifred's lifted eyebrows addressed questioning surprise to madre, but produced no response; she evidently "gave it up."

"And I'm so glad I did," went on the slight, level voice. "For you are all so nice to me—so extra-or-din-ar-i-ly nice!"

It was the first word she had pronounced with any very decided difference of inflection. She gave each short syllable of it an emphasis, as though she had been using the word as a series of stepping stones for a quick run across a stream. It made the word seem very long and very emphatic.

Alice had flushed.

So this cool young woman of her own volition had planted herself on their hands for a whole summer at the Grange, and had prevented that possible cure at the baths which Dr. Unwin had prescribed for Hubert. What effrontery!

"I don't believe she's poor at all," thought Alice savagely, noting the perfect traveling gown, the dainty shoes, and the quiet self-assurance of her cousin's face. "A girl who was really dependent on us for a home simply wouldn't look like that. I know it's some horrid American swindle. She's probably come here to get something—a titled Englishman, ten to one. She'll be setting her cap at Henry Rivington, so that she can be Lady Rivington. Good heavens! I don't see how I'm going to get through the summer with her."

And Alice Beaufort groaned in spirit.

"Have you seen your brother yet, Merrial?" Mrs. Beaufort was asking.

"Yes, he met me at Morley's. It's very nice to know that he's with me in England."

She was smiling as if reminiscently. Amusement, silent but most expressive, possessed Merrial's face, making it for the moment almost wildly impish. Alice, watching her, found herself quoting mentally from "La Belle Dame sans Merci":

"I met a lady on the mead . . .
Her hair was long, her step was light,
And her eyes were wild."

It was a different sort of wildness, Alice had to confess. But it gave promise of something in Merrial which piqued her cousin's hopeful curiosity.

"And how does he enjoy Oxford?" Mrs. Beaufort had inquired.

"O, awfully," laughed Merrial, with a decidedly English intonation—but without the least touch of unkind caricature. "In fact, I'm afraid they're quite spoiling him with their kindness," she added ambiguously.

"When will he come and see us?" asked Hubert. "Doesn't he hate being away from bronchoes and ranches and all that kind of thing?"

"I'm sure he'd love to come, if you'll invite him, Hubert. And then you can ask him how he contrives to support existence away from home."

And then she threw back her head and laughed merrily, and Hubert began to have hopes, too; though perhaps they took a rather different direction from Alice's.

"We know a Mr. Houlton who's at Oxford," Alice remarked.

"How very funny! Is he an American, too?"

"No, decidedly not. I asked him if he had any American relations, but he didn't know of any. He can't be connected with your family, I'm sure."

"Evidently not," said Merrial evenly.

That evening, when she had been left to the airy silence of her own bedroom, Merrial perched herself on the window seat, settled a writing pad on her knee, and wrote:

"Dad dear: It's just too delightful here for words. The country is good enough to eat, and this house is my ideal of an English home—so quiet, and old, and restful—very, very simple, of course; in fact almost primitive, and I guess Aunt Margaret Beaufort is poor, though you can't always tell with English people, for they seem to like being shabby and keeping to the old ways—even the inconvenient ones.

"Aunt Margaret is—Well, dad, if you weren't the most sensitive person in the world, you'd never have thought she'd snub you, never! And the girls are dears, especially Alice. She's so difficult, and you know—O, don't you know?—what fun it is to get round a difficult person! Besides, Alice is as honest as the day, and her eyes fairly shout out to you whatever she happens to be thinking. I certainly do like her, though she has the nastiest idea of me ever! Winfred is about to become a raving, tearing beauty, and doesn't know it all. I'm afraid she must be a little stupid, or, at 19, she'd be a grain more aware of her 'fatal gift,' but it's the sort of stupidity you can't help loving.

"I haven't seen Aunt Jane yet, and no one has mentioned her. I hope she isn't dead.

"It's very funny! All of them here at the Grange imagine you 'sent' me over here. I suppose English girls generally do get 'sent,' and are less independent (not to say less tyrannical to their parents—how about it?) than we are. They were evidently quite bowled over when I said I'd come of my own volition. What would they think if they knew that I'd told you not to 'butt in' and that I intended to paddle my own canoe on this little trip!

"Of course they think I'm penniless and homeless and all that.

"As for Dick, you'd never know him! He met me at Morley's. I was watching a young man 'er-er'-ing over the office desk and looking too unutterably English, just like the yah-yah monocle type you see on the stage, when it turned round, and—it was Dick himself! He had a mustache, and an English accent, and tweeds and everything, and used the most interminably broad 'a's.' He was afraid to death of being taken for an American—as if an American could ever look quite such a goose!—and wanted to get me out of sight at once. He said I was too 'smartly' dressed, and oughtn't to wear French clothes. Whenever I said 'bin' for 'bean' (which is English for 'been,' as you probably know), or 'I guess' or talked audibly, he was perfectly wretched.

"It's rather a shame, as he used to be such a nice, natural boy, but I suppose he'll grow out of it. He talked a lot about a 'Lady Rivington'—whoever she may be—but wouldn't let me meet her; said, later on perhaps, my dear.' He was evidently very elated at having been at a titled house party! He could talk of nothing else.

"I didn't suggest his coming to see me at Aunt Margaret's, as you said you didn't want him to. But I wish you'd change your mind. To be thought English seems to be his one ambition just now. He looks splendid, and is handsomer than ever—if only he weren't such a goose! He never even asked me what I'd come over for—he was so engrossed in his Anglo-mania.

"Will write more soon, dad, but I'm tired. Those soft coo-coo voices have made me sleepy. Do work hard and get rich again quick—but don't work too hard, and don't get too rich.

"Your loving daughter, MERRIE."

. . . . . .

Luncheon at the Grange was a delightfully chatty, leisurely meal. Merrial felt more at home at it than at the Beauforts' "forage for yourself" breakfast table, with "hot dishes" kept warm under an alcohol lamp on a side table, or at the rather dignified late dinner.

"I can tell you how strange it seems to be with so many women," she said, laying down her fork and looking round the table. "Before I got to Boston, last February, I hadn't seen a woman for six months."

Her eyes rested upon Hubert, who sat in his wheeled chair, in which he was always brought from his couch in the sitting room. She was wondering whether her visits to D'Reval's hospital would ultimately avail to make his life worth living.

"When I was a little girl and lived in Crystal Creek—ah! There were giants in those days, and rigged out to kill!"

Winifred and Mrs. Beaufort voiced their surprise. "Six months, without seeing a woman!" A hopeful gleam shot across Hubert's face. Surely this sounded like possible adventurous doing in a wild country; where there are no women surely cowboys and buffaloe might put in an appearance! He listened with all his ears. As for Alice, she remained stony. She had made up her mind to wait and see; meanwhile she had adopted an attitude of scepticism toward Merrial's accounts of herself.

"How was that, Merrial?" asked Mrs. Beaufort.

"I went into a mining camp with dad. He had been having trouble with an opposition combine, and had to go out west and stay on the spot. I'd been abroad so long that another six months away from him was just too impossible. So I went along. We had to rough it—regular camping. A dirty little shanty, no bath—nothing!"

"Was that in the part of America that ranches are in?" asked Hubert eagerly. "Were the men all cowboys?"

"No—not just round there. But there were lots of miners; splendid fellows, too, in their way, but pretty rough. I loved the mining camp life."

"Where are the cowboys, then, Merrial?" Hubert asked almost with exasperation.

"They're out in the cattle region. Dad had a ranch out there, and Dick and I and a friend of ours, Tripp Hart, had barrels of fun together, riding and camping out."

"O, do tell us about that," urged Hubert, sitting up almost straight in his excitement, his face flushing scarlet with excitement. At last he had succeeded in getting this American cousin of his to step outside the bounds of humdrum conversation!

"Cowboys—or cattle punchers as we call them—don't amount to much for picturesqueness these days. They've given up all those queer ways of dressing themselves; you only see that kind on the stage—or in the movies, now. But when I was a little girl and lived in Crystal Creek—ah! There were giants in those days, and rigged out to kill!"

"Giants! And did they really kill people?" Hubert was all agog!

"I should say so! There was a regular cattle war. I can remember scenes that make me shiver now, though at the time they merely seemed rather exciting. Dad was in the thick of it. He represented law and order. Poor dad—law and order were in a sad minority."

"Do tell us all about it, dear," begged Mrs. Beaufort, seeing Hubert's shining eyes fixed upon his cousin. This was "wild" enough in all conscience, he was saying to himself. Even Alice was keyed up!

Merrial, playing to Hubert as sole audience, launched bravely into a tale of wild western feud and fight, the leaders of each side rallying their range riders and cattle punchers as liege lords summoned their retainers and knights in the brave days of old. The description she gave of these true happenings was literally punctuated with revolver shots fired from wheeling ponies, frenzied with the yells and cries of the combatants. Both she and Tripp had been in it—though they might not take sides, as James Houlton, with the sheriff's posse, had the job of separating the fighters and doing his best to restore peace.

"But the Bar K ranch men made off with one of the leaders of the other lot, and we only found it out after the Bar K men had all scattered, and we were busy binding up wounds. So dad had to post off and scour the country with some of the rest, and try and stop them hanging their prisoner to a cottonwood tree. I was left in Tripp's care and both of us were set to work to look after the patients."

"Did they hang him?" asked Hubert, breathlessly.

"No. Dad found them just in time to cut the rope. If the Bar K men hadn't known dad so well, and liked him, they'd have strung him up, too. But he was so cool and straight about it—and they knew it was his job—so they let him ride off with their prisoner and just told him they'd be slicker next time and beat him to it."

Alice's ears were tingling. Was it possible, she asked herself, that this quiet looking girl, with her calm eyes, had really seen such things and taken part in them? And if so, why wasn't she slangy and noisy and rough, ordinarily?

The TEENIE WEENIES. THE COOK IS RESCUED. BY WM. DONAHEY.

OLD Nick, a rat with a bad reputation, captures the Cook while the Teenie Weenies were taking a walk one evening. He tells the little people if they fail to bring a piece of cheese to his hole by 8 o'clock the next morning, they will never see the Cook again.

As the rat slunk off into the night, dragging the poor Cook in his big mouth, the Teenie Weenies were filled with horror and they stood still for some time blinking into the darkness.

"Call out the army," cried the Turk. "And we'll go after that rat in double quick time."

"No," said the General, "It wouldn't do a bit of good to call out the army, for Old Nick lives in a hole where it would be mighty hard to get at him and besides he is a very powerful and tough old fellow. We will be compelled to try some other plan."

"Ah, just go right in that hole and twist that rat's tail!" cried Tess Bone. "Give his tail a good twist and he'll be as meek as a caterpillar. You men are all the time wantin' to get the army out. Just let me get at that rat and I'll tell him a thing or two," and Buddy Guff had to hold the brave little girl or she'd have gone straight off to the rat's hole.

"Well, there is one sure thing," said the General, "we've got to get that piece of cheese which old Nick demands, and the sooner we find it the better."

Several of the Teenie Weenie men were sent out in search of the cheese while the General and the Old Soldier hurried to the shoe house to talk the matter over.

"We've got to make that rat understand that he can not do this sort of thing," said the Old Soldier when the two Teenie Weenies were seated inside the tiny library. "He has given us a great deal of trouble and he'll try this kidnapping trick again if he is not thoroughly punished."

"You're right," agreed the General. "And I think we'll go over and see our friend the tiger cat and get his help."

At daylight the next morning the Old Soldier and the General called on their friend the cat and asked his help. The cat agreed to help the Teenie Weenies and he promised to meet the little folks in the cellar where old Nick had his hole.

At the appointed time the Teenie Weenies carried the cheese up to the rat's hole, where they found the cat sitting patiently on the floor directly above the entrance to Nick's home.

"Well," cried the General when old Nick appeared at the hole, "we've brought the cheese you asked as ransom for the Cook and we will give it to you as soon as the Cook is set free."

"All right," growled the rat disappearing into the hole, and presently the Cook walked out and joined his friends.

As soon as the Teenie Weenies walked away from the hole the rat made a dive for the cheese and at the same time the cat leaped on to old Nick's back.

As the cat's sharp claws sunk into the rat's back he let out such a rat cry it would have frozen the coldest blood in the coldest veins of the coldest turtle alive.

Unfortunately the rat was lucky enough to free himself and escape, but he lost considerable rat skin and hair and to the great joy of the Teenie Weenies he hasn't been seen since.

The Teenie Weenie doll can be made by cutting the picture out and pasting it on to a piece of cardboard. When thoroughly dry cut the cardboard away along the edge of the picture. The doll can be made to stand up by pasting a flap to the back of the figure.

MICE AND MEN

by Katherine Newlin Burt

THE STORY THUS FAR—Merrial Houlton is deeply concerned over the unrelenting attitude of her dead mother's family, in England, toward her father, with whom Merrial's relatives have had nothing to do since her mother was married and went to live on a western ranch. Poring over a pile of old letters which reveal this estrangement, the girl is interrupted by a call from Tripp Hart, an old time playmate from the west, who comes to urge his claim as a prospective husband and is regretfully rejected. The same evening Merrial asks her father about the relatives in England and about her brother Dick, who is there at school. Her father suspects a purpose beneath her questioning, but Merrial will not reveal it. Nor will she confide in Gertrude Hart, Tripp's sister, whom she meets by chance at the theater and who revives Merrial's memories of her childhood on the ranch by her insistent talk of Tripp and his apparently hopeless love affair. Later, when her father tells her he has failed in business Merrial announces that she is going to England to visit her mother's people while he is getting on his feet again. The family in England—Alice and Winifred Beaufort, their mother, and Hubert, an invalid brother—await the American girl's coming with mixed emotions.

THIRD INSTALLMENT.

Merrial Arrives.

HUBERT lay on a couch in the pretty sitting room—a thin, listless boy of 15. His spine had been injured by an accident, and ever since he had been the tragic center of the household. In his helplessness he had come, unwittingly, to rule his pitying mother and sisters, any one of whom would have sacrificed health or life itself for his recovery. His very patience and wistful clinging to the hope of being cured made him the more appealing in his distress of mind and body.

"What is it, old chap?" Alice called as she came in.

"O, nothing much, Ally. I wondered when this precious Merrial was coming. I've been alone for such ages, and all of you've been chattering away in the garden."

Alice's heart smote her.

"I thought Kenneth had come to see you. I didn't see him go. We've been wondering and discussing what Merrial will be like. What do you think, Hubert?"

"I can't think. The books of American stories I've read don't have girls in 'em. They're all about cowboys, and ranches, and bucking bronchos. I do hope she'll be able to tell me about that sort of thing. I wonder if they have them in Boston, where she wrote from."

"I don't think they do, old man; it's quite a big city, you see; but she may know about them, all the same. When did Kenneth go?"

"He went chasing after Win. She dashed in here—and the minute she saw him she dashed out again. He says she's always doing that now—cutting off whenever he's about. Then he muttered something about it's being all his own fault."

Alice considered. She suspected that Winifred had her own reasons for "cutting off" when Kenneth called. Under Hubert's half accusing gaze her eyes wavered. It was Win's affair, not hers.

"Has Win quarreled with him, Ally?" Hubert asked, almost fretfully. "I hope not," he added wistfully, "because he's the only chap that ever comes near me, and I do get so tired of nothing but girls. O, dear! I wish Win had been a boy!"

"You don't wish it more than she does, anyhow. What shall we do—shall I read to you?"

"No. Tell me all you can about America—things I don't know; and about this girl that's coming. Wish she'd been a boy! That might have been some sport. Do you suppose she's ever seen a real cowboy, or Indian, or buffaloes?"

"Are you going to the station, Alice, or shall I?" Winifred interrupted from the doorway.

"I'll go," said Alice; "you come and play the Merrial guess game with Hubert."

Alice's features, in prospect of the undertaking to meet the American cousin, at once took on a look of grim severity. Her lips tightened. Winifred thought her sister rather formidable—too much like Aunt Jane, in fact!

"Why not both of us go?" she suggested timidly.

"How can we? It'll be the dog cart."

"Very well!"

Winifred stood at the window and anxiously watched Alice climb in and gather up the reins. She looked very straight and clean cut and smart; but somehow Winifred felt a little sorry for Merrial Houlton.

"You're awfully different from what we thought you'd be. I say—do you wear diamond rings and that sort of thing at breakfast?"

"It won't be warm welcome to England, I'm afraid," thought Winifred. "Poor Miss America!"

Half an hour later Alice stood on the station platform with her chin in the air and looked about for the "big, handsome, noisy" American cousin. Then she felt a light touch on her arm.

"I'm sure you are hunting for me," said a gentle voice. Alice turned and saw at her elbow a slight girl in gray, who looked at her with a pair of cool, clear, long lashed eyes. The owner of the eyes had, besides, a narrow, pale face, a delicate mouth, and a straight body that held itself with the light, graceful stiffness of a quill.

"I've seen to my baggage," said she. "The trunks are symmetrically arranged on the platform behind us."

Alice had been so taken aback that she had barely murmured a hesitant "How d'ye do." They moved toward the exit from the station, Alice leading the way to the dog cart still a trifle dazed.

"Shall I get in?" asked Merrial, and hopped lightly up to her seat without waiting for a reply. The stationmaster having come out to say that the young lady had arranged for her boxes, Alice got in on the other side and gathered up the reins. As she could think of nothing agreeable to say, she remained silent, and they jogged along through the sweet, hay scented air.

Merrial did not lean back. She sat up, and her cool, clear eyes traveled rapidly over the countryside. The silence did not seem to trouble her. Nevertheless it began to trouble Alice; it gave her conscience an unpleasant twinge.

"We don't go through the village to the Grange, Merrial," she said presently, waving her whip toward the distant roofs, "except when we meet trains at the other station. There's no station for our village, it's so small. Most people come to the Pulham station, as you did, or to the other station, six miles the other side."

Merrial drew a deep breath.

"It's nice," she said.

"What's nice?"

"England!"

Alice thought England so much more than nice that she made no reply. There was a faint suggestion of an heraldic lion rampant in her attitude.

"Wait till you've been here longer," she said, after a moment of self-control. Merrial looked puzzled for moment, and then gave her companion the full attention of her cool gaze.

"You are Alice, aren't you?"

"Yes; I'm the eldest—21; then comes Winifred, 19; and Hubert's the youngest—15; he's a cripple."

Alice spoke bluntly, because she felt deeply. She expected some sort of expression of interest or sympathy. None came. Only Merrial's pupils suddenly grew very large. Alice noticed it—but could not interpret; she thought Merrial's silence hard. She flicked the old horse and he made an ineffectual spurt, which jerked both their heads and drew from Merrial a small, sudden laugh.

Alice was unfeignedly glad when the unsatisfactory drive drew to a close, feeling herself grow more and more wooden every minute. "I can't like her; I know I can't," she kept thinking.

They drew up before the house, and Merrial was out almost before they had stopped. She ran lightly up the steps toward Mrs. Beaufort, who caught her in a warm embrace.

"You're not like Theodora!" murmured Merrial's aunt, as if to herself, holding her niece off a moment to study her with a wistful, searching look.

"No, I'm not like my mother, I'm afraid," said Merrial, into whose face a faint shell pink had risen delicately. "But you are, Aunt Margaret—like the portrait of her, that is. Of course, I don't remember her."

Winifred came forward and kissed Merrial in a shy, eager fashion.

"How do you do, Miss America?" she said prettily. "I'm Winifred. Hubert's longing to see you."

"Yes—come along; he's overcome with curiosity to see Cousin Merrial from America. I think he half hopes you'll be something between an Indian squaw and a cowboy," laughed Mrs. Beaufort.

But Hubert, when Merrial was brought in to his couch, was almost overcome with shyness. He could not find a word of greeting; and she took his thin hands in hers a moment, and merely said "Hubert"—and then turned away, and Mrs. Beaufort took her up to her room.

"O, Win," he said the minute they were out of earshot, "I never was so disappointed in all my life. Why, she might just as well be English. She's never seen a buffalo or an Indian, I'll bet. I sort of hoped—but what's the use of hoping, anyhow!"

"What?" asked Winifred, too sympathetic to feel amused.

"Well, I hoped at least that she'd wear a wide felt hat, and a red handkerchief around her neck, and a leather skirt and high boots, like the girl in that Remington picture Kenneth gave me. I don't believe she is an American."

Merrial's coming had been his one center of interest the last two weeks, and he found her a woeful anti-climax.

"Wait and see," advised Winifred. "She may have lots of stories to tell you—and she may even have those queer clothes in her trunks. She couldn't very well travel through London in them. Keep up your heart—she may turn into a squaw or something, any time!"

"No such luck," said Hubert ruefully. "But go upstairs and help her unpack; then you can tell me."

So Hubert's curiosity took Winifred to Merrial's room, where she sat chattering and gazing and drawing conclusions. Merrial took off her hat, washed, and brushed her hair, listening meanwhile to her cousin's talk.

"You're awfully different from what we thought you'd be," said Winifred. "How do you find us, I wonder, by comparison? What did you think we'd be like?"

"I didn't think much," answered Merrial. "I didn't have time—it was all such a rush."

"I suppose you must have been busy, packing up and everything. It must be lots of fun coming across on the steamer if you aren't ill. I suppose you never are?"

"Sometimes."

"I wonder which of us was right. Alice and I had a discussion and I want to know. I say—do you wear diamond rings and that sort of thing at breakfast?"

"No, I don't—but then perhaps that's because I haven't any to wear. Is it an English custom?"

"Heavens! No! We'd think it awfully bad form. I mean—" Winifred blushed and stammered. "That was stupid of me. I hope you're not offended."

"Not the least bit. Goodness knows what I might do if I had millions. But as a matter of fact I never could abide rings."

"Not even when you were—before Uncle James lost his money?" floundered Winifred.

Merrial brushed her hair over her face, and for an instant didn't answer.

"No—not even then," she said, and her eyes, coming out from their brown shelter, looked like pools of mirth.

Winifred descended to report to Hubert.

"I think she's nice and pretty," was Winifred's judgment, delivered to the family assembled in the sitting room around the afternoon teacups. "But I'm sorry she isn't more American."

"In what way?" asked Mrs. Beaufort.

"O, well, sort of wilder," explained Winifred vaguely.

"You bet," Hubert agreed heartily from his couch.

"She's on her good behavior now," said Alice. "Wait till we've stirred her up a bit."

Winifred looked anxiously at Alice.

"Now, Ally," she urged seriously, "don't go stirring her up to make her seem more like what you prophesied she'd be."

"Stirring up" suggested a painful process for somebody!

"She looks very like her father," remarked Mrs. Beaufort, "his eyes exactly and his build."

"Why, madre, I thought of him always as a big, beefy person," said Alice in a tone of keen disappointment.

"O no! James Houlton was very slight and wiry, and had a keen, clear cut face—too clear cut, like Merrial's, and—ah, here she is. How quick you've been, dear!"

For James Houlton's daughter was among them, looking younger without her hat and exquisitely neat with a fresh set of simple lace cuffs and collar. Her hair, of an almost silvery brown, was as soft as a child's and curled about her forehead. This, and her curved eyelashes and her quick smile, changed her face now and then so startingly that it was like the shifting of a lantern slide.

"It was very stupid of me to stay away so long from England," Merrial was saying, with her odd little air of being an entirely independent personage, with no one to consult but herself. "I often planned to go, but dad——"

"I'm afraid your father had a—a prejudice against English people," put in Mrs. Beaufort, with that hurt look in her eyes which

UNCLE SAM'S WAR TROPHY—The German battleship Ostfriesland, allotted to the United States under the terms of the peace treaty, has arrived at the Firth of Forth, in Scotland, and will be brought to this country by an American crew this month. The Ostfriesland was placed in commission in September, 1911. Its normal displacement is 22,800 tons. It measures 546 feet over-all, with a beam of 93 feet, and its complement is about 1,100 men.

This probably will be one of the first of the many Roosevelt memorial projects to find realization. The statue will be 36 feet high and depicts the colonel in one of the most romantic phases of his career—as an officer in the Spanish-American war.

Pompeian
BEAUTY POWDER

Can You Guess Her Secret?

"How well you look tonight!" he exclaimed. "Just as pretty as the day I married you. No one would think this was our tenth anniversary!"

He is right. She looks as lovely as ever. The clear flush of youth is in her cheeks, for she has learned the secret of "Instant Beauty"—the complete "Pompeian Beauty Toilette."

First, a touch of fragrant Pompeian DAY Cream (vanishing). It softens the skin and holds the powder. Work the cream well into the skin so the powder adheres evenly.

Then apply Pompeian BEAUTY Powder. It makes the skin beautifully fair and adds the charm of delicate fragrance.

Now a touch of Pompeian BLOOM for youthful color. Do you know that a bit of color in the cheeks makes the eyes sparkle with a new beauty?

Lastly, dust over again with the powder, in order to subdue the BLOOM. Presto! The face is youth-i-fied in an instant!

Note: Don't use too much BLOOM. Get a natural result.

These three preparations may be used separately or together (as above) as the complete "Pompeian Beauty Toilette." Pompeian DAY Cream (vanishing), removes face shine. Pompeian BEAUTY Powder, a powder that stays on—flesh, white, brunette. Pompeian BLOOM, a rouge that won't crumble—light, dark, medium. At all druggists, 50c each. Guaranteed by the makers of Pompeian MASSAGE Cream, Pompeian NIGHT Cream, and Pompeian Fragrance (a 25c talc with an exquisite new odor).

Art Panel and Samples

This 1920 panel is entitled "Sweetest Story Ever Told." Size, 26 x 8 inches. In beautiful colors. With the panel we send samples of the three Instant Beauty preparations named above, and also Night Cream and Fragrance. With these five samples you can make many interesting beauty experiments. ORANGE-CRUSH

SWEETNESS and purity—these are the very essence of Ward's Orange-Crush and Lemon-Crush. Genuine quality and careful preparation insure their delicacy—their deliciousness of flavor. There is no doubt about the honesty of these delightful drinks—all their flavor and bouquet comes from the actual fruit oils pressed from freshly picked oranges and lemons, combined by the exclusive Ward process with purest sugar and citric acid, the natural acid of citrus fruits.

THE "TREO" GIRDLE

is made entirely of porous woven surgical elastic web, which "gives" freely to every movement of the body, yet firmly holds the figure. Lends grace with absolute comfort. Our patented method of construction and character of materials used make it equally desirable for street, dancing, evening or sport wear; white or flesh tint. Retail, Misses' lengths, $5.00 to $7.00. Adults' lengths, $5.50 to $15.00.

CAUTION. The TREO GIRDLE has feature strip of elastic above elastic waistline band, and, therefore, supports the body above and below waistline. If not at your dealer's, write for Free Booklet.

TREO "Paraknit" Brassiere is made of "PARAKNIT," a new kind of light-weight, open-work, elastic material, invented by the TREO COMPANY expressly for bust reducing, bust supporting brassieres. It is very flexible, and extremely stylish, and gives a perfectly natural and graceful contour to the bust. The diaphragm feature is of non-elastic material and is very advantageous, as it supports and reduces the diaphragm. Made in white or flesh tint in sizes from 34 to 50—at your dealer's at $3.00 and $3.50, or write for Illustrated Booklet.

PYROMINT

Women say La-may stays on better than any other face powder.

Up to the present time it has been almost impossible to get a face powder to stay on the face longer than it takes to put it on. You powder your nose nicely, and the first gust of wind or the first puff of your handkerchief and away goes the powder, leaving your nose shiny and conspicuous, probably just at the very moment when you would give anything to appear at your best. A specialist has at last perfected a pure powder that really stays on; that stays on until you wash it off. It does not contain white lead or starchy rice powder to make it stay on. This improved formula contains a medicinal powder doctors prescribe to improve the complexion. In fact, this powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores and irritations. It is also astringent, discouraging flabbiness, crow's feet and wrinkles. This unusual powder is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because La-may is pure and because it stays on so well it is already used by over a million American women. All dealers carry the large sixty-cent box, and many dealers also carry the generous thirty-cent size. When you use this harmless powder and see how beautifully it improves your complexion, you will understand why La-may so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in New York. Women who have used all kinds of face powders say they cannot buy better than La-may anywhere at any price. Herbert Roystone, 16 East 18th St., New York.

New Way to Wash Your Face Beautifies Your Complexion

Beauty specialists agree that the secret of a perfect complexion is a thoroughly clean skin. A specialist has perfected a new substance, Ara-Mara, which is not only excellent for washing the face, but it cannot injure the most delicate complexion. It will not, cannot grow hair. All you do is to gently massage it into the skin and wash with plain warm water. It not only cleanses thoroughly, but it lightens the complexion much better than lemon juice or face bleach. It is surprising to see how fresh, clear and wholesome the skin becomes, even after only one proper treatment. Those who use it declare it has done more real good than any complexion treatment they ever used. It's a wonderful treatment for enlarged, cloggy pores and irritations. It certainly is a great blessing to those who are afraid of wrinkles and who have dull, sallow, lifeless complexions. You can always get Ara-Mara at any big store. If you live out of town and your home dealer has not got it, you can order 50 cents' worth of Ara-Mara by mail of Herbert Roystone, 16 East 18th Street, New York.

and more than 5,000 dealers in the surrounding states, now handle JARDIN Toilet Luxuries. If your dealer is not yet supplied, he can get them quickly from any jobber, or direct from us. Read the following descriptions carefully, and order from your dealer.

JARDIN de LILAS POUDRE

The French Face Powder Made in America

ABSOLUTELY pure, delightfully fragrant, made with a healing cream foundation, perfectly invisible if you use the right tint, more adhesive and clinging than any you have ever known, guaranteed not only to contain nothing impure or injurious to the most delicate skin, but to be positively beneficial to all skins. Six ounce box, $1.00. (Jardin de Rose Face Powder—3 ounce box, 60 cents.)

JARDIN de LILAS EXTRACT

The French Perfume Made in America

AN odor that captivates every one. Very concentrated and therefore very economical. Its delicacy is inimitable. The full eight-ounce bottle is $16.00—one-ounce, $2.50—miniature bottle, 60 cents. (Jardin de Rose Extract at same prices.)

JARDIN de LILAS EAU DE TOILETTE

The French Toilet Water Made in America

A TOILET water of delicate and delightful fragrance, and of lasting quality equal to most perfumes. No such true French quality has ever before been offered at a similar price—one size only—four ounce bottle, $2.00. (Jardin de Rose Toilet Water at same price.)

JARDIN de LILAS TALC

The French Talcum Made in America

HERE is something new indeed—a cold cream talc—the only talcum ever made that will stay on. It clings like a good face powder. Ordinary talcum is so light that it blows off as you put it on. This is a heavy powder, with a cold cream base that makes it a boon to tender skins, especially to men after shaving. It takes the shine off the face and keeps it off, while it soothes and heals the skin. A revolutionary advance in a toilet luxury of universal use. In attractive glass sifter-top bottles, 75 cents. (Jardin de Rose Talc at same price.)

JARDIN de LILAS SACHET

The French Sachet Made in America

THIS is the most popular odor we have ever made in sachet—delicate, clinging and very lasting. Its extreme delicacy and softness are bringing it into general feminine use after the bath, and for babies, in addition to its ordinary use as a sachet. In handsome glass containers—the one-ounce bottle, $2.00—the eight-ounce bottle, $15.00. (Jardin de Rose Sachet at same prices.)

JARDIN de LILAS ROUGE

The French Rouge Made in America

COMES in liquid or creme—is a perfect product of its kind—a revelation in natural coloring when applied lightly. In attractive bottles with metal screw top, 50 cents. (Jardin de Rose Rouge—Compacte, liquid or creme, 50 cents.)

OUR GUARANTEE—We guarantee every Jardin product to be made of the purest, the finest and the most costly materials of their kind, to contain nothing impure or injurious to the skin, and to give complete satisfaction to the purchaser. Your money will be cheerfully repaid without question if you do not find them to your liking. Address all correspondence to JARDIN, 48 Harrison Avenue, Boston, Massachusetts.

IT'S AMPHIBIOUS—This new type of naval scout plane is equally at home on land or in the water after a flight. When it operates at sea, inflated air bags take the place of the pontoons used hitherto for alighting on the surface. At the recent fleet maneuvers at Guantanamo this plane flew from the deck of one of the battleships, scouted around for many hours, was forced to "land" on the water, and was lost for two days—but was picked up safely. "RESTWEL"
Pillows and Mattresses

For the rest of your life

With this porch frock of ecru batiste low heeled pumps are worn—with or without ankle straps. These Keds are made also with no heels at all.

An unusual spring trousseau and the shoes that make it interesting

THE bride who has planned to have a trousseau well stocked with shoes need not be disappointed this spring. So great is the variety in trim, dainty models in Keds that it is possible to have a pair for every kind of wear.

One bride who proved this found there were Keds appropriate for practically every gown in her trousseau—charming little Louis heeled pumps for her muslins, oxfords for her ginghams—sport shoes, walking shoes and house shoes.

Several of these Keds models are shown here and the costumes with which they are worn.

Keds are made of the firmest, finest canvas — the season's most popular fabric for shoes. Designed by expert designers who are always in touch with the season's style tendencies. They fit the foot snugly, but are so flexible and light they are the most comfortable shoes one can wear. The soles are of the finest rubber.

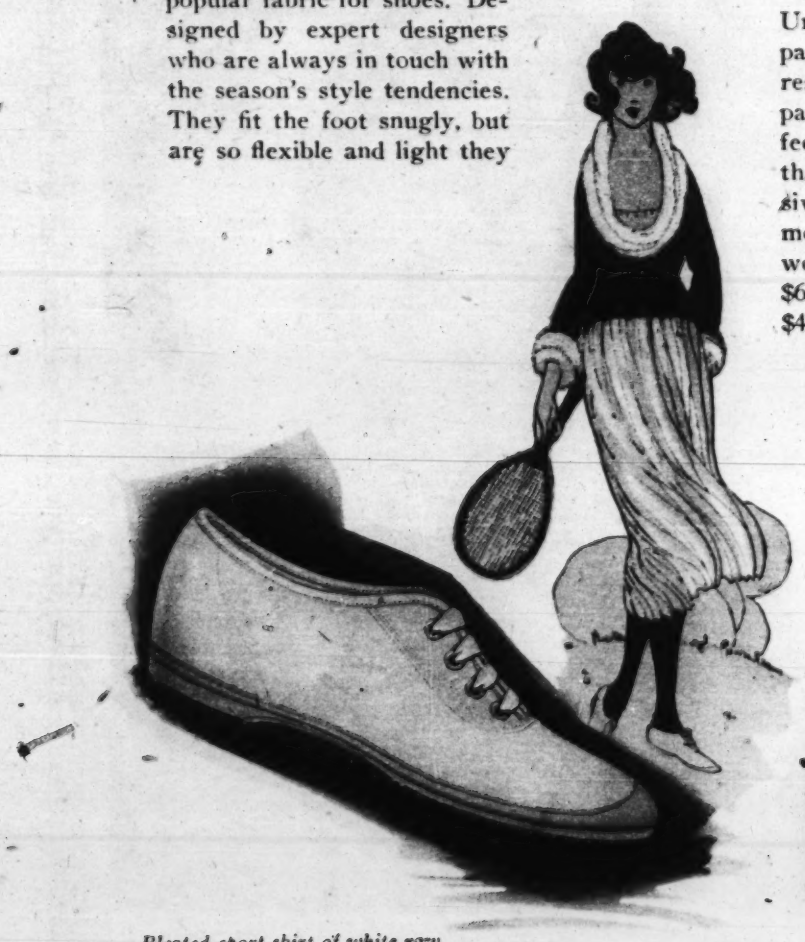
The styles range from outing shoes to dress shoes. Many of this season's new models are made on radically new lines, with welt construction soles, firmly boxed toes and the inner reinforcements that give them the style and dignity of the most expensive leather shoes.

Keds are made for everyone. There are models for men and boys and many models for children.

Every good shoe dealer carries Keds. You will be enthusiastic over their appearance and fit. Look for the name Keds on the sole.

Keds are made only by the United States Rubber Company. All the experience and resources of this great company have been used in perfecting stylish, practical shoes that would not be too expensive. Look at the various models today. Men's and women's Keds are $1.50 to $6.00. Childrens' are $1.15 to $4.50.

A street suit of jade green silk crepe. The large pockets are braided with cream soutache. With this suit are worn high Keds with half Louis heels and long, narrow vamps.



Pleated sport skirt of white raw silk. Sweater of Dianthus red with white angora collar and cuffs. Keds of this type—either high or low—are being worn at country clubs, hotels and fashionable watering places.

A new afternoon frock of black satin — the apron and surplice are of white organdie. Pumps are correct with this gown—with military heels. One of the most popular models in the Keds family.

All Your Face Powder Troubles Are Solved With Your First Trial of La Meda

Cold Creamed Powder

The most wonderful beautifier of modern times. Not only powders the skin but softens and protects it.

After a LA MEDA powdering in the morning you need not fear the sun and perspiration of the golf course, the wind on the motor ride or even a plunge into the water. Your complexion will remain fresh, velvety and clear through it all and you will still be ready for the dance in the evening.

Notwithstanding the wonderful staying qualities of LA MEDA COLD CREAMED POWDER, still it never gives you the appearance of being "made up" or "overdone"—for, after all, it is simply the logical and sensible way of applying face powder to the skin.

Let LA MEDA COLD CREAMED POWDER free you from eternally dabbing your nose with a powder puff. Three tints—Flesh, White and Brunette. Send today for the beautiful little trial jar.

Any druggist or toilet counter anywhere can get LA MEDA COLD CREAMED POWDER for you—or it will be sent postpaid on receipt of 65 cents for a large jar.

The COUNTER REVOLUTION in GERMANY

Picturesque Phases of the Short-Lived Kapp-Luttwitz Regime, as Shown in New and Exclusive Photographs from Berlin.

(Photographs by Hermann Laufer, Berlin.)

THE ADVANCE GUARD of the Kapp-Luttwitz troops entering Berlin with one of the new flags with which all the contingents were supplied. Note the cheerfully apathetic spectators in the window at the left.

A WATER FAMINE was caused by the general strike which followed the Kapp dictatorship. Balancing a keg of water on a bicycle proved a favorite diversion.

EVERYONE went to the "wasserholen," as Berlin's natural sources of supply were called. There was plenty here, but transportation methods were primitive.

"THE NEWEST WATER POLONAISE" is the photographer's caption on this picture. Standing in line at a trickling street fountain was more convenient than going to the "wasserholen," but it was a slow process.

Cut Your Gasoline Bill In Half

Prompt Power

U. & J. Carburetor

Over 100,000 in Use

Cuts "Gas" Bills One-Half

The entire army of U. & J. Carburetor users is proving its merits daily. Owners of Ford, Dodge, Maxwell, Overland, Vim, Dort and other "fours" have eliminated all bucking and jerking of their engines—reduced their gasoline bills as much as one-half, and have given their cars life and power never before experienced.

FLEET OWNERS: The U. & J. will save $100 to $200 per year on each truck.

The U. & J. Carburetor principle is unlike any other principle ever used in carburetors. That it is the right principle is proved by its meritorious, never failing performance.

Can Be Installed By Anyone

The U. & J. Carburetor is so simple that it can be installed with a screw driver and a small wrench—once installed it needs no further attention. No moving "delicate" parts—nothing to get out of order.

A Personal Message to The Women of America

Millions of American women have always worn Kayser Silk Gloves, "Italian" Silk Underwear and Silk Hosiery.

In the past year a million more women have wanted them — they have recognized Kayser superiority in wear, fit and economy.

Our factories, pushed beyond their capacity, found it impossible to keep pace with this demand.

We could not produce the needed quantity, and at the same time maintain Kayser quality.

We chose the quality.

You have often been unable to buy Kayser goods in your favorite store.

This was not the fault of your dealer. He was unable to procure Kayser goods in the quantities he knew you wanted.

Your favorite store now has a limited supply of Kayser Silk Gloves, Italian Silk Underwear and Silk Hosiery. Not all you would like perhaps, but enough to supply you with the things you need immediately.

We are very glad to tell you that gradually the supply is increasing, and soon we hope that the situation will be normal.

World's largest manufacturers of Gloves, Hosiery and Underwear

The possibilities in every woman's face

THE soft, appealing charm of a fresh, lovely skin—of course you want it. Every girl does. Every girl wants to be attractive, lovable, admired.

You can make your skin so exquisitely soft and clear that at first glance it will awaken admiration and delight. By studying it—learning its possibilities—then giving it every day the treatment that suits its particular needs—you, too, can win the charm of "a skin you love to touch."

Perhaps the attractiveness of your skin is spoiled by a tendency to become excessively oily. You can correct this embarrassing condition by using every night the following treatment:

Just before retiring, with warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into your pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with warm water, then with cold—the colder the better. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

The first time you use this treatment you will notice how much firmer and drier it makes your skin. Use it regularly every night and see what a difference it makes in your appearance—how much smoother, lovelier your skin becomes under this care.

Special treatments for each different skin need are given in the famous booklet of treatments that is wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap. Get a cake today and begin using your treatment tonight.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is on sale at all drug stores and toilet goods counters in the United States and Canada. A 25 cent cake lasts for a month or six weeks of any treatment, or for general cleansing use.

A sample cake of soap, the booklet of famous treatments, and samples of Woodbury's Facial Powder, Facial Cream and Cold Cream sent to you for 15 cents

For 6 cents we will send you a trial size cake (enough for a week of any Woodbury facial treatment), together with the booklet of treatments, "A Skin You Love to Touch." Or for 15 cents we will send you the treatment booklet and samples of Woodbury's Facial Soap, Facial Powder, Facial Cream and Cold Cream. Address The Andrew Jergens Co., 26 Spring Grove Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

If you live in Canada, address The Andrew Jergens Co., Limited, 26 Sherbrooke Street, Perth, Ontario.

An oily skin and a shiny nose can be corrected by regular use of the simple treatment given above

Little did that first coffee drinker realize what a custom he was starting as he sipped his coffee, two hundred and sixty years ago. The only man in London to serve coffee, his house was crowded with friends who were wildly enthusiastic over the new drink.

IF THE MAN WHO FIRST DRANK COFFEE COULD BREAKFAST HERE TODAY

The First
COFFEE RECIPE.

To make the drink that is now much used, called COFFEE.

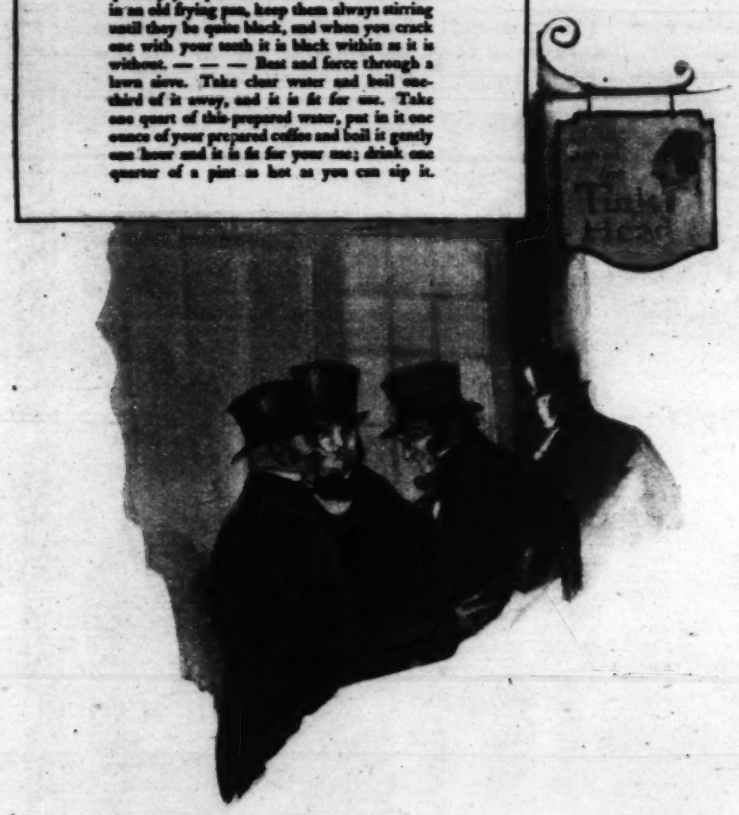
The coffee berries are to be bought at any druggist, about 7p the pound. Take what quantity you please and over the charcoal fire in an old frying pan, keep them always stirring until they be quite black, and when you crack one with your teeth it is black within as it is without. — — — Beat and force through a hown sieve. Take clear water and boil one-third of it away, and it is fit for use. Take one quart of this prepared water, put in it one ounce of your prepared coffee and boil it gently one hour and it is fit for your use; drink one quarter of a pint as hot as you can sip it.



BACK in Shakespeare's time—coffee was unheard of. Breakfast consisted of ale or wine and a biscuit.

And then about 1657, it is said, a merchant came to London from Smyrna bringing a new drink and a Turkish boy who made it for him—a strange drink—copphee.

In a short time the merchant had many friends—his home became altogether too popular. In despair, he persuaded his Turkish boy to start a coffee house, where anyone in London might get coffee—the first public coffee house.

If this first coffee drinker could come here today! If he could visit the thousands of homes where the breakfast is built about the coffee; the hotels where gallons of coffee are served each morning!

If he could taste the flavor of Yuban—Chicago's favorite coffee! What a contrast with the badly roasted, often burned, rank coffee of those early days! What a bother it was to prepare when each person must roast and grind his own coffee.

Arbuckle Brothers have contributed largely to developing the art of preparing coffee from the bean to the cup. In Yuban we have the final achievement.

Men who have tried one coffee after another, vainly searching for the coffee they have dreamed of, exclaim over the flavor of Yuban. They appreciate instantly all the qualities that make it the private coffee of the greatest coffee merchant.

Since the first coffee drinker of England, no other coffee has been so popular as Yuban. See for yourself what coffee can be.

Thousands and thousands of gallons of coffee are drunk in Chicago each morning in homes, clubs and hotels. One of the large Chicago hotels serves 100 gallons of coffee every morning.

Get Rid of Corns This Way

"I SIMPLY put a few drops of 'Gets-It' on my corn or callus, in a second or two. It dries immediately, and I can put my stocking and shoe on right over it. I don't have to fool with my corns any more. The corn comes right off, leaving the skin underneath free and smooth. It's a common-sense, easy, painless way."

"Gets-It"

For Corns and Calluses

See how simply it is used—how simply it works. It is dangerous to cut corns and calluses. Besides it makes them grow that much faster. Avoid dangers of blood poisoning from cutting, and use simple, quick "Gets-It."

"Gets-It" is harmless to true flesh and stops corn pains. COSTS BUT A TRIFLE AT ALL DRUG STORES.

War's Gift to Every Home

The new, healing antiseptic, invented in France, for wounds. Wonderful for skin eruptions, infected gums and dozens of other uses.

Old methods of healing, used for centuries, had to be discarded completely early in the great war. In spite of all the old standard antiseptics, blood poison and lockjaw caused an ever increasing death rate among the wounded. Infection ran riot until American scientists conquered it with the now famous chlorine antiseptic, which startled the medical world. With it, wounds often healed in one-fourth the usual time.

The many uses of this great war antiseptic make it a virtual necessity in every home and factory. It destroys the most virulent germs on contact. It is over 100 times more germ-destroying than peroxide and other old standard antiseptics. Yet it is non-poisonous, doesn't smart, is soothing and harmless, and may be used for any germ infection of the mouth, nose, throat or skin.

For home use, this new antiseptic can be furnished by any reliable druggist, in the form of Kloria Tablets. Being in tablet form, and used by dissolving in ordinary water, it is surprisingly economical.

Kloria bids fair to displace all healing agents for cuts, burns, sores, boils, etc. It heals so quickly as to seem almost magical. Eczema, barber's itch, poison-ivy, and other skin eruptions promptly fade away. One application usually removes every particle of dandruff.

In tender, bleeding gums, the germ cause is promptly checked, and all gum soreness and bleeding usually disappear within one week. As a mouth-wash, there is nothing else so effective in preventing tooth decay, gum infections and the most serious contagious diseases. It is also unexcelled as a spray or gargle for sore throat, tonsillitis and other ailments of the oral passages.

Sold by leading druggists or mailed, prepaid, for 50 cents. Money refunded if not entirely satisfied.

AND THE HARBOR BARS ARE MOANING

Now Java, chisel, sect, gems and pastry rule the Chicago realms wher e King John I. so long held sway—sway is right! This page answers the query: Where are the bars of yesteryear?

(TRIBUNE Photos.)

O DEATH, WHERE IS THY STING; O GRAVE, THY VICTORY?—At 1301 West Madison street, tombstones bear fitting legends to the demise of Kid Barleycorn. Nichols & Co. are selling cemetery monuments on the site of one of the first roof gardens in Chicago. For more than forty years a saloon or cabaret occupied these premises.

PRECIOUS STONES REPLACE GEMS OF THOUGHT BORN HERE—No more will the arid, loping loophound weave his way from George Silver's "Marine Bar," at 20 North Dearborn street. T. N. Donnelly & Co. have put showcases filled with jewelry upon the spot where wonderful exhibits of scintillating wit were staged, brilliant quartets performed, and sparkling alibis telephoned home.

HARD BOILED EGGS CALL FOR FOAMING BEAKERS—OF COFFEE—Old timers now stand in Stillson's, Madison and Dearborn, toying with the mustard spoon, and mournfully chanting the sagas of the past to the younger customers. As a gentleman's coffee shop, the proprietors of this bar have no regrets for Bryan's victory.

THEY TOIL WHERE ONCE THEY TOILED NOT BUT OFTEN SPUN—The fact that former service men find help at old Quincy No. 9, La Salle and Randolph, at the Knights of Columbus employment agency, tempers one's pangs over the passing of this favorite loop oasis. Since 1890 the cash registers there tinkled the tale of parched palates dampened and wet throats made wetter.

PAN STILL LOOKS DOWN ON ROLLS, DOUGH AND ALL-DAY SUCKERS—A bakery and confectionery store succeeded the saloon of Keegan Bros., Cicero avenue and Madison street. P. J. Keegan, who ran a bar there for twenty-five years, is still doing business at the old stand, but his customers aren't. Mr. Keegan is shown looking across old memories at the swinging doors.

Today there stirs a new Life; a tireless energy born of Fire and Action; a tremendous, ever-moving Power; the World's Coachman, Teamster, Freighter.

And at its heart—a spark plug—Fyrac.

OLIVE THOMAS wrote the scenario for the picture you last saw her in—"Youthful Folly." So you can paste her in your album with the word "author" hitched to her.

I told you all about her before—how she was born October 20, 1898, in Charleroi, Pa.; was a "Follies" girl and started her screen career with Famous Players. And, of course, you know that she's Mrs. Jack Pickford. And equally, of course, you realize what a winsome child she is on the screen.

So much for Olive this time. Mae Tinee.

MRS. SIDNEY DREW has been doing very little acting since the death of her husband. She has principally confined her activities to the directing of comedies—and clever ones they have been, too. She will, however, soon appear in a series of pictures called "After Thirty," the stories of which were taken from the stories by Julian Street.

We must all get after Mrs. Drew and persuade her to reduce a little, for she's too clever a woman to let avoirdupois get the best of her. Mae Tinee.

OLIVE TELL doesn't appear in pictures as often as her admirers wish she would, for she's a charming and gracious figure of the silent drama.

Miss Tell was born in New York and educated in France. She went to a dramatic school and from thence ventured forth into stock. Her screen career started with Empire, and since then she has appeared in productions few and far between, with various companies.

You'd never guess from looking into her serious blue eyes that the passion of her life is collecting beads. Just the same that's exactly what she likes best to do. Mae Tinee.

RICHARD TRAVERS, whom we will soon be seeing in Fox productions, became known to motion picture fans through his work with Essanay. He left the latter company to go to war, but is now back in this country ready to "knock 'em dead" again.

Mr. Travers hails from Canada and was educated there. He practiced medicine at one time. He is tall—6 feet 1 inch, if you please—weighs 207 pounds and has black hair and brown eyes. He rides, swims, motors and uses a cannon with great agility. Mae Tinee.

Fashions Beauty Contests

FOR EACH HOUR of the SPRING DAY by Corinne Lowe

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—This spring's modes are a musical comedy without the chorus. Never were such picturesque lines, never such exquisite combinations of color and material. Yet when we come to make up the chorus of village maidens or ballroom sirens we find the same difficulty as getting up a troop of Kohinoor diamonds or roc's egg or any other of the world's one of a kind possessions. There is, in fact, hardly a single type of gown that is made like any other.

The one exception to this rule is the suit. Nine women out of ten are picking out a navy tricotine with the straight line belted coat and the open front outlined by the shawl revers. In spite of boleros, box coats built on mandarin lines, and some few tailored suits with a decided flare below the waist line, this is the sort of tailleur that the average American woman is choosing today.

If we are the kind, however, who can refer to "one of my suits," there is a wide choice among the dressier types of spring suits. Such is shown in the left hand panel. It is from the atelier of Beer, the famous Paris maker of suits, and in every line it shows the touch of the master builder. Made of French gray cloth, it is braided in blue, and its loose unbelted jacket discloses a gilet of white faille accented by white pearl buttons. This white silk shows also as lining for the high collar and the three-quarter sleeves. Three-quarter sleeves are, by the way, much liked for the more fanciful suit models and the little bolero models benefit much by this treatment. The high collar, which, unlike many models, is cut separately, is also a popular jacket note.

In getting out with our megaphone and crying "taffeta" every moment we are apt to forget foulard. Yet this material appears constantly in the smartest shops. It is frequently made up in combination with georgette, chiffon, and crepe de chine. An interesting feature of the georgette frocks is constituted, too, by appliqued figures of foulard used as the sole trimming. Navy and white, black and white, beige and blue—these are the favored combinations of the new foulard, and, while the fashionable dot polkas through some of the best models, there are many newer and more arresting patterns.

In the panel second from the right we are illustrating the afternoon frock of foulard as interpreted by Agnes. The silk is here the polka dot pattern in white on a navy ground. The overdress is of dark blue chiffon trimmed with bands of foulard and piped in white satin. There are also double plaitings of white at the girdle and the tight, scalloped underskirt is likewise bound in white. A vestee and sailor collar of white organdy complete this costume.

And let it be said right now—the soothing word!

No longer does unfortunate woman have to endure the bare neck line. No longer does her head emerge from these dark throat openings as it did that of the culprit of the seventeenth century from the stocks! The new gowns of dark fabric are nearly all softened by some humane touch. There are high boned collars; there are plaitings and ruffles and colors cut in one with the bodice; there are turnover collars of wonderful hand embroidered batiste, and pastel tinted organdies serving as both collar and cuffs take away that look of being a hole in the dress instead of a neckline.

As our old friend, figured georgette, let it not be thought that the last two seasons have exhausted our sentiment for this charming fabric. Never were such frocks more delightful in pattern and treatment. As to the latter, the newest thing is to make up the material over some satin or silk of contrasting color.

The reference to Fashion as a fickle dame has already been sufficiently immortalized. Yet we simply can't stifle the superfluous comment when we look at the new evenings frocks.

THOSE who don't desire the sameness of appearance of an elevated ticket will take refuge from the pervasive straight line belted model of suit in such a suggestion as the one from Beer shown at the left. It is made of French gray material, braided in blue, and has a waistcoat of white faille with white pearl buttons.

That backs and not gooseflesh are now the proper thing for the evening gown is indicated by the evening gown of silver and green metallic cloth, which comes next. For, instead of the virulent decollette of a few months ago, we have a yokelike band of white beads from which depend four bands of black beads. The foulard and chiffon frock from Agnes right beside it is carried out in navy blue and white.

Putting on one's summer flannels is an easy task when the prescription is a French blue sports suit, such as that at the right, with chain stitching of bright varicolored wools.

At the big aviators' ball held last month, for example, the gowns were nearly all as sleeveless as they might have done them in shameless Carthage. When it came to the neck line, however—fie, fie, away with such bold, unmaidenly doings! On one side I saw a turquoise green satin with bouffante hip line and Algerian hem. The bodice of this was merely a wide girdle, but there was an eloquent postscript—one that would never have been thought of during the winter. This was in the form of a yoke of net cut high in the back and rounding demurely in the front. I had no sooner remarked this than another debutante confirmed me in the trend of the times. For her gown of fine net made over cloth of silver was cut high not only in the back but in the front. En revanche, her arms were bare.

In the model second from the left we get this suggestion of the higher back in the four bands of black beads falling from the band of white beads around the throat. Of course, this is hardly more sheltering than a cobweb, but, at least, you get the line. For the rest, this frock is composed of a stunning silver and green metallic cloth and its train is formed by an ingenious drapery knotting on the right hip in folds punctuated by black and white beads.

The last model shown is a sports costume of French blue flannel plaided in a chain stitch of bright, varicolored wools. The plaid effect is raging these days. So, too, is embroidery. Regarding the latter, it may be said that this is now the most prominent method of ornamentation. Tunics are crusted with embroideries, back and front panels are heavy with them, and sleeves, collars, and even underarm sections look sometimes as if embroidery had simply rained upon them. Indeed, many of the new wraps—particularly the capes—reflect the passion.

A Complete, Exclusive Specialty Shop for Women

Trousseau Lingerie

"THE charm of loveliness" is the theme of the exquisite offerings of the Lingerie Shop during the May sale. All the beauty of the Bridal Trousseau is found here in styles happily varied. There are clinging georgettes and soft shimmering satins with the filmiest of laces and now and then a piquant touch of quaint French flowers.

The Bridal Nightrobe

THE BRIDAL NIGHTROBE is of lithe panne satin of a lustrous sheen. Fine Margot lace forms the square neck and capricious anget sleeves. Long loops of the most delicately tinted pink satin ribbon and quaint French flowers give an irresistible loveliness. $55.00.

A Charming Set

Gossamer-like georgette of a delicate pink is given a fairy-like charm by the exquisite real Filet and French Valenciennes which finds its way around the edges and up the sides of each piece. And the whole set is aglow with the color of the old blue and coral pink two-toned watered ribbon and tiny French flowers.

Gown, $37.50 Drawers, $22.50.
Envelope, $27.50. Camisole, $13.75.
Sketched at extreme right.

Lingerie French Room—Third Floor.

A Lovely Negligee

FILMY pink chiffon floats softly down from a top of exquisite Margot lace. Broad light blue satin ribbon caught with fanciful ribbon flowers forms the neck and fronts of this graceful negligee coat. $35.00.

The slip is of heavy panne satin with chiffon shoulder straps. $25.00.

Shimmering satin of a gleaming white, delicate pink or soft toned ivory is confident of approval when fashioned into a set with real Filet and French Valenciennes. Of course there are wee French flowers, too.

Envelope, $37.50. Gown, $45.00.

Diaphanous white georgette delightfully favored by the addition of real Filet and French Valenciennes makes a fascinating set.

Drawers, $25.00. Gown, $37.50. Camisole, $19.50.

The NEW DEBUTANTE COIFF

by Antoinette Donnelly

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Sky on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

As some smart young male commented, her father would either have to have a million or she would have to have the face of a $10,000 beauty before she'd take the dare to wear it that way.

Besides being excrutiatingly pretty, she has to be young! And, to limit the candidacy further, she has to have an "air"—said air consisting of good looking clothes and a thoroughly nice manner; otherwise, the effect is what is commonly called "flewsy."

All of which might seem to limit the style to an infinitesimal few. Not so, however! The world seems full of beautiful young things when one walks out on a bright spring day! One wonders where all the lovely dears spring from. Clothes do not have to be expensive on youth—just well chosen; and her youth, with its bright eyes and fine grained skin, is able to provide considerable "air."

Of course, if she is going to deal youth the death blow with carmined lips and highly rouged cheeks and "marshmallowed" nose, then she is implored not to spoil this particular "coiff" for the ones for whom nature has made the allowance.

It is for the young and good-looking. As a clever woman writer said, "It is youth's challenge to maturity, because none but the youngest could successfully overcome such a handicap and look charming. They fearlessly pulled the hair straight and tight back from their foreheads and wore it fluffed full over the eyes, thereby making the aforesaid foreheads high and their faces narrow."

At any rate, all the young New York society buds are wearing it that way, and it is taking on already in our midst.

The bobbed hair young person has an advantage to begin with in this arrangement, although it were far from wisdom to "bob" for this particular "coiff"; for, in all likelihood, before it has got completely around the community an edict will be issued for a revival of the old wigged pompadour atop the same young face. But if it has been bobbed and is at the unruly stage, you can rule it around the head in saucy curls, perhaps.

I am told some of the girls cut the back hair short, leaving the sides long, to allow for ruffing and larger Fiji buns. But I wouldn't advise a drastic measure like that; for, hair, once "cut" by its owner for a foolish vanity, is not going to be as responsive to the owner's second whim. It takes time for hair to grow after you have reached the later 'teens.

The forehead has to come in for a fair amount of scrutiny when you're trying this debutante coiff on your mirror. If it is already high, beware of it! If it is too broad, ditto. You can change the shape of your face with the arrangement of your hair. The debutante style demands that the hair go straight and tight back from the forehead—even to the use of the old time circular comb to keep it there. The comb naturally hides itself among the curls or the bobbed roll at the back—or it may face its audience openly and unashamedly if it so pleases.

FOR AND BY BUSINESS GIRLS BY LORETTA KING

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Miss Loretta King, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

PUBLIC STENOGRAPHERS.

THE idea of marketing their services to a number of business men or firms, instead of giving their entire time to one business house, seems to be appealing to stenographers of long experience.

The number of requests received for information in regard to establishing a business as public stenographer may be answered collectively to the best advantage of all those especially interested.

I have interviewed several public stenographers. They are all women who have been in business for themselves for years. They are well established, reputable, and without exception are earning comfortable incomes. Their advice and opinions, the gist of which is given below, may be relied upon.

In the first place a small capital is necessary to establish oneself in business as a public stenographer. An office, or desk space in an office, has to be rented. Telephone service is essential. It is necessary to rent or buy typewriter, desk, and chairs. A stock of stationery is required, consisting of letter size paper of good quality, legal size paper, second sheets for carbon copies, several sizes of envelopes, as well as sundry necessary office supplies, such as carbon paper, notebooks, pencils, etc. Announcements must be sent to prospective clients. All this means a considerable outlay of money before a single client is obtained.

The second important consideration is previous business experience. It is not advisable for an inexperienced stenographer to go into business for herself, as her experience would be gained at too great an expense. A public stenographer's success depends upon accuracy, speed, and the ability to turn out neat and well balanced copy.

Girls who have received part of their business training in law and real estate offices, banks, or general contracting firms have perhaps the best foundation for successful careers as public stenographers. Contracts and agreements in one form or another constitute a great part of their work.

Perhaps the best location for a stenographer who desires to cater to the public is an office building the tenancy of which is composed mainly of law firms. Lawyers, particularly those specializing in patent law, have a great deal of their work done by public stenographers.

A first class commercial hotel is a good location, but the office building is, I believe, considered the more desirable because a regular and dependable clientele may be established.

The generally accepted terms for commercial or legal work are 15 cents a page for double spaced typing, with an additional charge of 5 cents for each carbon copy, and 30 cents per page for single spaced typing, plus 5 cents for each carbon copy. The terms for form work are less than for individual letters, contracts, and manuscript per page, and vary according to the length and text of forms.

A circular letter or card of announcement is an effective advertising medium. A mailing list may be compiled from the classified columns of the local telephone directory by selecting the types of business or professions desired. A list of the tenants may be obtained from the office of the building in which the stenographer establishes herself.

The girls I know, who are working for themselves, all declare that they never again would give their entire time and services to one firm.

"A CONTENTIOUS PROPOSAL."

PREVIOUS to the last presidential election the Burkes and O'Briens had been warm friends, but, due to a difference in political activities, things suddenly changed and it was not till several months ago that members of the two families spoke when they met.

Before the ruction Dan Burke had been a frequent caller at Ruth's home and a favorite of the O'Briens. Captivated by Ruth's witchery, he determined to win her, if possible—in fact, intended to propose—when the quarrel between the two heads of the families stopped all social intercourse. The children felt honor bound to support their fathers; also, loyalty prohibited any discussion of the principles of the altercation.

For three years Dan tried to fill the void left by Ruth's absence, yet always in retrospection her sweet character and roguish smile grew stronger and more alluring. Coming home late from work one winter night, he met Ruth getting off a crowded street car. The spontaneous pleasure of this sudden meeting overwhelmed them both, and before either one had time to recover their former perfunctory attitude Dan was holding Ruth's arm in a viselike grip and guiding her through the snow toward home.

Dan was too excited to think coherently, barely understanding that Ruth was telling him her folks had gone out for the evening and to come in for a few minutes before he froze to death. The succeeding two hours flew delightfully. Then, without warning, the living room door opened, admitting Ruth's father. His good natured face stiffened at sight of youg Burke; the hot blood of anger flushed his face as he made rapid strides toward Dan, demanding to know the meaning of his presence in the house.

With a reassuring squeeze of Ruth's hand Dan jumped to the table, keeping that substantial piece of furniture between himself and O'Brien, and while the older man tried to catch him he proposed to Ruth, telling her of his three years of anguish; how the blue of her eyes was a beacon to his shipwrecked soul; that petty political differences could no longer keep them apart, and swearing he would not leave the house till she had promised to be his wife, all the time stepping agilely out of her father's reach.

The humor of the situation and her love for the boy stirred Ruth to quick action. With outstretched arms she rushed to her father, catching him 'round the neck, tenderly, yet determinedly, holding him to her. For several minutes thereafter O'Brien could not speak; his rage at sight of a Burke audaciously presuming on their hospitality to further his own ends had deprived him of speech. Ruth realized her advantage. While affectionately soothing her father she drew him to the lounge, where she made him comfortable among the pillows. Then, in mischievous glee, she mimicked him in pantomime and tantalized Dan by throwing him kisses.

With a hopeless gesture of his hands and arms O'Brien said: "Well, Daniel, if she loves you, you win!"

An expression of affectionate tenderness came over his face and the light of pride shone in his eyes as he watched his girl go to Daniel.

MORE LORE ABOUT BRIDES by Doris Blake

Who catches the Bride's Bouquet?

ONE is inclined to believe that the job of the folklore collector would have been greatly curtailed had it not been for the fund of material that is wrapped around the bride. Every little move she makes, every stitch in her gown, the flowers in her bridal bouquet, and the jewels she dons on her wedding day all have secret portents.

If the first flower a bride sees on her wedding morn is white, say the folkloreists, she will lead a happy life; if red she will know sorrow and care. If a bunch of pink roses is given to a bride it is lucky.

An old custom was for the bride to pick her own flowers to insure good happiness.

For a bride to buy her own flowers is ominous of discord.

If a bride is scratched by a thorn in her bouquet life will have its little irritations for her.

The bridal bouquet thrown by the bride to the wedding party means a wedding for the girl who catches it. In some places it is customary for the bridegroom to throw his boutonniere with the same fortune attached.

It is lucky to find a flower from the bride's bouquet. That means an early marriage.

A rose from the bridal wreath of one you love betokens happiness.

In Scotland bride's and their attendant maids think it a good omen to wear some ornament in the way of a thistle.

If a girl wears a gown with rosebuds on it she will not be a bride until it is worn out.

The Scotch bride who can get a piece of white heather to wear at her wedding is sure her future life will be full of happiness.

If a bride wears tuberoses, it is a sign of the mourning she will soon have to wear.

If the bride separates the flowers in her bouquet and throws them the one who catches the largest number will be married first.

If a bride mixes a few daisies and daffodils in her bridal bouquet her life never will be gloomy.

If at your wedding red roses are given you by your father it will bring good luck.

It is considered lucky to take a flower away from the church after a wedding.

If a bride leaves her bouquet in the church and turns back to get it she will have an unfortunate wedded life.

If a bride loses a flower from her bouquet before the wedding she will have many little troubles in her married life.

The bride who wears a sprig of rosemary will have luck.

In France, it is said, no wedding decoration should be without the mignonette, "little darling." It will keep the bride first in her husband's thoughts.

The girls of Tuscany always wear a sprig of jasmine in their bridal attire, as they have a proverb which says: "The bride who wears jasmine is rich enough to make the fortune of a poor husband."

It is unlucky for anyone but a bride to wear orange blossoms.

For a bride to wear flowers in her hair, if no veil is worn, will cause regret to her, as:

"If the bonny bride do wear
Naught but flowers on her hair,
The day will quickly dawn
When she'll regret her wedding morn."

Lost jewelry at a wedding omens lost friends.

Evergreen worn on the head of a bride in Greece was esteemed lucky.

Whoever puts a bridal wreath or veil on for play will never marry.

In the time of Henry the Eighth the bridal wreath was made of wheat ears as a sign of faithfulness.

Doris Blake's Answers to Love Problems

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake care the Sunday Tribune. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

Life One Long Agony.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am madly in love with a young man in the office, and I think my feeling is at least partially reciprocated although he is already engaged to another girl. Do you think it would be the right thing for me to try to make him forget her and do you think I could be happy with him if I won him from her?

"K. A. K."

Well, I don't know. Undoubtedly the other girl believes implicitly in him as the result of his attention to her and his repeated protestations of love to her. You want to be perfectly sure that he isn't just being kind to you and you are reading a romance into his friendship.

Make Their Friends Angry.

"Dear Miss Blake: We are two girls 19 years of age. Some time ago we met two fellows whom we like considerably well. When we are with them they treat us with the greatest respect. We are quite popular with the fellows, and whenever at a dance we always have a crowd of boys around us. This makes our friends angry and they keep continually bringing it up to us and tell us to keep away from the boys. What would you advise us to do, as the boys treat us very respectfully and we would not like to lose their friendship?

"PEGGY AND DAISY."

Why listen to criticism of that kind? I wouldn't; but be sure, girls, not to monopolize the boys to the exclusion of all the other girls. Include them in the good times, too.

Make Your Complexion nice for the Party

WHEN "fixing up" rub a little CREME ELCAYA into your skin before putting on your face powder. It will make your face and neck look smooth as velvet.

Try this simple formula—A little CREME ELCAYA rubbed gently into the skin; then if you need color, a very little rouge spread carefully over the cheeks before the cream is quite dry; and after that the film of Elcaya face powder over all.

CRÊME ELCAYA

Is a delightful, non-greasy, disappearing toilet cream that makes the skin like velvet.

Your dealer has ELCAYA and has sold it for years. Ask him.

Here's a sure way to keep a laundress

Just think what it would mean to any laundress to get the clothes thoroughly clean without any hand-rubbing—without even getting tired.

Just think how safe she feels in handling all the clothes, knowing BlueBird cannot wear or tear the finest things that may be in the wash.

BlueBird

will keep your laundress coming each washday—glad to get much more done for you without wearing herself out over a tub.

Then arrange for a free demonstration in your own home with your laundress there.

We will gladly show you both what BlueBird will do. Nothing to sign—no obligation, no expense.

You can buy BlueBird for an initial payment of only $5, and pay the balance on easy monthly terms.

The saving over rub-board wear alone will save the whole cost of BlueBird as you pay for it.

Seven Furniture Days!

A Sale That Will Open Chicago's Eyes

The Rothschild furniture department now boasts of the largest retail furniture business in the middle West. For five years we have grown by leaps and bounds. We are now in the midst of the most prosperous times in our history, and this is the best furniture month of the year. We have therefore chosen seven days, which include two Mondays, to demonstrate to you that beyond any doubt you can buy good furniture here as cheap or cheaper than at other store. Sixth Floor.

The sale opens tomorrow morning at 8:30 and closes Monday night, May 17th, at 5:30. Each day will bring its own specials. The pictures shown today are specials for Monday, and in most cases for Monday only. Tuesday will bring forth another broadside of furniture specials, and so on each day during this seven day sale. To avoid any misunderstanding we will say, first, that these goods cannot be sold subject to cancellation, as time and furniture are too scarce to sell during busy hours on any uncertainty; and secondly, these goods must be delivered to you not later than June 15th and as much sooner as convenient for you to receive them; and third, we ask you to come prepared to pay one-fourth cash tomorrow, as this merchandise cannot be set aside on sale day on a small deposit. This is the greatest of all furniture stores. Read every line, look at every price, the very item you skip may be the greatest bargain of all. Then set your alarm clock and be here early.

The finest bargains in Cane Furniture in the city. $359.50

Don't let anybody talk against Cane Furniture. It is the neatest, cleanest and most serviceable Furniture in existence today. It has never been out of style and it never will be. See this Suite before you buy.

Our Annual May Sale of Sub-Standard Hosiery

For Men, Women and Children

By sub-standard we refer to only some slight flaw in the weave, a trifle short or yarn not running smooth. These stockings could not pass the rigid inspection that is necessary; they are, therefore, called sub-standard. In no instance does the imperfection impair the wearing qualities. We, therefore, offer them tomorrow at nearly 50c on the dollar. Buy plenty while the opportunity is offered and while 10,000 pairs last.

Practical and Fancy Needlework

By Clotilde

IN THE LAYETTE.

THERE is no more fascinating work in the way of sewing than making a layette, and while there isn't space here to go fully into the subject, I should like to make a few suggestions about some of the garments.

Of course the number of slips, dresses, pinning blankets, flannel and white skirts, and numerous other articles you will need will depend largely on what you can afford to spend, but get what you decide will be necessary in as fine and sheer materials as you can afford. Nothing coarse or harsh should ever be used on a baby, and this is especially true of flannels. The strips of flannel for the abdominal bands, the knitted bands with shoulder straps, and the barrow coats or pinning blankets and the flannel skirts must all be soft and fine.

Cotton and wool flannel for the bands and pinning blankets and silk and wool for the petticoats are best. The petticoat should be made from a princess pattern, as it hangs from the shoulders, and the warmth is more evenly distributed. Make this little garment to fasten on the shoulders, and finish the neck and armholes with a small embroidered scallop.

All seams on babies' garments must be smooth, else the delicate flesh may be irritated, and, for that reason it is best not to make a turned-in seam in flannel. Sometimes where the edges of a seam are selvage, they are pressed open and catch-stitched through the middle, thus holding down both edges. But the prettiest and best seam is the "Dorothy." The seam is sewed on the right instead of the wrong side, pressed open and a length of taffeta seam binding ribbon basted over the seam so as to cover both edges, and each side of the ribbon is held in place with a small cross-stitch. This makes a perfectly flat seam.

While on the subject of flannel, a good idea for the bath apron is to buy a piece of shaker flannel, say one or one and one-half yards, and fold it together across its width, and baste it together across the two narrow ends. Then, making a small shell-stitch, crochet these ends together with a not too heavy yarn. Finish each side of the open part with the same stitch. Have a piece of white oilcloth or rubber sheeting cut the size of your case, and when bathing baby, slip the sheeting inside the flannel case. It will keep your lap dry and the baby will not be chilled, laid on the flannel. Then the sheeting can be taken out and the case easily dried.

Do as much of the sewing on all garments by hand as possible. The seams can be stitched on the machine, but the felling down should be done by hand.

The slips of fine cambric will need no trimming other than a one-quarter inch Valenciennes or thread edge around the neck and sleeves.

The white petticoats should be hemmed around the bottom by hand, and a Valenciennes edging one inch wide will make an attractive finish. Hold the lace next to you in sewing on and it will naturally "full" a little. Enough to look well anyway.

Feather stitching, always making short stitches, makes a lovely finish for a hem on a flannel petticoat, or on a white petticoat.

Make the dresses of as beautifully fine material as you can afford and have the work perfectly done. Elaborately trimmed garments are not pretty or suitable, and if the materials and workmanship are what they should be, the clothes will be dainty and attractive. A deep hem, hemstitched, is a lovely finish for the bottom of a dress, or an inch wide insertion set in at the head of the hem is lovely. Then there are fancy hems, some with scalloped, some with points, finished with a fine, single feather stitching that are adorable.

Narrow strips of lace insertion, alternated with strips of the dress material make pretty yokes, and groups (three in a group), of tiny hemstitched tucks, set in lengthwise, are also good. Then there is always embroidery, than which there can be nothing prettier.

My Most Embarrassing Moment

"Let's Go," Said Mr. Hog.

My most embarrassing moment was when, as a young girl, I went one Sunday afternoon, accompanied by my gentleman friend, to call on a chum of mine who lived on a farm.

It being apple blossom time, we walked out to the hog lot, where a couple of old trees were in bloom and the large, fat hogs were lying lazily in the sun.

Thinking one to be fast asleep, I said: "Watch me jump over that hog." I ran a short way and made a leap, when up jumped Mr. Hog and I landed astride his broad back.

Well, the merriment of my two friends may be imagined at seeing me ride that hog at least two-thirds of the way across the lot before I fell off.

O Cruel Mother!

I am a boy 13 years of age, and the youngest in our family. Yesterday I was walking home from school with two girl companions, and trying to act like a young man. We met my mother with a couple of other women. Mother said, "O, here is my baby." The girls laughed and walked away. This certainly was my most embarrassing moment.

Newlyweds at That.

My wife and I participated in a sleighing party one night. On our return, the sled stopped at our door to let us off. Stepping off, I gallantly lifted my wife out of the sled and told the driver to go ahead; I had my little sweetheart out.

"No you haven't," came my wife's indignant voice from within the sled.

Amidst the laughter of my friends, I humbly apologized to my neighbor's wife. They were newlyweds at that.

Do Two Hours' Work in 60 Minutes

With a McDougall Auto-Front

You spend too much time in your kitchen, without a McDougall at your elbow. You trot across the floor too constantly, which tells on your vitality. The best years of life are too few to be squandered. Come, realize this, and be assisted in the future by a McDougall Auto-Front. It compactly groups 400 articles you use frequently. It enables you to sit and just reach. It provides handy, regular place for everything—and improves the tidiness of your kitchen. All the newest practical conveniences for 1920 are to be seen on McDougall Auto-Fronts. In lustrous beauty, in completeness, in sanitation, in stalwart construction and in up-to-the-hour helpfulness, McDougalls lead by as wide margins this year as they have since the dawn of kitchen cabinets.

See the "Auto-Front," the famous McDougall patented wood curtain (above the tabletop) which drops open automatically. Disappears entirely! Leaves no groove to catch food or dirt. Lifts shut and locks! See it work!

See the tabletop that locks as firm as rock when pulled out. Can't jiggle up and down or rattle when worked open.

See the handles, latches, catches and hinges, handsome refrigerator-style. Can never break or pull out. Finest used on kitchen cabinets.

See the lustrous finishes that distinguish all McDougalls. Those in oak are Spar varnished—won't turn white despite kitchen steam, heat, or washing.

See the high-leg base, that can be swept beneath—sanitary!

See the construction in a McDougall. Built like a good sideboard. All joints mortised and tenoned solidly together instead of merely nailed or screwed. Nothing rickety.

See the steel braces in the eight corners of the base—staunch as Gibraltar! The drawers are dovetailed and mortised like dresser drawers—won't get out of shape and stick. McDougalls are the finest built of all. They do not grow wobbly and creaky with age.

See the flour bins, sanitary, cleanable (latest improved types) with cleanable sifters; see the sanitary glass sugar jar (non-corroding); see all the supremacies that McDougalls have.

UNCLE JIM'S STORY

KIMBO MEETS AN ELEPHANT.

KIMBO found life exciting with the Greatest Street Fair Ever Seen. He had a great big cage all to himself, and as it stood right on the street he could see every one and everything that went by.

"This is like the circus, only lots closer," he said to himself when he awoke the first morning he was with the fair. He rubbed his eyes sleepily, for the sun was shining brightly.

"I'd be sorry I left Reddy's house if it weren't such fun here."

For the night before after the little boy and girl who had picked him up had taken him to their tent they had made a big fuss over him. And Kimbo, I'm sorry to say, was beginning to think that every one should play with him and make lots of him and be just a little bit spoiled.

He saw a big fat man with a red face and a jolly smile outside his cage.

"Hello, there, you saucy little monkey," the man said, and then he opened the cage door.

It took Kimbo about half of a jiffy to scramble out of that cage and up on the man's shoulder.

"O, isn't he cute?" cried the little boy who had picked him up.

"Sure, he's cute, and he is going to ride on the elephant's trunk in the parade today," said the man, rubbing Kimbo's funny little head where he liked to have it rubbed.

"O, I don't think I'd like to ride an elephant," squeaked Kimbo.

"Stop your jabbering or you won't get any lunch," scolded the man. Kimbo stopped making any noise at all, you can believe, for he was getting awfully hungry.

Pretty soon after they had walked about half a block they came to the elephant's cage.

"Hello, there, you old Longa Trunk," said the fat man, stroking the elephant's long curling trunk.

"He certainly knows just how to rub you to make you like him," thought Kimbo, making up his mind right here and now that he liked the big fat man awfully well. So did Longa Trunka. He made funny sounds and came just as close to the side of his cage as he possibly could. For Longa Trunka knew the big fat man very well. He had been with the Greatest Street Fair Ever Seen for ten years and had always been a good and faithful elephant. He was wise, too, and could remember lots of things that had happened to him before he was caught on the banks of the great White Nile.

"O, I used to run as fast as the wind blows," he would tell Tom, the grizzly bear, whenever their cages were put side by side. "My father and I were always together and bang, bing, some one was always shooting at us from out of the marshes, but no one was ever able to hit us."

"I don't believe a word you say," Tom, the grizzly bear, would answer. He was a very cross bear and because he never had any exciting stories to tell, it always made him sick to hear Longa Trunka's tales. But Longa Trunka would go right on as if he had not heard what Tom growled.

"But one sad day I ran away from my father and down to the edge of the river. Bing, bang—men rushed at me from all sides and ropes were slung around my neck and I was taken thousands and thousands of miles and across all kinds of rivers and lakes and oceans and finally brought to America, where I was sold to the Greatest Street Fair Ever Seen."

Longa Trunka stood at least 11 feet at the shoulders. Kimbo craned his neck and squinted his eyes looking up at him.

"I hope he likes me," he thought to himself. "Of course I can fight, but still I'm afraid maybe he could get the best of me."

And now what do you think the big fat man did?

"Here, you two might just as well get acquainted now," he said, and he opened Longa Trunka's cage a little way and put Kimbo in on Longa Trunka's long curling trunk.

Well, Kimbo hung on. He hung on as tightly as he had hung on to that balloon when he had swung up in the air that day in the circus. He hoped the big fat man would take him off pretty soon, but the big fat man just left him there.

"Do you mind if I stay here?" Kimbo squeaked in a faint voice. What if Longa Trunka had a bad temper?

"I should say not," answered Longa Trunk, to Kimbo's relief. "I'm used to monkeys. The one before you was bigger than you, but nice and obliging. You are going to stay here until parade time."

"O, do we parade?"

"Sure thing. And listen," Longa Trunka's voice lowered to what he meant for a whisper, but it sounded more like a roar to Kimbo, "I'm glad you are here." He stopped and gave a terrific cough which nearly threw poor Kimbo to the floor of the cage. "Were you ever afraid of anything in all your monkey life?"

"Afraid? I should say so!" squeaked Kimbo. He was afraid this minute, but he did not like to say so.

"Well," went on Longa Trunka in a sort of shamed voice, "I am glad you are here because you can help me. We parade this noon and we pass a big barn at the end of the road. There you'll see a brown mouse in the corn field. There's a whole family of them. He has been sitting there during every parade this week. Now, I have fought tigers in the jungle and once my father and I killed three wild boars, but the sight of that mouse makes me shake all over. I'd rather take a beating than pass that barn in the corn field."

Kimbo's mouth dropped open in amazement. Longa Trunka, this huge elephant, afraid of a tiny mouse! And only yesterday afternoon in Reddy's back yard he had seen the baby kitten kill two mice!

"Sure, I'll help you," squeaked Kimbo. He wanted to laugh, but he didn't dare. He only grinned, his funny monkey grin instead.

(Next time I'll tell you how Kimbo the monkey helped Longa Trunka, the huge brown elephant.)

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

WAIST LINE DISAPPEARS.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—A subject hinted at in the last letter is worthy, I think, of a more prolonged thesis. I refer to the revolt against the apron string, or, in other words, the narrow tight belts of yesterday.

"O, that old subject," I can hear you saying. "She is morbid about it."

I would call your attention to the fact that there was a time when, like most neutrals, I seemed to be waiting to ascertain who would be victor in order to cast my taste on the side of whichever fashion won. For a time I almost turned against my countrywomen when they came pouring over here in those long skirts and a waistline exaggeratedly lean and long. Even the French, however, who are about as unsusceptible to outside influence as would be possible to any mind that functions, saw the possibilities of that line, and—subject of my today's opening remarks—have gone us one better on our Anglo-Saxon idea.

They are making things without any belt whatever of any form, shape or kind.

One day in London this winter I said in a shop which deals exclusively in French costumes, "Wouldn't that dress be pretty and becoming if only it didn't have to have any belt at all?"

Mlle. Lucie, the vendeuse, replied excitedly and fast, as if a little embarrassed, "Well, but, madame, we haven't quite come to that yet."

It was almost as if I had proposed going without a blouse or shoes. At any rate, we have gone that far now, and only a short two months have elapsed.

I spent one long afternoon this last week looking at the show at Jenny's and another looking at the wondrous parade of fashion at the house of Madeleine & Madeleine. Dress after dress passed in procession, without the faintest hint that there was such a thing in the world as a waist line. Evening gowns looked like tea gowns, with wide slits, low down, for the arms, and billows of scalloped and lacy softnesses floating to the breeze of the manikin's airy tread. Street dresses made one think of tubes, so straight they were, and so unpunctuated by waist line.

The street gown shown here is of ribbed silk, black, I believe—although the model at Jenny's from which this one has been constructed is of dark blue cloth. The waist consists of a series of close fitting plaits, the outer boundaries for which are the under arm seams, and the center is the middle of the back. There are between this center point and the underarm seam just two plaits on either side. At the waist line they loosen, or at least are no longer stitched down, and they thereby form whatever fullness there is to the skirt. The dress is in one piece from collar to the band around the bottom, and there is no intimation that in all the history of costuming any note has ever been taken of a waist line. Even the plaits are loosened at different latitudes, and begin to flow from a point much further north in the back than in the front.

The artist tells me that the "feeling" in this costume is directoire. However that may be, it has an organdie collar and the dress is closely buttoned down the front. The cuffs, by the way, are of white organdie, too, and both they and the collar are directoire. The hat is of black straw with a dark blue ostrich feather around the front of it and a white one completing the circuit in the back. Altogether this is a very chic outfit indeed.

The second dress is an evening costume showing the same indifference to the waist line. It is of smoke gray chiffon with a ruching around sides and bottom of pale yellow. When the wearer lifts her arms she exhibits large areas of downy material which spread like wings—or would it be more helpful to say like sails?—which catch the soft breeze of her glide and swell backward. The slender train of smoke gray tulle is also edged with silk of pale yellow.

The third offering is a dance frock of yellow tulle, with a cape effect on the shoulders and an apron effect in the skirt. It is gathered on a silver band, and let me hasten to add that while there is an effect of an apron there is no hint of an apron string. There are silver threads and gold sequins in a design along the edge of the cape and around the skirt, low over the hips. It is indeed a lovely costume. Molyneux is its author.

The fourth dress is interesting because of its irregular coastline on the south. Skirts have before now come down in sharp, unexpected projections, but usually these have been in the back. The costume is of coffee colored crêpe, and it is edged round the surplice front, the underskirt, and the sleeves with brown ostrich trimming—making, as you can imagine, a very lovely color scheme indeed. The belt is wide, although high, like the former apron string. Most of the belts are lower than this today. It is of the same shade of brown as the feathers. The hat is of tulle and brown ostrich plumes.

Bright Sayings of the Children

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

I had watched a small girl sitting on my front steps crying for some little time. I thought she was the little girl who had moved in next door, and so I figured she would run home in a short time and tell her mother her trouble, but as she still stayed there and no one from next door came out I went to investigate.

"What are you crying for?" I asked in a kindly tone.

She said: "Well, a while ago I was crying because I bumped my knee, but just lately I been crying 'cause mother wouldn't come and get me and pay 'tention to my crying." E. R.

Betty was talking with her mother about her little brother, and her mother said, "Betty, isn't it funny, Stuart and daddy have blue eyes, while you and I have green eyes?" Betty, thinking deeply, finally said, "Never mind, mother, ours will get ripe some time." H. R.

Junior had spent several weeks one summer visiting a favorite aunt who lived in the suburbs, and he was reminiscent of those happy weeks when he again paid her a visit. However, she had moved, and now lives in a flat. When Junior came home he voiced his grievance to his father, saying, "There wasn't no room to move around in; why, they didn't even have any kids in that building to fight with!" V. M. B.

Two little boys were overheard recently discussing their respective families. "My aunt is a war bride," boasted Charlie. Gordon thought a minute. Then a look of relief spread over his face. "That's nothing," he retorted, "my grandfather's a civil war veteran." M. J. T.

When Billie had paid a barber a visit, he came back looking much like a boy, having been shorn of his bobbed hair.

Grandmother said, "Why, you are a little man now, aren't you, Billie?" and he answered, "I was all the time, only my head was covered up." V. M. B.

The family had two sets of teacups, a common set without handles and a better set with handles. The younger children had been duly impressed with the sacredness of the cups with handles. Georgie, coming down the back stairway one day, eating popcorn from a teacup, fell, and the clatter of broken china was heard in the kitchen. His elder sister shouted in sharp alarm, "Was that a cup with a handle, Georgie?" Georgie answered in soothing tones, "Yes, but it's all right, Em'ly, the handle ain't broke." M. A. C.

"Mother," said Howard, "I don't like that new boy at all. He's one of these boys that wants a lot of anything for nothing." M. O.

Ralph recently entered kindergarten. When he had gone only a few days one of the other children had a birthday. The child's mother brought cookies and ice cream for all the children, then the teacher drew the shades and lighted the candles while they ate the refreshments. Upon his return home Ralph told his mother about the party, saying it was a nice treat. A little later he returned, saying, "Mamma, I think you will have to bring some treatments on my birthday." H. G.

The other day in speaking of a little boy I mentioned that I felt sorry for him because he had no little brothers to play with. "Well, mother," said my 5 year old, "you needn't not, 'cause his dog Sport is a reg'lar guy." M. O.

* *

Mattie was playing about the house, but her actions indicated that she was becoming sleepy. Her mother suggested that it was about time she took her afternoon nap. Glancing at the clock, as if she could tell the time of day, she replied: "O, no, mamma; it's time I didn't go to sleep."

Mrs. H. R.

A little girl was standing on the sidewalk when an old man approached, stopped, looked around a little, and then inquired of the child: "I am headed for Mr. James Ordways. Would you tell me how much farther I will have to go down this street to reach his house?"

"Well," answered the little miss thoughtfully, "if you keep headed the way you are now I think you will have to go some long ways, but if you head the other way you will only have to go to the second house back there." E. R.

And NOW Brunswick Records

WE are introducing, after years of preparation, Brunswick Records. They, too, are unlike any you have known before. They bring a new principle in phonographic recording. Each Brunswick Record is interpreted by a noted director or an accomplished artist technically trained in the art of recording. Thus we unite the talent of the artist with the genius of the composer. This is a step which you will appreciate once you make comparisons.

We feel sure that you will recognize the betterment brought out by this idea. We want you to judge Brunswick Records by those same severe tests with which people have judged Brunswick Phonographs. And that is by comparison. We leave the verdict to you.

Remember—Brunswick Records will play on any phonograph with steel or fibre needle.

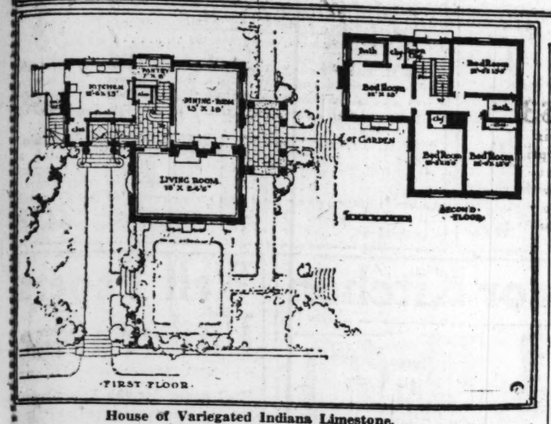
THE HOME HARMONIOUS

By Anita de Campi



House of Variegated Indiana Limestone.

Anita de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to home building and home furnishing. Address your letter to Anita de Campi, Sunday Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

BUILT OF INDIANA LIMESTONE.

IN this day and age, when shortage of labor is resulting in a lowering of the quality of practically all products manufactured by man, quality being necessarily sacrificed for quantity production in order that exacting demands may be satisfied, it is increasingly a matter of wisdom to use, whenever we can, those endowments of nature which she has so bountifully prepared for us in her own leisurely way. One of the most widely distributed of these is building stone. There are few communities that do not have stone quarries nearby which produce rock suitable for building purposes.

How many of us have not seen and greatly admired the outside stone chimney, built perhaps of weather worn field stones, softened in color by generations of exposure and adding an inexpensive but picturesque note to an otherwise less interesting scene! Frequently in rural districts the stone chimney alone remains as evidence of the home that once stood there. How many of us have not seen the old stone fences which for generations have stood in mute testimony of the industry and hard labor of the early owners of the fields and pastures they inclose!

Today in our mad struggle for existence we do not build stone fences because a wire fence can be put up in much less time.

Since the development of our railroad systems there have been opened up numerous quarries of attractive building stone which are universally available and so economical in cost as to compare favorably with other building materials.

The simple yet beautiful composition illustrated is built of variegated Indiana limestone, an easy working, low cost building stone of more than ordinary beauty, durability, and universal availability, as it is kept in stock by stone dealers in all parts of the country. The variegated color, light buff and silver gray, laid up with random jointing, gives interest and texture to the plain walls and results in a mature appearance, which is one of the great charms of a stone structure.

The Spanish tile roof and stone facades effect a rich appearance, but the rectangular shape and lack of many corners result in a design that can be economically constructed. The house proper is 33x36 feet, with an entrance vestibule projecting twelve feet on one side and a paved terrace leading off the dining room on the opposite side. Stone paving is employed for the walk, entrance vestibule, and terraces, and is carried into the living room in front of and beyond the stone fireplace.

The living room is more spacious than the average, occupying the entire front of the house, and is lighted by windows on three sides. The dining room involves a novel feature, in that its floor is raised three steps above the living room floor.

On the second floor are four bedrooms, a maid's room, and two baths, the latter being located so that each one is convenient to a pair of bedrooms. The entrance vestibule finishes in a covered balcony at the second floor and can be used as a sleeping porch.

The entire composition has been carefully worked out with a practical handling of utilitarian features, combined with an appropriate setting and landscape scheme that result in a layout into which the house fits more pleasingly and harmoniously than is usually found on the hundred foot city lot.

The Best Homes Use

A-B-C

ELECTRIC WASHING MACHINES

WHY shouldn't they? The A-B-C is made for homes in which only an electric washer of high quality standard could be fitting equipment.

Quality is not simply a name that applies to the outward appearance of the A-B-C—it is the kind of work the A-B-C does; the way it is built; and the service it gives its owners.

You will be enthusiastic over the A-B-C Super Electric because it washes clothes clean. The reversing cylinder forces hot suds through the fabric from both directions 44 times per minute. It reverses noiselessly at every revolution.

Every home equipped with an A-B-C Super Electric has solved the clean clothes problem.

We will demonstrate an A-B-C in your home without charge. You can buy it on divided payments. Telephone for a demonstration on your next wash day.

THE MAY SALE OF WHITE

—brings buying opportunities in muslin wear, corsets, waists, handkerchiefs, boys' wash suits, cotton goods, etc.

THIS event is so generously patronized by people who insist upon getting best values in dependable merchandise for their money, that we need not elaborate on it here. Suffice it to say that the scope of our White Sales this May is greater than ever and the economies likewise. A daily visit to our store will reveal many advantages that can be derived from buying here.

Dainty undermuslins that appeal through quality and price

WHEN manufacturers of muslinwear had their dullest season, these undermuslins were made up for us. This procedure saved us a good deal of money, and this saving is reflected in the prices for this week. Just as noteworthy as the savings are the splendid qualities of the materials, the careful workmanship and the neat styles of the garments. There are gowns, envelope chemises, drawers, petticoats, corset covers, children's princess slips, and children's combinations.

CONDENSED COOK BOOKS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—[Special correspondence.]—Although troubled and perplexed about it, I have never until just now felt competent to confute certain arguments unfavorable to school training in domestic science. These arguments have been offered to me by old fashioned, self-taught cooks; by mothers in their homes; by heads of tearooms or other places where people are fed or where food is the main subject of consideration or manipulation.

Regretfully I have often agreed that a girl fresh from a four year course in household science could neither teach cooking to my satisfaction, nor seem to fit herself readily into any practical food work.

Of course we have expected too much of her, and far too much of the high school girl who has perhaps had no more than a year's training in cooking classes while this work has been but one out of three or four subjects studied. I have a full realization now of our unjust attitude toward these girls and knowing how worth while such work is, in the end, I want to "stand up" for them.

Experience First Requisite.

A few days after hearing one of these girls criticized as an utter failure in a tearoom organization—in the end the ugly duckling might have proved a swan—I visited some cooking classes in a Los Angeles high school. And I had hardly begun to watch the comprehensive work being done there before I got an inspiration which will serve me in the future when any one starts in to condemn, wholly and sweepingly, these domestic science graduates. A flash of memory brought to me the argument I shall use, and you can use one like it, when anybody decries as useless the school training in cookery, as hundreds of women do.

This is what I remembered: Once I was young and a graduate of one of the best colleges in the land—Wellesley. Moreover, I had in addition a university degree, yet, with what amounted to nearly seven years of as high training as I could get, I had reason to be bitterly discouraged in trying to get a place to put it into practice, and to earn a pittance as a reward for years of effort.

Every board of college trustees, every public school board, every principal of a private school, was looking for a woman of experience when they wanted some one to do the work I had prepared myself to do. Mere training was not enough, and there seemed no way to get the prerequisite experience. Ultimately the training counted infinitely, but at that stage it seemed entirely at a discount.

Better Training Given.

Until recently domestic science graduates were so few and courses in domestic science being so universally introduced everywhere, that graduates in subjects found places to teach readily, no question about experience arising. As a result some of the teaching has been the work of those without experience, and it is not surprising that results in some cases have been criticizable. But today this training is becoming increasingly efficient, and the work given far more fundamental than formerly and more fundamental than any home learning.

Nevertheless the most experienced teachers of cookery may have difficulty in turning out students from their classes as efficient as the world demands. Boards of education are not always generous. They are even niggardly, and the girls often must work with the most limited equipment. In many cases they cannot learn to do things in the best way because they have not the tools. Too many home kitchens are as badly off, so that the girl in practicing what she learns at home (and she will practice if her teacher is of the right sort) does not get the best sort of experience. And every woman knows how time flies in preparing a simple meal. It flies just as fast when the girl is trying for the first time to make some simple dish. Because this is so, results may seem scanty.

One Rule for Many.

But for some years now some teachers have been teaching principles and grouping recipes into what we may call condensed cook books, so that a girl who has learned to make, say, one milk soup, can make a dozen or two by applying the same rules she used with the one sort, or having learned how to make baking powder biscuit, she can make cream scones, cheese biscuit, English tea biscuit, fruit roll, etc. And then when the time for making meat stews comes along, the girl gets a little review of her work with biscuits by making dumplings.

For instance, the work I watched that day of the inspiration, tasting the results, was on the biscuits. Apple dumplings were made with a biscuit dough, thus adding experience in filling a dough, wetting edges, and fastening a filling in with no other cement than water.

The table by which all the varieties of biscuit were made had at the left hand side the following general list of ingredients: Flour, baking powder, sugar, salt, fat, milk, eggs. Below these the special ingredients of cheese, raisins, and cinnamon were added. I must say here that the half cup of cheese, added to the regulation baking powder biscuit, gave a more successful product than any of the others baked—to my mind. The cheese was cut fine and worked quickly into the dough made. In every case the dough got the slightest possible handling. It is overhandling of quick doughs that leads to failure. One girl simply made dropped biscuit, and their surfaces looked rough before baking, but smoothed out beautifully in baking because her dough was not too stiff.

Some of the Measurements.

Under the various headings, at the top of the page, giving name of thing to be made, were the numbers showing amounts of each of the ingredients to use. On the line of the ingredient flour the universal measure was two.

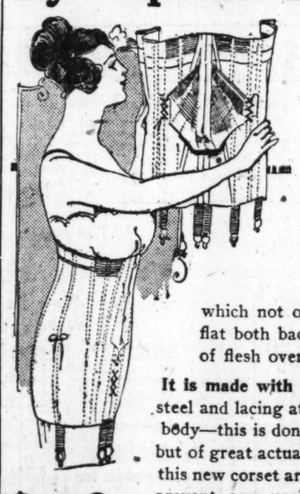
By Popular Demand, Nemo Corset Week Is Continued

Third Floor—Center



So many women are coming to realize the importance of the Nemo corset to the figure, health and comfort, that Nemo Corset Week, to more fully demonstrate the new Nemo features, has been continued for another week. The ideal manner in which the Nemo combines fashion, hygiene and comfort is noted to best advantage in the which not only creates the fashionable figure by making it extremely flat both back and front, but it controls and reduces any accumulation of flesh over the stomach and diaphragm section.

It is made with the "flattening front"—a wide band attached to the front steel and lacing at each side—which supports and flattens the front of the body—this is done naturally in a manner which will not only be comfortable, but of great actual benefit to women in need of support. Another feature of this new corset are the long back stays, which run to the end of the corset and prevent any unsightly creases. This remarkable corset, style No. 1002, made of very fine, durable coutil, low top, rubber bust insertions, fitted without extra charge, by one of our large corps of expert corsetieres, all graduates of the N. H. F. I., sizes 24 to 36, at $10

HILLMAN'S

"A Store for Everybody"

State and Washington Sts.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

cups, and of course the amount of baking powder in each case was four level teaspoons, two teaspoons per cup being the regulation amount to use, and the amount probably needed by the inexperienced cook. I always use half that myself.

The amounts of sugar used were bound to vary. I would always use more than the two teaspoons put down for the cream scones. But here is where waste comes in, as it does come in almost everything cooked, especially with sugar. A teaspoon in ordinary biscuits is all too little, to my mind, since its presence in the biscuits makes them brown so much more agreeably.

One-half teaspoon of salt to two cups of flour is what was universally put down, but the amounts of fat varied from two to four teaspoons. Three tablespoons of fat—each girl cut the fat into flour with two knives, or a knife and a spatula, no matter which of the various things she made—were given for the English tea biscuits, four for cream scones, two for the cheese biscuits, and four for the fruit roll. Cheese is fat, so the dough needed less than the fruit roll, for instance, which has the apple dumpling sort of dough or one partially like a pie crust.

The amount of milk put down for each dough was about two-thirds of a cup, or that amount with a question mark after. When the amount of flour is fixed the amount of wet cannot be, and vice versa. Since the flour and fat are manipulated as the first step of the process, in every case in making these biscuitlike things, the fixed quantity makes for advantage.

With this table of proportions there must be descriptive matter and here is where the quality of the girl and the character of her notebook show up. It is not difficult to drop a dough. It requires a little more skill to roll one, and cut it into the little biscuits called tea biscuits. To mix something into it and then roll it out requires a little more deftness, and to roll it out and fill it with one-half cup of raisins in two cups of chopped apples, perhaps sprinkled with cinnamon or nutmeg, to roll it up, fasten the end of the dough, and bake it carefully requires considerable skill.

Chowders by Tabulated Recipes.

In another class in the same school the girls were making chowders by similar tabulated recipes of corn, potato, tomato, tomato and corn, split pea, vegetable, fish, and clam. They harked back to their lesson in the making of cream soups, discussing the whys of thickenings, and so forth. The chowders were recommended for what they are, good substantial one meal dishes. The general method was "Cut potatoes into dice, parboil five minutes, drain. Dice or mince the pork, try out without browning, pour over potatoes, add other vegetables, cover with water or stock, cook till tender. Thicken milk, combine, season, add crackers."

The list of the ingredients that, outside of the name ingredient, went into each and all read: Salt pork, potatoes, onion, milk, water, fat, flour, salt, pepper, crackers. The proportions in the corn chowder were for one can or one cup of corn, one-fourth pound of salt pork, two cups of diced potatoes, one onion, four cups of milk, two cups of water, one tablespoon of fat, two tablespoons of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt, one-eighth teaspoon of pepper, eight crackers.

In the tomato and the tomato and corn chowders, a speck of soda was added to the tomato before it was mixed with the milk as in making mock bisque. A speck of marjoram was added to both the fish and the clam chowders.

By Elizabeth O. Hiller.

All measurements are made level in these recipes. A teaspoon of regulation size holds sixty drops. Three level teaspoons equal one level tablespoon. Sixteen level tablespoons equal one cup (one-half pint). The half-pint measuring cup is the standard measuring cup used in modern cookery

Scalloped Salsify.

Scrape the salsify roots, and as soon as scraped drop into cold water to which two tablespoons of vinegar has been added. Stir one tablespoon of flour to a smooth, thin paste with cold water, then stir, while slowly pouring on one quart or more of boiling water; bring to the boiling point, then add the prepared salsify, one teaspoon of salt, and one tablespoon of vinegar. Cook until the salsify is tender, replenishing the saucepan with boiling water as needed. Drain the vegetable and press through a sieve. To each cup of pulp add one teaspoon of salt, a little pepper, the beaten yolk of one egg, and a little cream to moisten. Mix thoroughly and dispose in buttered ramekins or shells. Cover tops with buttered cracker crumbs and bake in a hot oven until the crumbs are brown.

Spiced Beef.

Wipe six pounds of beef cut from the plate, having left in it the tips of the ribs, and evenly streaked with fat and lean meat. Cover with boiling water, bring to the boiling point, skim, and add some extra bones (veal bones are best), one tablespoon of salt, one teaspoon of pepper corns, and two small pieces of bay leaf. Cover and cook slowly until the meat falls in shreds and the liquor is well reduced (there should be about one cup). Arrange meat in an agate brick shaped bread pan, so that the shreds are laid lengthwise and alternated with some of the fat. Pour over the strained liquor, lifting the meat carefully with forks to allow it to percolate through the mass; cover and set a heavy weight above. Let stand over night in a cold place. Remove from mould and cut crosswise in thin slices and serve with cold whipped cream horse radish sauce.

To make this grate fresh horse radish root, and mix with enough vinegar to moisten and flavor delicately. Set aside in a cold place. Just before serving add twice the measure of whipped cream.

SANITARY FLOOR ENAMEL

WASHABLE AND WATERPROOF

The new coating for old floors. Easy to apply and dries over-night with a beautiful lustre that repeated washings will not injure. Will not stick to furniture, and does not peel or chip off.

Try KYANIZE FLOOR ENAMEL on that Floor that never did look well.

HERE'S OUR OFFER TO YOU

Cut out this advertisement, bring it to our store and pay 25 cents for a good brush to apply it. We'll give you free of charge enough to cover a full half-pint can, enough to do over your pantry floor or shelves. Choice of 8 colors.

Many secrets you will find revealed in the green box of

Nadine Face Powder

They are secrets which every woman would solve—secrets of personal charm.

The secret of a rose-petal complexion—NADINE'S gift to womanhood.

The secret of lasting charm, charm which endures throughout the day.

The secret of skin-comfort—with never a hint of harm.

To you, as to a million others, NADINE will reveal these intimate secrets.

You can procure NADINE from your favorite toilet counter or by mail. Also Nadine Talcum, Nadine Rouge Compact, and Nadine Soap.

PATTERNS by CLOTILDE

How to Use the Patterns

THE one piece house dress, 9,619, is a simple but attractive model, particularly becoming to girlish, slender figures. The waist and skirt are cut in one, there being only two seams, the shoulder and under arms.

Taffeta, plain or figured, would make up charmingly for an afternoon frock, and the hip ruffles could be made of georgette or chiffon in a color contrasting with the silk, or if the material is figured the georgette could be the same color as that in the design.

The under arm seams must be finished, and the shoulder seams put together at the armhole end as far as notched; then the rest of the shoulder seams is finished with faced and extension hems, and snaps sewed on for closing.

Mark clearly the lines for sewing the ruffles on, and be careful not to pucker the dress in basting and stitching the ruffles. A casing for elastic is stitched over the edge of each of the top ruffles at the waist line, and the ends of the elastic strips must be stitched in place by machine, so as to hold firmly. These elastics will hold the waist line in place nicely and are easier to arrange than a band.

The sash can be made of the silk or georgette, and there should be two pieces cut, seamed together on the wrong side, turned right side out, and pressed. Two or three bright red cherries or beads can be fastened in the sash ends so they will dangle, and they will look especially well with a black or blue, and give the touch of color the dress will need.

No. 9,606 is a little one piece dress, with a gathered section set in both the front and back of the skirt, making it a little different from the usual one piece dress. Some may like to have these gathered pieces of some contrasting color, matching the collar, cuffs, and pocket laps; or, of course, they can be of the same material as the rest of the dress.

The dress is simple to make, but of course all marks on the pattern must be clearly shown on the material and directions for putting together carefully followed.

If the dress is made all of one material it would be pretty to cut the bands that cover the edges of the gathered sections of a contrasting color, and embroider them. The collar, cuffs, and pocket laps can match these bands or be made of the dress material.

No. 9,620 is a good design for a negligée, and it can be cut the full length or for a shorter garment.

Cotton crêpe, silk, muslin, challis, or something even heavier will any of them be appropriate materials. Hold the front of the pattern up to you before cutting, and if not long enough for a good hem around the bottom make the necessary allowance when cutting.

Make French seams under the arms and on the shoulders, and then finish the bottom of the negligée. Turn the remaining raw edge down both fronts and around the neck up toward the right side, making a turning of about five-eighths of an inch. This edge will have to be clipped around the neck where it curves.

The bias facing must be carefully handled, and in basting it on see that it doesn't twist any place. Where it goes around the neck it must be slightly stretched on the outer edge, on the fronts, and on the inside edge, around the back. Have small pins, and pin it in place before basting. Basting is always particular work, and unless it is properly done the garment may have a "botchy, home made look."

9619—Woman's one piece dress. Sizes 36 to 42 inches bust measure, with lower edge measuring 1¾ yards. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 36 inch figured material, with 1½ yards of 36 inch plain material.

9620—Woman's and miss' negligé. Sizes 16 years and 36, 40, and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 36 inch material, with ⅞ yard of 36 inch silk for contrasting bias facing.

9606—Girl's dress. Sizes 6 to 12 years. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 36 inch plain material, with ⅞ yard of 36 inch checked material and ⅛ yard of 36 inch contrasting.

A Weekly Affair.

Two years ago I was assigned, during the busy season, to help out in a rural bank in the wheat belt. I secured board at the only boarding house in the small village. I was in the habit of bathing daily; but the third day of my stay my landlady compelled me to change my habits. She announced to me: "You can't take a bath more than once a week here. It floods the cellar too much." In order to make certain the enforcement of her ukase she kept the stopper for the bathtub in her possession, letting me have it just once each week. E. J. R.

With Evident Relish.

At one of the evening meals in the home where I boarded the landlady brought in a whole cake with two-thirds cut in pieces. When it was passed and came to Peters he took the one-third that was not cut, eating it all with evident relish without showing the least bit of embarrassment while the others all smiled. M. E.

Plenty of Seasoning.

Several of us boarded at a place where the landlady was quite stingy. The salt and pepper shakers were so small that the contents were gone before they were half around the table. One night she heard us complaining and the next morning there were two large fruit jars on the table, one containing salt and the other pepper, with holes bored in the covers. We never complained again. L. P.

The Safest SOAP for Your Washing Machine is KIRK'S AMERICAN FAMILY SOAP

THE time and labor that your fine washing machine will save you, will count for little if your clothes come out injured and bleached white, because of the soap you have been induced to use, that contains bleaching alkalies and other impurities.

There is nothing in American Family Soap that will injure, spot or discolor the most delicate fabrics, and in warm or cold water it quickly washes the clothes lily white, clean and leaves them sweet smelling. Its purity has made it the favorite laundry soap for over three generations.

The Theaters

By Percy Hammond.

THE Drama League of America, a sturdy, efficacious, and patient sodality, consecrated to the betterment of the several arts of the theater, is to make Chicago hereafter the center of its educative and inspirational energies. It has packed up its archives, including its long and rich memorabilia of worthy things done worthily, and is moving them hither from Washington and New York. A Chicago man, Mr. John M. Stahl, has been elected president, unanimously. Mr. Stahl is president also of the Farmers' National Life Insurance Company of America, and it was he who first proposed the free delivery of Sears-Roebuck and other mail matter to the rural precincts. He has been president of the Farmers' National Congress and similar agricultural organizations; he was a leader with Mr. Taft in the movement for a modern parcels post, and he has been the successful editor or publisher of the Ohio Farmer, the Illinois Farmer, Farmers' Call, and other influential gazettes dedicated to husbandry. He was mentioned for the agricultural portfolio in the cabinet of Mr. Taft; and his record of attendance at sessions of the Farmers' National congress is not equaled by that of any other man.

President Stahl is a writer, too, and at present is leader of the Society of Midland Authors. His encouraging pedigree suggests that he, as president of the Drama League of America, will frown at the monotonous squawk of the silver sound of lark and linnet as they sail over the fragrant fields and flowery meads of the Union loop.

The Drama Magazine, which is the deep organ of the Drama League (and of which periodical Mr. Stahl is president), has been changed recently from a quarterly to a monthly journal. This is a meritorious publication, edited by Mr. Theodore B. Hinckley, a whilom bishop of English at the University of Chicago. Dr. Hinckley resigned his Midway see not long ago to join, as a sort of non-resident member, the mob of gentlemen who write with ease about the drama. He is ideal for the task. He has, as I view him enviously on opening nights, the mackerel eye of the intelligent skeptic, penetrating (as a rule) the bogus veneer with which the theater varnishes life's heart-beats. His impressions are not tempered by the nefarious propinquity of the daily pressman and the player. No venomous Orange Pekoe impedes the expression of his opinion; and he can write frankly, not fearing tomorrow's luncheon at the Cliff-Dwellers with Pinero or Patricia Collinge. Dr. Hinckley has a giant's strength, yet his use of it is not tyrannous. The Drama Magazine thus commends Walker Whiteside in "The Master of Ballantrae," which performance was regarded by many Chicago persons as a sallow profanation of a good story; and it also speaks kindly of Miss Margaret Anglin's popular and prosperous exhibition called "The Woman in Bronze." If "The Woman in Bronze" is play and playing, then Ringling is a dramatist, and Jo-Jo, the dog-faced boy, is a good actor. Contributors to the Drama Magazine include Dhan Gopal Mukerji, Ruth St. Denis, Herman Rosse, Jack Crawford, Dugald Walker, Rudolph Altrocchi, Alfred Kreymborg, Daniel Frohman, Granville Barker, and Minnie Maddern Fiske.

One surmises that Dr. Hinckley, moving from the pedagog's to the prophet's seat, finds the change otherwise not easy. The New York managers, however, have arranged for him and other provincial reviewers to be comfortable, employing, as their practice is, a critic to go with each show. These writers, fresh from Broadway, having studied thoroughly the dramas they represent, provide thoughtful and conservative comment which they mimeograph and distribute as alms soft-handed to the famished outland editor. Thus I do not have to write again of "The Royal Vagabond" because Mr. Cohan pays Mr. Caldwell B. Caldwell to do it for me. Mr. Caldwell, a reticent and an honest fellow, reviews "The Royal Vagabond" modestly, as follows:

"'The Royal Vagabond,' entrancingly entertaining Cohanized opéra comique, continues to attract capacity patronage as it enters the sixth week of the limited Chicago engagement. Robinson Newbold, who heads the superb cast of talented principals, has scored a tremendous triumph as the funniest legitimate comedian seen on the musical comedy stage in many seasons, while Virginia O'Brien, the dainty prima donna, has won equal popularity. Charming Mary Eaton, the premiere danseuse, and inimitable Edna Pierre, in terpsichorean specialties, contribute several notable examples of the witchery and poetry of rhythmic motion that will long be remembered by every one who sees this surpassing success of the season."

"The Royal Vagabond" prospered for a full year in New York, yet despite much loud acclaim it grows feeble here, and after six weeks at the Colonial, turns up its toes. It will be succeeded next Sunday by "Just a Minute," a musical comedy involving, so the prospectus says, a dancer named Tom Dingle, and "a chorus which is a boiling, seething crater of youth."

Mrs. Arthur Henry Kimball, 4725 Forrestville avenue, rides out and engages Mr. Ben Hecht, author of "Dregs," for scurrilous remarks made here last week about Little theaters and Little theater audiences:

My Dear Mr. Hammond: As a representative of the average theater-goer I cannot allow Mr. Ben Hecht's letter in last Sunday's issue of THE TRIBUNE to remain unanswered. If Mr. Hecht is trying to be facetious, I fear his ramblings will not impress those for whom they are intended. If he is sincere, we must deplore the fact that he is not writing for art's sake, but rather for commercialism, and this is not the spirit for which the Little theater stands. Therefore, to my mind, his boasting of a Little theater "success" is a flagrant fallacy and his abusive epithets an impertinence. The author of "Dregs" is young, and we are optimistic enough to feel that he will mellow with age. Let us then be charitable and bear with him. Think it over, Mr. Hecht. Your viewpoint is neither ethical, psychological, nor sane. BELLE S. KIMBALL.

Mr. Hecht may be able to reconcile himself to the above deserved chastisement in the fact that George M. Cohan is now negotiating with him for the production of some of his plays. Mr. Hecht's jovial disparagement of the immaturity and stupidity of big theater audiences is said to have so intrigued the master showman that he looked him up when, last week, he came to Chicago.

The Messrs. Shubert have at last produced David Graham Phillips' "Susan Lenox" in Boston, with Alma Tell, Robert T. Haines, Beatrice Noyes, Albert Backett, and Marie Vernon in the past. . . . English newspapers say that Miss Laurette Taylor's troubles in London were the result of her husband, Mr. Manners, having referred to the Irish as "crazy pro-Germans" in a speech at the Lotus club. . . . A. H. Woods will soon produce a farce called "Ladies' Night" by Avery Hopwood and Charlton Andrews, with Miss Fay Marbe, familiar to the movies, in the leading rôle. . . . Ray Goetz, returned from Paris, announces the preparation for America of "Mon Homme" ("My Man"), by Andre Picard and Francis Carco, played by Cora Laparcerie at the Renaissance. Also the production of "How Do They Get That Way?" by himself and Glen MacDonough. . . . Don Barclay, who a season or two ago was one of the funniest of the Ziegfeld Follies, returns from London to go into burlesque with the "Step Lively, Girls." . . . Miss Alexandra Carlisle, after staging "Barnum Was Right" for the Hasty Pudding Boys at Harvard, will appear tomorrow for the first time in "The Respect for Riches," by William Devereaux, supported by Lucille Watson, Fred Tiden, and George Giddens. Muriel Martin Harvey and Nancy Waller, daughters of famous English actors, are also in the cast. . . . Anna Held Jr. has been engaged by Walter Hast, producer of "Scandal," to appear in a comedy from the French called "Exit, Claudine." . . . Miss Maude Adams will return to the theater next season, perhaps in a new play by Barrie. . . . Samuel Shipman's new comedy, "Tomorrow's Price," will be a Chicago summer show, with Taylor Holmes as the star. . . . Two gold medals inscribed "From the Fighting Sixty-ninth to Elsie" and "From the Boys of the Twenty-ninth to Elsie" were among the $53,000 worth of treasure stolen from Miss Janis in Louisville.

"All Souls' Eve" is at hand, a serious play of the supernatural, in the mood, according to the advance accounts, of "The Return of Peter Grimm," rather than that of the more recent spiritualistic plays hereabouts. It is the work of Anne Crawford Flexner and is being produced by John D. Williams. Lola Fisher and Cyril Keightley head the cast, which includes Anne Faystone, Clifford Dempsey, Walter Kingsford, John Thorn, Clarence Rockefeller, and others. . . . Mabel McCane has signed a contract to appear in "The Little Blue Devil," which Joe Weber will bring to Chicago early next season. This musical comedy is "The Blue Mouse" made over with all the spicy touches and a dash of music. It will be seen either at the Garrick or the Studebaker. Another Joe Weber production called "Honeydew" is also slated for a Chicago appearance after Broadway gets a glimpse of it. . . . "Scrambled Wives," a comedy by the author of "Nightie Night," is about to be launched with Grant Mitchell and Jane Gray aboard.

MISS WINIFRED HARRIS IN "THE ROYAL VAGABOND" COLONIAL LEWIS-SMITH PHOTO.

Miss Harris is an English player of distinction appearing in Mr. Cohan's operatic travesty as the imperious ruler of a comic realm. Like King Henry's Lady Anne, she has all the royal makings of a queen—beauty, regality of bearing, a perfect diction, and an azure personality.

Eight of the Ten Best Plays of the Season Are Listed

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—This being the time of year, with the season's end in sight, when all the jolly old experts of the drama set about their task of selecting the ten best plays of the year, we are always reminded of the trusty who was showing a group of interested visitors through the insane asylum. You recall how, coming to the last of the padded cells, and indicating the somewhat excited gentleman within, he explained: "And this young man has a sad history. He imagines he's Napoleon. Which is perfectly ridiculous, because I'm Napoleon."

These lists of ten frequently represent merely the ten most popular plays. Or they include the ten most curious exhibits of the season. Occasionally they are an amusing mixture of, say, six of the ten best and four of the ten worst plays of the year. But always the compiler of the list is most insistent that his selections are the only genuine ten. Which is perfectly ridiculous, because as a matter of fact we have not yet had time to make up the real list.

Furthermore, though we can offhand select the first eight of the ten that shall finally be named, the two last places should not be filled until the season is really complete. It is quite possible there may be a masterpiece just outside the door of one of the playhouses waiting for a hearing, and we are not one to risk the necessity of

"THE FALSE ROAD."

Produced by Paramount. Directed by Fred Niblo. Presented at outlying theaters.

THE CAST.

Betty Palmer.....Enid Bennett
"Pickpocket" Roger Moran.....Lloyd Hughes
Sapphire".Mike Wilson.....Wade Boteler
Frisco" Minnie.....Lucile Young
Joshua Starbuck.....Charles Smiley
Mother Starbuck.....Edith Yorke
Crook chauffeur.....Gordon Mullen

By Caroline Sanborn.

HERE'S a hearty welcome to Lloyd Hughes, one of the most recent of Ince stars. He is a good looking chap with a nice, direct manner and an unmistakable sincerity that ought to insure him success and popularity wherever he goes.

In "The False Road" he is cast for the part of the pickpocket of "Sapphire" Mike's gang. Roger Moran, whose two year sojourn in the Big House up the river has taught him many things. One of these is that the life of the crook, however luxurious it may appear on the screen, isn't the life for him. Although it means leaving behind the woman he loves, also of the upholstered underworld, he decides to go away. He betakes himself to a small town in Massachusetts, where he hires out to one Joshua Starbuck, beloved and venerated by all who know him.

His life there is pretty contented until, all unwittingly, the girl in the case arrives to turn the world topsy turvy once more. How things are straightened out and how the path to real happiness is finally found makes an interesting love story.

Enid Bennett is a sophisticated little safebreaker with a woman's heart beneath her external hardness.

The rest of the cast is well chosen, especially Edith Yorke, who takes the part of a dear little old lady of New England. And there is one scene, the outside of a country cottage on a snowy Christmas eve, that brings a lump of homesickness into your throat with its sheer beauty and sense of peace.

Did you know that the author of "The Thirtieth Piece of Silver," American's new photo novel, is Albert Payson Terhune, the son of Marion Harland, whose name is so well known throughout the country? They have collaborated in the writing of this novel.

MISS ADA FORMAN in "THE GREENWICH VILLAGE FOLLIES" STUDEBAKER PHOTO-ABBE

Miss Forman, in "The Greenwich Village Follies," dances as the Javanese dance, and is to be seen also as a dancing marionette. She hails from Pasadena, she used to live in Chicago, and she was educated at Bryn Mawr.

Eight of the Ten Best Plays of the Season Are Listed

changing the only official list when it is published. The first eight to be chosen, however, are the following:

John Brinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln."
Eugene O'Neill's "Beyond the Horizon."
James Forbers' "The Famous Mrs. Fair."
Zoe Akins' "Declasse."
St. John Ervine's "Jane Clegg."
Booth Tarkington's "Clarence."
Rachel Barton Butler's "Mamma's Affair."
George Middleton and Guy Bolton's "Adam and Eva."

There were approximately 140 new plays produced during the season, and from the remaining 132 it will be comparatively simple to complete the list of ten in time to settle all outstanding disputes. In the meantime let those who will continue the fighting. There is a large public, and several critics, insisting that Avery Hopwood's "The Gold Diggers" should be included, arguing that, whatever its literary standing, it is the truest reflection of New York's chorus girl life as it is lived in Mr. Hearst's magazines that has yet reached the stage, and certainly one of the most popular of the year's plays. With the cost of playgoing what it is, the paying public's verdict is the only one that should count in such selections, argues this public. "The Gold Diggers" began last September and is still going strong. But so, for the matter of that, did Cosmo Hamilton's "Scandal." And Langdon McCormick's "The Storm" was only a week or two behind them.

Some hold, too, that Sem Bennett's "The Jest," which John Barrymore played from the season's beginning until late in February, should be included in any list of current successes, because, although technically it belongs to the season of 1918-'19, it was not produced until April, 1919, and achieved its real success in the season of 1919-'20.

Then there are the friends of the melodramas, who are loud in their claim that at least one of this type of play should be included. If the "best" plays means anything at all, they say, it means the plays that furnished the best entertainment to the greatest number, and how is it legitimately possible to overlook Channel Pollock's "The Sign on the Door," Rita Weiman's "The Acquittal," David Belasco and George Scarborough's "The Son-Daughter," and Crane Wilbur's "The Ouija Board" if this is the test?

Also, what about the musical plays? If James Montgomery's "Irene" has as good a plot as any of the comedies, and Mrs. Cushing's "Lassie" retains all the charm, and most of the sense, of her "Kitty Mackaye," why should they be excluded merely because they are musicals? What about "Wedding Bells" and "My Lady Friends"? The first is no lighter weight than was "Mamma's Affair" and the second is a legitimate farce success. Yet only a few lists include them. Why?

We cannot settle these disputes until the proper time. The season has a fortnight still to run.

April was a month of musical comedies—and pretty poor musical comedies, most of them. But just before May came tripping up the lea, with frost in her hair, a new drama was produced. "Martinique," it is called, and it is by way of being a colorful but rather stagey melodrama of the French West Indies, the time being the late '60s, and the dialogue thickly mixed with the French patois that baffles when it does not exasperate most audiences.

Laurence Eyre, who wrote "Miss Nelly of N'Orleans," is the author of "Martinique." Josephine Victor gives a very earnest performance as the heroine, and in the cast with her are Emmet Corrigan, Ida Waterman, and Victor Coleman.

ELKS CELEBRATE MOTHERS' DAY.

At Powers' this afternoon the Elks will engage in their annual celebration of Mothers' day with music and oratory. The Blanfuss sextette, the American Lady quartet, Seymour Friedman, violinist; and Miss Grace Larue will appear and there will be addresses by Chaplain P. Rupert, exalted ruler; William J. Sinek, James L. Dillon, and Dr. Preston Bradley. Miss Larue will sing her popular "mother song," "The Young Warrior."

Apollo Club Seeks Guarantee Fund to Extend the Scope of Its Activities

By W. L. Hubbard.

An interesting letter has been received from a former member of the Apollo club now resident in New York and at present a member of the Oratorio society of that city. It will be recalled that last month the Oratorio society, under the leadership of Walter Damrosch, gave a choral festival planned and carried out on large scale and which proved successful from both an attendance as well as a musical standpoint. It is known that Charles M. Schwab was financial guarantor for this festival, having alone assured Mr. Damrosch and the directors of the Oratorio society the monetary backing needed for the carrying out of the musical scheme.

The letter from the Chicagoan above referred to says in commenting upon the festival and its success: "Mr. Schwab was willing to guarantee expenses to the extent of $100,000, and when he was informed the deficit was less than $10,000 he exclaimed, 'A great financial success!'"

It is to be borne in mind that the Oratorio society gave this week of music not as a climax to its season of regular concerts but did away entirely with all offerings during the season, concentrated attention on the programs for the festival, and worked on nothing else throughout the year. The deficit, which "was less than $10,000," represents, therefore, the losses on its season, and, while not heavy, nevertheless makes all the more admirable the achievement of our own Apollo club, which, it is understood, has been able just about to "break even" on its present series of concerts in Chicago and vicinity.

The Apollos have not been able to put anything in bank for the coming year, thanks to having had a deficit of a few hundred dollars from last season to make good, and thanks, too, to the increased cost of everything in the concert line. But that it has been able to keep head above water shows what courageous, careful work is being done by the management, and the $10,000 loss made by the Oratorio society emphasizes the value of the management's work and bespeaks the public support which should be forthcoming.

Appeals of Funds.

A few weeks ago attention was called in these columns to the needs of the Apollo club and to the worth to Chicago and its musical life of the work being done by the chorus and its splendidly qualified conductor. Endeavors now are being made to raise a sadly needed guarantee fund for the organization, and, while a certain progress is being made in the undertaking, the response is not yet what it should be. Cards have been sent out soliciting the pledging of a certain amount to be paid anually through a number of years specified by the donor, this amount to be used as a fund which shall enable the club to extend the scope of its yearly offerings and to prepare them more carefully and completely than now is possible.

The fund is not being raised in order that extravagant expenditures in the way of soloists, advertising, or nonessential details may be indulged, but it is solicited so that certain factors vital to the actual giving of the performances themselves and to their adequate preparation may be supplied.

For example some concerts now have of necessity to be given without the chorus having had any rehearsal whatever with the orchestra. This because of the high cost of the orchestra for each rehearsal. Again when rehearsal is made possible by the management—made possible because some new work is to be presented and the singing of it in public without having gone through it at least once with the orchestra is to invite positive disaster—such rehearsal often has to be fixed for a time when certain members of the chorus cannot be present, owing to many of them being employed in business. But the hour has to be fixed as it is because to secure the orchestra and the hall at an evening hour would mean greatly increased cost.

Means Much to Chicago.

It is to meet such vital needs as these, and to make possible the presenting of important new works, as well as the keeping of the standard orators in the club's repertory that such a fund is so vitally and sorely needed. What the Apollo club means to the music life of Chicago, what it has meant for all the years it has existed and during which it has given us the best in choral music—on these points there can be no divergence of opinion. It stands for the highest and best in oratorio achievement in the city and the middle west, its work is the equal artistically of that done by any other organization in the country and in fact has few peers, it works wholly for the good of music and without the least thought of financial gain, every member giving of time, talent, and energy absolutely without any return save the satisfaction of singing good music and singing it well, and thus making it a living force in the community, and it is performing a musical and cultural task which is of distinct value to the city and which were the Apollo club to pass out of existence would not be performed.

The club itself is of truest artistic worth and capability, and Mr. Wild stands today among the foremost leaders of oratorio in the United States. His thorough musicianship, his excellence as disciplinarian and as technical trainer of singers, his long routine as conductor, his full and compelling grasp of the musical content and spirit of new as well as old oratorios, have gained for him the respect and hearty coöperation not only of his singers but of the members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra as well—a body of men not easily won—and have also earned for him the trust and following of the musical public. The business management of the club, too, has now been brought into competent, careful, conscientious hands, and the mistakes which marked the past and jeopardized success happily have been done away with.

Such an organization, with such a leader and such management, is a civic asset that should not be left struggling and uncertain, say nothing of being lost. Surely the raising of a mere $10,000 or $15,000 as a stabilizing, sustaining, courage giving guarantee fund for so valuable a Chicago institution should not be difficult nor delayed. It means the removing of anxiety and strain from an organization that is a friend true and tried. It means the giving of life and strength to an unreplaceable factor in the city's music life.

Favor Home Talent.

And while considering the choral organiastions of the city, a suggestion might be offered at the present time which possibly would be of use in shaping future activitives. In several of the concerts given in the course of the season by societies made up of members or employés of certain large corporations, associations, or business houses, soloists have been engaged to sing or play a number of selections or to assist in compositions that contained obligatos. In some instances these soloists have been Chicago musicians, but in the majority of them, singers or players have been brought from the east. Would it not be well for managers of these societies to consider carefully the advisability and justice of engaging in so far as possible only Chicago talent for their concerts?

We have singers and players here in Chicago who could meet all demands made by any program local societies present. And they should be engaged It is, for example, no reflection upon the four soloists who appeared here recently with the Marshall Field Choral society to say that just as satisfactory singers could have been had for "The Messiah" right here in Chicago, and for just about one-third of the amount paid the New York quartet.

The Chamber of Commerce association did not need Titta Ruffo at a price of several thousand dollars to attract to its concert. The Mendelssohn club has no need of expensive world famed soloists in order to satisfy its patrons. The public that goes to the Mendelssohn club concerts goes solely and unreservedly to hear the Mendelssohn club sing. That public does not care who the soloist is, or even if there is no soloist whatever. The club is the thing. And the same is true of the Marshall Field society, of the Chamber of Commerce club, and of all the similar local organizations. They each have their public who cares for them and pays little attention to the solo accessories.

Under such conditions it would seem not only a gracious act, but one of positive duty for the soloists to be drawn from Chicago instead of from outside. The local musician constitutes the real music life and culture of the city and community.

If his own fellow citizens will not give him chance to be heard and to earn, who is going to do so? New York recruits its soloists largely from its own field. Time was when Chicago did not have the soloists. But now it has, and those organizations which are not dependent upon money making for their existence, but are in a certain way subsidized by eitheir their patrons or their employers, should be helpful to the extent of seeking at home the solo material needed.

Must Make Money.

The Apollo club, which is compelled to consider financial returns, often has to look to the drawing power of the outsider in order to help make ends meet, and yet it is doubtful if such soloists ever draw any large additional amount to even these concerts, for the Apollo is the Apollo, and people go to hear the chorus. But there is here a certain justification for the occasional inclusion of a great name by this organization, since it has no subsidy, no guarantee fund, and must perforce "make money." But the other organizations have no such need, and therefore no such justification.

It is interesting, too, in face of the need which the Apollo has, that it is the one organization which in the past has given countless Chicago singers that wonderful "first chance" which resulted in the making of a career. As one of Chicago's now prominent vocalists recently pointed out to the writer, it was the Apollo club gave her her opportunity, and she cited a dozen well known singers who owe their present high place to having sung first with the club. It is a record of honor for the club itself, and our other organizations should count it a privilege and honor thus to serve. Give the local musician a chance! There is no fear about his not "making good."

Announcements of musical events will be found on page 11 of this section.

MISS ESTELLE WINWOOD in "TOO MANY HUSBANDS PRINCESS

Miss Winwood is an English actress, and was seen here several years ago in a play about marriage by Jesse Lynch Williams. Others in the cast of W. Somerset Maugham's "Too Many Husbands" are Kenneth Douglas, Lawrence Grossmith, Fritz Williams, Margaret St. John, Florence Edney, Beatrice Miller, Carolyn Darling, J. H. Brewer, Marion Buckler, and Richard Gray. The story of the comedy tells of a woman who marries her husband's best friend, believing her husband to be dead, though he is not.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Women Organize to Aid Y. W. C. A. Drive for Funds

By Mme. X.

LAST month 53,000 (yes, fifty-three thousand) young women made use of the cafeteria, gymnasium, swimming pool, or classes of the Y. W. C. A. headquarters at 59 East Monroe street. No one asked them to what religious denomination they belonged. The society's hospitality was simply extended to any young working woman who needed it.

While it is glad to enroll new members the association does not require membership as an open sesame. It is this broad, generous spirit which can't fail to enlist the sympathy and support of the public in the million dollar drive for funds for the Y. W. C. A. Those selected to run this campaign were not chosen from the ranks of the association, but from that remarkable body of women whose abilities were developed and given scope in those test years which began in 1914. In that time of stress while serving in the ranks of the Liberty loan campaigns, the Red Cross, the State Councils of Defense, or other war aid societies, these women learned the value and power of team work for quick and effective action as well as for the long continued pull of routine work.

Mrs. McKinlock Leads Campaign.

Mrs. George A. McKinlock, whose Red Cross canteen with headquarters in Grant park achieved nation-wide fame, is heading this drive, though having no official connection with the Y. W. C. A., Mrs. C. C. Bullock of Highland Park being the president of the Chicago chapter.

Assisting the former are Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, Mrs. Morris Johnston, Mrs. Clifford Barnes, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Emma F. Rogers, Mrs. N. W. Campbell, Mrs. H. H. Shearson, Mrs. Frederic Upham, Mrs Irving L. Stern, Mrs. James L. Houghteling, Mrs. Hermon Butler, and Miss Grace Dixon, while that most popular of social leaders, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, is head of the publicity bureau.

Like the Russian soviet system, the workers in this drive and their fields of activity are being divided into different trade zones. The women have organized a system of advisory councils with John W. O'Leary at the head. There will be a council of bankers, a council of manufacturers, a council of department store heads, a council of railroad managers, a council of lawyers, and so on, and the women will garner in the various fields under the guidance of these advisers, thereby covering a wide territory. Success to their efforts!

Buys Old Landmark.

A recent purchase by the Y. W. C. A. deserves especial mention here because of its connection with old Chicago. The association has bought the Walton apartments, 878 North Clark street, a building which has long been a conspicuous landmark in that district. It is one of the first, if not actually the first, apartment buildings erected in Chicago, having been put up in 1880.

The architect was Francis Meredith Whitehouse, a well known man in his profession as well as being a member of one of Chicago's oldest and most eminent families. His father was Bishop Whitehouse, a famous divine in his day. There are undoubtedly people in Chicago today who remember the stately bishop as, in full canonicals, he walked from his home in Washington boulevard to the Episcopal cathedral, preceded by an Indian boy in—what do they call a choir boy's gown or frock?—carrying the Bible, or prayer book, on a cushion.

Well, to return to the Walton flats, as they've always been called: they were a nine days' wonder in their day and at various times housed many well known families—people conspicuous in the seventies and eighties, like the Fays, the Kellys, the "Bob" Joneses—whose names have now faded off the town's social roster.

Tenant Forty Years.

There is only one of the original tenants still living in the building, Mrs. Newton Lull, and her sister-in-law, Miss Lull. They moved in before the workmen moved out and for the forty intervening years, without intermission, have occupied the same apartment.

From their windows they have seen many changes. The street cars which run by their door have changed from horse cars to cable and from cable to electric. They saw the near-by Mahlon D. Ogden house, the only building on the north side to survive the great fire of 1871, torn down and replaced by the big Newberry library. In that same period the Union club, on an adjacent corner arose, flourished—with at one time an almost unholy light—and then died the death. Whereupon the Salvation Army moved into the club's brown stone abode and made it into a home for working girls.

This and many other changes have these two residents of the Walton flats seen, and now they must "take up their beds and walk," for the Y. W. C. A. is going to turn the building into a shelter for 200 girls, with a cafeteria on the first floor, a "lounge" on the second floor, a tennis court to the south, and a swimming pool to the west.

Statistics show that the Twenty-first ward harbors more delinquent girls than any other ward. Such an enterprise as this cannot fail to remedy this unfortunate state of affairs.

Must Seek New Quarters.

Among the long time tenants who will be turned out of the building in the course of the coming year and obliged to seek new quarters are the two well intrenched, invincible (or invisible) bachelors, Robert Forsyth and Charles E. Deane, who have for thirty years been occupying adjacent apartments, with a sort of joint housekeeping arrangement, thereby successfully defying a world rather addicted to matrimony. Their quiet little stag dinners and card parties have made many a benedick chafe under the matrimonial yoke.

Other residents who wish that the Y. W. C. A. had never been born are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McClelland and their daughter, Miss Marion McClelland; Mrs. John Van Alstyne Weaver and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Chamberlin, Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Sanborn and the Misses Sanborn, Mme. Descoubés, Father Stoskopf of the Church of the Ascension, William Holbrook, and W. B. Janney. The last two have been housekeeping mates for the last ten years, since the demise of the Union club turned them out of doors.

Would Buy Gunther Collection.

Ten days ago Mrs. George A. Carpenter called the first of a series of meetings of women interested in raising money to make the Gunther collection a part of the Chicago Historical society's interesting museum. About twenty representative women gathered in the charming, spacious drawing room of her house, on the corner of Dearborn avenue and Walton place.

Mrs. Carpenter is one of the few Chicago women who lives in the house in which she spent her childhood and youth and from which she was married. The old Isham homestead is as much of a landmark as the nearby Walton flats mentioned above, and its high-ceilinged, generously proportioned rooms speak of quite another era than today.

There came to the meeting Mrs. F. C. Farwell, Mrs. Frank Stout, Mrs. William Burry, Mrs. Carter H. Harrison, Mrs. William O. Goodman, Mrs. Josiah McRoberts, Mrs. V. K. Spicer, Mrs. William Monroe, Miss Harriet Monroe, Miss Mary Newberry, and many others.

Mrs. Carpenter and Miss McIlvaine, the historical society's able secretary, described the scope and treasures of the Gunther collection and detailed their plan to aid the trustees of the society in the quest for the $150,000 needed to acquire what the late owner is said to have spent a million and a half in collecting.

Shown at Art Institute.

You can soon have a preliminary view of some of these treasures by visiting the Art Institute, where the choicest and most available of them will be on view from May 11 to June 15, a room having been dedicated to this purpose.

The collection has a great deal more than local interest. It includes such things as the table on which the articles of surrender were signed by Grant and Lee in the Appomattox courthouse; a paper from the British government giving William Penn a grant of land; a report from Gen. Dearborn to President Harrison; a letter from Martha Washington (a great rarity, as the lady was not addicted to letter-writing); Benedict Arnold's order passing Maj. André through the American lines; the tall, light gray beaver hat that Lincoln used to wear.

One thing in the collection will probably not be exhibited. It is a scurrilous poster gotten out seventy years or so ago attacking the public and private characters of some of the men who were the leading citizens of that day. Be sure, however, to visit this exhibit. It will be worth your while.

Colonial Dames to Aid.

The Chicago chapter of the Colonial Dames, of which Mrs. Paul Blatchford is president, is going to help in this fund raising campaign. Mrs. Irving Osborne of Evanston and Mrs. Henry W. Austin of Oak Park will organize a drive in their districts. Others actively interested in assisting Mrs. Carpenter, besides those already mentioned, are Mrs. Samuel Insull, Mrs. Lessing Rosenthal and Mrs. Julius Rosenwald. Already one prominent and generous Chicagoan has come forward with a gift of $5,000 to help the fund.

The value of such an institution as the Chicago Historical society is incalculable as a factor in inspiring and strengthening that sense of patriotism we are all so eager to develop. It ought not to be housed in an old, outworn building, on a shabby side street. It deserves a conspicuous position, in capacious quarters, on an accessible and much traveled highway.

Addresses College Fraternities.

If six years ago women who were then occupied with purely domestic cares could have had a glimpse of the road they would soon travel, they would probably have said: "That's not possible!" For instance, if Mrs. Walter Brewster had been told that she would be the guest of the University of Illinois in April, 1920, and address an audience of over a thousand people in the college auditorium, her rather overwhelming subject being "How to Promote a Better Understanding and Advancement of American Ideals"—well, I doubt if she would have believed it. Yet this she did on April 29, the occasion being the meeting of the Pan-Hellenic association—an organization composed of all college fraternities and sororities in the country.

Here is the first of three addresses, the other two on the same subject will be delivered by Dean West of Princeton and Henry Seidel Canby of Yale—august company for so young, "petite," pretty, and altogether charming a person as Mrs. Brewster.

But her work at the head of the Chicago Committee for the Fatherless Children of France, and as editor of the Garden Magazine, have given her a confidence in herself and so trained her thought and its expression that she can take her place with that growing cohort of expert women public speakers which is going to be increasingly in evidence in public and semi-public life. Women, when they have something to say, something in which they believe and are deeply interested, make capital speakers. They excel men in clearness and brevity—perhaps because they don't yearn to achieve fame as orators or spellbinders.

Weds Frederick Peabody.

Apropos of oratorically gifted women, that silver tongued spellbinder, Miss Kathleen Burke, who came to this country during the war and charmed us all whether she was talking for the Scottish Women's War hospitals or for the American Red Cross, recently married Frederick F. Peabody of Santa Barbara, Cal., formerly of Chicago, and thereby became the mistress of one of the largest, most beautiful houses in that region of big and beautiful mansions. It is a regular Italian palace and crowns the top of what might well be one of those abrupt, picturesque Umbrian hills.

Gay, clever, attractive in looks and manner, she is sure to make a place for herself in that genial, cheerful community where every one worships, not god or mammon, but Climate (with a big C).

Exhibits French Art.

The Arts club is emphasizing its spring season by opening tomorrow with an afternoon reception an unusually large and extensive exhibit of French modern art, a collection of paintings, sculptures, etchings, and applied art especially organized by the French ministry of public instruction and fine arts to promote the good understanding and friendly relations between our two nations. The French artistic society, the Triennale, has cooperated in the selection of this exhibit. Many names among the exhibitors will be new to you and me—they're so modern—though we met Renoir, Boutet de Monvel, Cottet, Besnard, Matisse, and Chabas in the futurist exhibit of half a dozen years ago.

Receiving at the tea are the Mmes. George Higginson Jr., George McKinlock, Julian Mason, Howard Linn, Charles E. Brown, Milan Hulbert, and Morris Townley. Presiding at the tea table will be the Mmes. Suzor Schoell, George William Eggers, Flora Schoenfeld, and Russell Patterson. Prof. Schoell will give a brief analysis of the exhibit.

The dramatic committee of the club will present a Russian program there on Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Two short farces by Anton Tchekoff will be acted, "The Proposal" and "The Bear." Mrs. Howard Linn, Arthur Bissell, and John D. Black act the first piece, while the second is in the hands of Mrs. John Root, William Z. Nourse, and George F. Wolff. Miss Edna Baum interprets Russian dance music, while Eugene Burton will sing Russian folksongs, accompanied by John Palmer.

A Shoe You Love to Wear

Cantilever Shoes provide such perfect comfort, it is a pleasure to don them in the morning—and to wear them all day.

If you suffer from being on your feet, if walking has become a bugbear, if night finds you in a hurry to change to easy slippers—make your next pair of shoes Cantilever Shoes. You will be delighted with the comfort, the relief from foot troubles, that they bring you.

There is room for the toes.

The last, patterned from the outline of the foot, has a natural inner-sole line. This, combined with the fact that the Cantilever heel is slightly higher on the inside than on the outside, permits the foot to point straight ahead—a natural position which gives more comfort and greater endurance in walking and standing.

In Cantilever Shoes, there is no sensation of pressure or binding on any part of the foot. Lacing them draws up the flexible shank of the shoe to support the arch of the foot, but the very flexibility of the shank permits the greatest freedom in walking.

This oxford is made in Black kid, Havana brown, tan calf and white Egyptian canvas.

Experts will take pressure in conscientiously fitting you. Come in and try on a pair of the new Cantilever Shoes for Spring. They are good looking, made of the finest kidskin, on trim lines.

Made by "Edwin C. Burt." Widths from AAAAA to EE.

Meeting Planned to Celebrate Florence Nightingale's Birth

THE centennial of the birth of Florence Nightingale, the Englishwoman who revolutionized nursing methods through her heroic work during the Crimean war, and who stands as the pioneer in the nursing profession, is to be celebrated in Chicago on Wednesday to commemorate her birthday.

Miss Adelaide Walsh of the Children's Memorial hospital is in charge of arrangements for the centennial observance to be held in the evening at Orchestra hall, when there will be an open massmeeting, with singing by the Florence Nightingale chorus under the direction of Herbert E. Hyde and speaking by those who will tell of her work and the nursing standards set by her.

The entire celebration, which is a part of an international observance of the day, will be for the purpose of projecting on the public mind the growth of the nursing profession as a result of Florence Nightingale's ideals and their accomplishment. It was she who conceived the idea of having regular training in nursing for women, with a definite educational standard. Women who studied in Florence Nightingale's hospital in London came to the United States four and five decades ago and opened training courses in hospitals of Boston and New York. Women who took nurses' training from these students of Florence Nightingale came to Chicago and started the Illinois School for Nurses, which has graduated many of the nurses of the west.

Some of the points that will be emphasized at the massmeeting on Wednesday will be the fact of the progress made in the nursing profession since Nightingale times, the remarkable improvement in hospital administration, the advance in educational standards of nurses' training schools, and the extraordinary development of the public health nursing movement.

The Chicago celebration is under the direction of the Illinois State League for Nursing Education, affiliating with the Illinois State Association of Graduate Nurses. Mrs. Ira Couch Wood, long connected with the Illinois Training School for Nurses and director of the Elizabeth McCormick memorial fund, will preside at the meeting, the Rev. Charles B. Moulinier, president of the Catholic Hospital Association of the United States and Canada, will speak, and Theodore Soares of the University of Chicago will give the address of the evening, and the Rev. John Timothy Stone and the Rev. Emil G. Hirsch will offer prayers. The presidents of the women's boards of some of the hospitals of the city are among the members of the committee of arrangements for the centennial.

Dillingham of Honolulu is the signal for much entertaining. As Miss Louise Gaylord she was one of Chicago's real belles a decade ago. She has spent most of her married life in Hawaii, where she is now building what is said to be one of the loveliest houses on the island. It is designed by David Adler and is—is it Italian or Spanish? At any rate, it is peculiarly adapted to let in views and soft breezes and keep out heat.

Miss Elsie McCormick is the latest Chicagoan to join the band of European travelers. She leaves here next Sunday for Boston. Later she will meet Miss Mary Nixon in New York and they will sail for Genoa. Miss McCormick will spend some months in northern Italy and then join her brother, Robert Hall McCormick, in Switzerland. People go to Europe just as if all the Lugubrious Blues weren't prophesying the end of all things over there!

ORANGE BLOSSOM WEDDING RINGS

Be sure to see the large colored paintings of "Brides of Foreign Climes" now displayed in one of our State Street windows, featuring "Orange Blossom" Wedding Rings.

YOUR GREAT-GRANDFATHER—

—also your Grandfather and Father, more than likely, bought his Wedding Ring of the House of Peacock. For eighty-three years it has kept pace with Chicago's growth and the Jewelry wants of its people. In no specialty is this more apparent than in Wedding Rings. No worthy style is too modest, nor too elegant, to find its place in the "Peacock" stock. Here you can see them all—from the plain gold bands to the exquisite bands of platinum and diamonds.

BRIDES OF FOREIGN CLIMES

COOK'S TRAVEL SERVICE

The Foremost in Travel

Traveling on one's own initiative and by one's own unaided efforts is much like setting out alone and on foot to see the world. The traveler will not get very far, nor will he enjoy very much comfort in the process.

Europe

In this year of unusual conditions abroad patrons of Thos. Cook & Son will find that every provision has been made for their comfort and enjoyment. Many tours have been carefully planned for short and long stays abroad. Those visiting France and Belgium will find new Cook's offices established at Lille, Amiens, Arras, Verdun, Rheims, Chateau Thierry and St. Menehould, and ex-service men of the U. S. Army are engaged to act as guides and lecturers. Departures throughout May, June, July and August.

Saguenay River

Fourteen wonderful vacation days, including six-day cruises by exclusively reserved steamers from Montreal to the St. Lawrence and Saguenay Rivers, with visits to Niagara Falls, Toronto, Thousand Islands, Ausable Chasm, Lakes Champlain and George, Saratoga and the Hudson River. Leave Chicago July 17th and 31st, August 14th and 28th.

California

A visit to the Grand Canyon, the garden spots of Southern California, the majestic Yosemite Valley, Yellowstone Park, San Francisco, with return through the Colorado Rockies. Departures June 2 and later.

National Parks and Alaska

Taking in the glorious country that has been set aside for all time as the people's playground and up through our northwest possessions. Summer tours leaving during June, July and August.

Japan

A short summer tour leaves the Pacific Coast June 26th. The sort of tour that you will enjoy not only in the present, but in looking back upon throughout a lifetime.

Ask for booklet describing any of these carefully planned tours, or tell us of your own tentative plans, that we may develop them for you and offer the benefits of our unique experience.

Slams of Life
By J. P. McEVOY

TO THE WEATHER MAN.
(Earnestly inscribed to Prof. Cox.)

Whereas—a nifty opener, eh?—
I had my devil-wagon, say
You pulled the plug from all your vats,
Precipitating dogs and cats,
And weeks and weeks you bounced the rain
From hill to hill and plain to plain,
Until my craw was full of chills
And I grew web feet, and fins and gills,
And finally sent with many a cuss
To yonder shop, my auto bus.

And did your gosh-dang raining stop,
When once my car was in the shop?
And is there any trace of doubt
The sunshine then did shimmy out:
To question One—"Well, I'll say so!"
To Two—"Unqualifiedly No!"
Until my bus was in duress
Your weather was an awful mess,
And did you fix it since, old kid?
I'll tell the universe you did.

Along the roads the birdies sing,
The grass is green, 'n ever'thing,
The little crocus croak all day
A-luring me to drive their way;
While in the shop my bus must stick—
It makes me sick, it makes me sick,
And when again I get my cart
I bet the rain will break my heart,
I'm not the kind to peddle knocks,
But you're all wet, Professor Cox.

Relief for Your Feet

Callouses, run-over heels, weak or fallen arches, swellings, aches, and other foot troubles, are needless afflictions.

On Account of the Unusual Demand for Foot-Relief the Visiting Foot Experts Will Be Here Another Week.

Wizard
System of Foot Correction

Do your feet hurt, ache, or tire out easily? Is it hard for you to get fitted comfortably in the style of shoes you like to wear. The remedy is simple.

Monday and Every Day This Week are demonstration days, at our store, of the wonderful Wizard way to end foot troubles. We use the Wizard System regularly to relieve foot-sufferers. Now a visiting expert from Wizard Headquarters is with us for these few days. He will advise you about your feet without charge.

The Wizard method is entirely different from any other. Soft leather inserts are individually adjusted in overlapping pockets, to restore your feet to normal condition. All strain and undue pressure cease, because this method removes the cause of the trouble.

Come see how delightfully comfortable the Wizard System will make your feet. Get immediate, complete, and lasting foot-relief!

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Presbyterian Home to Get Offerings of Mother's Day

By the Rev. Frederick L. Gratiot

Mother's day has been appropriately set apart by the board of directors of the Presbyterian home for special offerings towards the current expenses of the home. The home is for the aged, the convalescent, and for dependent children. A fund of $800,000 is being raised for the new buildings planned for the twenty-five acre plot in Evanstons. The temporary location of the home is in Highland Park. The building is inadequate, is overcrowded, and many worthy and needy applicants for admittance are turned away almost daily.

The notice sent out by the board calls attention to the state of the building fund; $425,000 in cash and pledges is in hand. An appeal is made to those who have not as yet sent in their subscription. Until more money is in hand the building operations cannot begin. The lease on the building in Highland Park expires June 1 and the building is wanted for other purposes.

The statement of the board concerning the Mother's day offering reads.

"On Mother's day the presbytery of Chicago recommends its churches to devote their offerings to the current expenses of the home—food, service, fuel, etc. The sum of $12,000 is asked for this year. It will scarcely be enough because prices are so high.

"Sustaining members of the home pay $100 per year. Annual members, $20 and $10; subscribing members, $5; auxiliary members, $2 and $1.

"The sun porch on the second floor of the east wing of the proposed building is to be paid for by the Sabbath schools of the presbytery. The cost will be $3,000. Toward this ten schools have given $1,973.17, leaving $1,026.83 to be raised."

The notice is signed by the Rev. W. P. P. Bryan, president of the board; Frank R. Eliot, treasurer, and Charles K. Osborne, office director. Checks and pledges may be sent to the treasurer, care of the executive offices of the Presbyterian home, room 1803, 67 North State street.

The southern Baptists will hold their national convention in Washington, D. C., this year. They will meet in Liberty hut, the large tabernacle used for the Billy Sunday meetings. The convention will be held this week from May 12 to 17.

THE REV. ARTHUR ROYAL GAY

The Rev. Arthur R. Gay is the new pastor of the Auburn Park Federated church and conducted his first service there last Sunday. He comes from the Hampton Roads training station, where he has been serving as chaplain. Mr. Gay received his A. M. degree from the University of Chicago divinity school. His seminary work was interrupted by the war, when he entered the navy in October, 1917, where he has served continually since. The Federated church is a union of the Auburn Park Baptist and Union Congregational churches, and services are held in the edifice at Seventy-seventh street and Normal avenue.

The Girls' Friendly society of the Episcopal church will have its annual meeting at St. James' church, Cass and Huron streets, next Thursday evening. The union mission box will be exhibited and a pageant-tableau, "America in the Making," will be given. It represents the history of America from the landing of the pilgrims, 300 years ago, to the present. A feature will be the tableau about the great war.

The northeastern deanery will meet tomorrow at Grace church, Hinsdale. The Rev. Jesse H. Dennis of Holy Apostles' church will speak on "Missionary Work in the West" in the morning. In the afternoon a paper on "Jewish Parallels to the Miracles of Our Lord" will be read by the Rev. Frederick C. Grant.

Where Comfort, Style and Service Rule Supreme

Dr. Pinkston's Triple Combination Last Shoes for Every Foot and for All Occasions

Sizes Two to Twelve, Widths Six A Narrow to Triple E Wide

Ready-to-Wear Combination Last Oxford

Cannot slip at Heel

Never before has any one made an oxford or pump that positively would not slip at the heel or bulge at the side. Foot troubles too numerous to mention are caused by shoes being too large in the heel and instep.

Dr. Pinkston's combination last shoes are better than the standard shoes because they are TWO WIDTHS NARROWER IN THE HEEL, ONE WIDTH NARROWER IN THE ARCH, AND TWO WIDTHS WIDER THROUGH THE BALL OF THE FOOT than any shoe that has ever been made. The narrow heel PREVENTS THE SHOE FROM SLIPPING UP AND DOWN. The narrow instep KEEPS THE FOOT FROM SLIDING FORWARD. The broad ball gives PERFECT FREEDOM OF THE TOES. The entire comfort and grace of walking depend entirely upon the proper articulation of the ball of the foot.

Dr. Pinkston's Made-to-Measure Shoes

PREVENT, RELIEVE AND CURE FOOT TROUBLES. There are twenty-six bones in the human foot which must be properly supported. Dr. Pinkston examines the foot and knows just where to place the support just as the individual foot requires.

Dr. Pinkston makes a special last—a reproduction of your foot—and then builds the shoe over that last, thereby assuring perfect comfort and style. You can make your selections from the finest imported leathers in the world, of vegetable tannage, which prevents the burning sensation caused by acid tanned leather.

The fundamental principle of fitting and making shoes is to know the anatomy of the feet—to know just what bone is misplaced; what blood vessel is impeded and what nerve is impinged—then to know how to distribute the weight of the body equally from heel to ball and to support the weak places in a way to strengthen them. This is what Dr. Pinkston POSITIVELY DOES.

Men's Made-to-Measure Shoe

This Last Is a Reproduction of the Foot

Made-to-Measure 5-inch Extension Shoe

DR. PINKSTON

is giving special attention to improved extension shoes for short limbs, broken arches, corns, bunions, foot and bunion amputation—club feet and all abnormal foot requirements.

Plans for Ravinia's Opera Season; the Week in Music

THE first official announcements concerning grand opera next summer at Ravinia park have been received. The season will open June 26 and continue for ten weeks. Artists of country-wide fame have been engaged and performances better than ever before are promised. Louis Eckstein issues the following statement:

"It is with great pleasure and no little pride that I am able to announce my sincere belief that the season of opera at Ravinia this summer will mark a distinct advance over anything presented there in any past season. Ravinia has long since passed the experimental stage. It is here to stay. It has become a definite feature, not to say factor, in the musical life of Chicago.

"An item of peculiar interest to us at this time regards the baritone, Antonio Scotti. With the possible exception of a short period in midsummer, Mr. Scotti will be at Ravinia throughout the entire season of ten weeks and three days, and will sing the whole repertoire of rôles that have made him, next to Caruso, the best known man of the Metropolitan.

"Scotti will open the season June 26, appearing as Scarpia in 'Tosca.' Following this he will be heard as Chim-Fang in 'L'Oracolo,' Tonio in 'Pagliacci,' Marcello in 'Boheme,' Belcore in 'L'Elisir d'Amore,' and possibly Sulpizio in the 'Daughter of the Regiment.'

"The Tosca in the opening performance will be Miss Florence Easton. There is pleasure in announcing her return because of the high place she made for herself last year and her success at the Metropolitan this winter.

"The second night will be brilliant, for Charles Hackett, one of the finest American tenors of this or any other generation, will appear as the Chevalier des Grieux in Massenet's "Manon," and Edith Mason will sing the title rôle. Miss Mason is returning from Paris for the Ravinia season. The third member of the cast will be Leon Rothier, in the rôle of the elder Des Grieux.

"We shall have the two Metropolitan conductors that we have had for a number of years, Gennaro Papi and Richard Hageman.

"The list of operas this season will be considerably longer than it has been before. In order to make this possible, the Friday nights of the summer will be changed from concert to operatic performances. A full list of the artists and the repertoire will be ready for announcement shortly."

The Illinois Music Teachers' association will hold its annual meeting this week in Springfield. The convention will last from Tuesday afternoon at 2, when, following the usual addresses of welcome, a demonstration of work being done in public school music will be given, until Friday night, when the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra gives its second concert. Tuesday at 3 a lecture recital on Bird Music will be offered by W. B. Old, and in the evening at 8 a concert will enlist the services of the freshman chorus of the Springfield High school and the high school orchestra. Wednesday forenoon there will be lectures by Edna Sollitt, Mary Phillips, and J. Lawrence Erb; in the afternoon at 2:30 a concert will enlist the talents of Gustaf Holmquist, bass; Edna Van Haar, contralto; Clarence Eldam, pianist, and Ebba Sunderstrom, violinist; and in the evening another concert will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Stultz, soprano and baritone; Carol Robinson, pianist; Hans Hess, cellist, and John B. Miller, tenor. Thursday morning papers will be read by George Nelson Holt, Elias Bredin, and Maurice Rosenfeld; at 1:15 William White will lecture; at 2:30 a concert will be offered by Sibley MacDermid, soprano; Allen Spencer, pianist, and Amy Neill, violinist, and at 8:15 Marjorie Maxwell, soprano, Arne Oldberg, pianist, and Carl Beecher, pianist, will be heard in concert. Friday morning will be devoted to talks by W. D. Armstrong, E. W. Morphy, and W. L. Hubbard, and at 2:30 and again at 8:15 the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra will give concerts with Emma Noe, soprano; Harriet McConnell, contralto; George Rasely, tenor, and Rudolph Reuter, pianist, as soloists.

MISS ANNA BURMEISTER
Miss Anna Burmeister, soprano, will give a song recital in Kimball hall next Tuesday evening.

Ella Dahl Rich and Agnes Hope Pillsbury will give their postponed two piano recitals in Kimball hall this afternoon. The selections listed for presentation are a Handel concerto; "The Egyptian Maiden," by Rameau; a capriccio, by Scarlatti, numbers 3, 5, and 6 of the Mendelssohn's "Songs Without Words"; an arabesque and the "Golliwogg's Cake Walk," by Debussy; a pastorale by Franck; Bizet's "Menuet de l'Arlesienne" Grieg's "March of the Dwarfs"; a fantasy by Sears; a romance waltz by Arensky, and the John McCormack, assisted by Lauri Kennedy, cellist, and Edwin Schneider, accompanist, will be heard in concert this afternoon in the Auditorium. This will be the last appearance of the admired Irish tenor for two years, he being now on his way westward to commence a tour which will take him around the world.

Anna Burmeister, soprano, will give a song recital in Kimball hall next Tuesday evening. Her program, commencing with a Bach aria from the St. Matthew's Passion, Beethoven's "With a Painted Ribbon," and the "Batti, Batti" from "Don Giovanni," includes two groups of French songs, a group of Russian, and a group of six American, three of which are still in manuscript.

Irene Authier, soprano, and Elfriede Herz, contralto, will give the program in the Young American Artist Series in Recital hall, Fine Arts building, next Thursday night, this being the last of the present series.

The Florence Nightingale chorus, made up of ninety nurses, trained under the direction of John W. Norton, will sing a number of part songs on the program of the Florence Nightingale centennial celebration next Wednesday evening in Orchestra hall. Orpha Kendall Holstman, soprano, will be soloist.

The Chicago Operatic Quartet, composed of Mae Graves Atkins, soprano; Rose Lutiger Gannon, contralto; John B. Miller, tenor, and G. Magnus Schutz, bass, assisted by Edgar Nelson, pianist, and Amy Neill, violinist, will give a concert in Kimball hall Wednesday evening, May 19.

The twenty-seventh annual May Festival concert of the Chicago and Cook County Sunday School association will be held in the Auditorium Tuesday evening, May 18. The chorus numbers 1,000 women's voices.

Jan Chipusso, the Dutch pianist who has won favor in Europe and in the east, will play in Chicago for the first time next Sunday afternoon in Kimball hall.

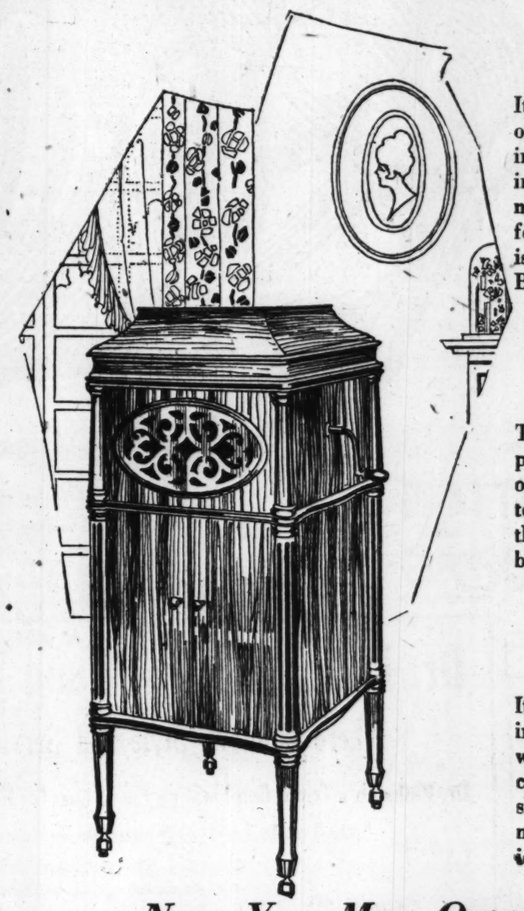
Out of the East to the West Comes

THE BEACON PHONOGRAPH

A Musical Masterpiece

FROM the center of Colonial Craftsmanship comes this wonderful instrument. Designed and made by Master New England Craftsmen. To those who appreciate the distinctive beauty and simplicity which spurred our Colonial Forefathers to great accomplishment in woodcraft this announcement must give a thrill of satisfaction.



The Beacon Phonograph Is Different

It embodies features hitherto found in no other reproducing machine—features, for instance, that eradicate finally and convincingly the "scratching" common to other machines. This wonderful "Non-Scratch" feature, without the loss of an iota of tone, is the marvel to all who own or distribute Beacon Phonographs.

The Beacon's Tone Is Perfect

The amplifier is constructed on scientific principles which bring out a great volume of sound without sacrificing sweetness of tone. The "non-scratch feature" adds to the tonal beauty. The tone volume may be controlled as desired.

The Beacon Satisfies the Sense of Beauty

Its design is truly Colonial—graceful and imposing. The finish is quietly rich. The workmanship such that no flaw or fault can be discovered by the most critical. In short, the Beacon Triplex Cabinet is harmoniously perfect with the perfect Beacon idea.

Now You May Own the Phonograph You Have Always Wanted

A machine that will reproduce the world's finest music in all the original color and fervor of the original artists without marring its lovely tone with disturbing "scratching"—a machine that is a beautiful exponent of New England cabinet making—ready to fulfill its mission in any home. If you wish to possess the perfect reproducing machine

Go to Your Dealer and Hear the Beacon Today

If your dealer does not happen to represent the Beacon, phone or write us and we will give you the name of our nearest dealer to you. We are anxious that you should hear the Beacon at your dealer's, as we know it will satisfy your keenest musical desires.

An Unusual Opportunity for Dealers

Beacon Phonograph dealers in the East are well pleased with the Beacon Phonograph and their association with the Beacon Company. The merits of the Beacon stamp it as a highly desirable proposition. It offers attractive possibilities to those of ample financial standing, whether they are now engaged in the phonograph business or not. Business statistics show that phonograph shops have been very remunerative besides being a congenial business.

We still have a few desirable openings for dealers in Chicago and in the Middle West and invite investigation of our proposition. Our intensive advertising campaign, designed to make the Beacon as well known in the West as it is in the East, will reach every worth-while prospect and will be conducted in a manner which will be directly beneficial to dealers.

If you wish to associate yourself with the sale of Beacons you must act without delay. A phone call or letter will bring a representative to talk over arrangements. Beacon territory is being taken up so rapidly by reputable dealers who see immense possibilities in representing the Beacon Company that we suggest that you act immediately.

GASOLINE ALLEY—LEAVE IT TO BILL!

Lid Clamped Upon Truck Overloads to Save Paving

Wholesale Arrests for Speed and Greed to Solve Problem

BY J. L. JENKINS.

HEROIC measures, ordered by the county highway authorities, have saved some 200 miles of paved roads from destruction by overloaded motor trucks, but not before an estimated $50,000 worth of damage has resulted on several of the best suburban boulevards from this cause.

In and about Riverside, Lyons, and the heavily traveled roads thereabouts, scores of arrests have been made in the last ten days by special highway guards ordered to patrol the paved stretches and enforce the state law as the only alternative of closing the roads to truck traffic. Fines ranging from $2 to $100 have been assessed in each case and both county agents and truck manufacturers and dealers have pledged cooperation in the general campaign against the public and private losses due directly to overloading.

County Supt. of Highways George Dunlap found himself face to face with a serious problem soon after the strike of switchmen and general tieup in rail transportation swung the heavy duty truck to the front in the Chicago territory. Reports from all parts of the county showed macadam, asphalt, brick, and even some of the newest concrete roads going to pieces under the pounding of trucks loaded sometimes to three times normal capacity and running without regard to carefully regulated truck speed laws. He chose strict enforcement of the law against violators rather than general anti-truck discrimination through the closing of his roads to heavy traffic.

This week motor guards will patrol every paved highway and a few of the more important gravel roads to see that loading and speed regulations are carried out to the letter. The state law allows trucks of 5,000 pounds capacity and less a speed limit of twenty-five miles an hour if equipped with pneumatic tires and twenty miles if equipped with solid rubber. Trucks with a normal gross load of more than 100 pounds and not more than 12,000 may run twenty miles an hour if pneumatic tired and fifteen on solid tires. Trucks of more than 15,000 capacity will be held to twelve miles an hour, no matter how they are equipped as to tires, and every truck operating in the county will be required to carry the regulation load tag showing its gross weight and certifying that it has been loaded properly.

The big truck manufacturers are cooperating with the drive by issuing pamphlets showing that overloading hits the truck owner himself, first through shortening the life and usefulness of the truck, in addition to increasing the costs of highway maintenance.

Blue Books Appear.

The 1920 Automobile Blue Books, in thirteen complete volumes, have made their appearance in the Chicago motor world following the greatest year of highway development on record. Even a casual inspection of this year's volumes shows the extent of the general good roads contagion. There are hundreds of new maps and road logs in the collection. The mileage of good grade, tourable roads is now well beyond the half million mark, and hardly a town or village of any size in the country has failed to register its share of scenic or historic interest. The annual editions carry, as usual, complete directions for practically every American tour.

MY FUNNIEST MOTORING EXPERIENCE

Every one who has taken the road in a motor car has some story to tell. What is your best one? The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published in "My Funniest Motoring Experience." Write as briefly as possible, on one side of the paper only, and address Funniest Motoring Experience, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

Never Again.

The rain was falling in torrents and the road was rapidly becoming a sea of mud. As it was getting dark, we were driving fast to reach a good road when something darted from the ditch directly in front of the car. The driver swung his wheel around, skidded, and we landed in the ditch.

The "something" said "me-ow."

After plodding a mile through the mud to get aid for a broken wheel, we swore never again to turn out suddenly on a slippery road, especially for a black cat! P. J. L.

Wanted Company.

Heavy spring rains had overflowed the road and I was half way through the deepest bog when my "fliv" started to misfire. Then the engine died, and I had to crawl over the fender to crank up. Just as I turned the motor over another backfire sent me sprawling into the deep mud and water. I came up at last, and the first quarter turn sent the motor spinning perfectly. All that "fliv" wanted was company down in the flooded road, for we went through without a balk after my wetting. A. McA.

Shades of Raleigh!

Cars were so closely packed on the Rush street bridge and its approaches that I worked a full ten minutes in reaching the loop side. Then, just as I heaved a sigh of relief and started ahead a tall man deliberately stepped directly in front of me. Down he went, and the usual crowd began to gather as the traffic policeman, who had seen the whole affair, hurried over to give first aid.

I could see myself lodged in a dark cell until, to the surprise of every one concerned, the tall man scrambled to his feet, brushed his clothes and lifted his hat.

"Excuse me, lady," he grinned, "for bumping into you!" L. S.

Capital and Labor.

I was working in a garage for a few days when an expensive car drew up in front and a well dressed man, whom I thought to be the owner, entered the office. Picturing a big tip, I got busy and polished up the car, cleaned the windows, put water in the tank and more air in the tires. "Fine," said the sporty looking driver when he came out; "the boss told me to do all that when I dropped him at his office!" J. J. S.

The Long Trail.

Chicago's longest motor tour will begin June 1, when ten adventurers of the road under command of Frank Peck and Frank Pehphrey, 1220 Belmont avenue, hit the trail in two Ford trucks for Fairbanks, Alaska, where they expect to work government claims. The Chicago men plan to take the Yellowstone Trail all the way to Seattle and then turn north to Prince Rupert, and there decide upon the best route into Alaska. Both trucks will carry complete camping equipment.

Reinstate Whistles.

Motorists traveling in the vicinity of Sheridan road and Clarendon avenue will be glad to learn that the traffic officer stationed there has again resumed the use of the whistle. The officers had been ordered to discontinue using the whistle, but this measure brought about a protest from the Chicago Motor club; and the commissioners of Lincoln park, realizing the justness of the club's appeal, ordered the former method of signaling traffic to be used.

Clergymen Asked to Lend Aid in Roads Campaign

ISSUING a call for the observance of Good Roads Sunday, May 16, in connection with "National Ship by Truck-Good Roads week," May 17-22, the committee in charge of arrangements has addressed a letter to clergymen of every denomination inviting their attention to the "relation between good roads and right living and good roads and Christian progress."

Stressing the point that the early construction of better highways will prove one of the quickest means of facilitating production, the call says:

"The purpose is to fix in the heart of citizens the conviction that the next step to be taken for the welfare of the community, the nation, and the world is immediately to improve the highways and to inaugurate measures whereby every mile of roadbed in the United States may be hard surfaced.

"City dwellers cannot continue to pay the present prices of foodstuffs. A national factor in these excessive costs is the haul from the farm to the town over primitive roads. The human family cannot live on the present annual supply. If production is to be increased, the farmer's life must be made attractive. Nothing will produce this result as surely as modern highways."

National Good Roads Sunday, observed by pastors and congregations in churches throughout the country May 16, is only one of the methods employed by the campaign committee to arouse discussion regarding the improved highways and highway transportation.

The other means include sixty tours radiating from as many cities into the rural districts and an essay contest on the subject, "Ship by Truck and Good Roads."

Spirit

The mysterious power of money and the marvels of machinery in their influence upon the progress of the world will always pale into insignificance in the brilliant light of the magic spirit of willing men.

You might possess all the wealth of the world and all the machinery in Christendom, and yet be poor indeed if you lacked association with men who know the joy of honest united effort.

Happy is that organization which is dominated by the spirit of serving others, and this spirit, expressed by men who have joy in working and sharing with one another, commands rewards in personal satisfaction and happiness which exceed in value the money for which it will ever serve as a powerful magnet.

Testing the Marmon Motor

SO great is the accuracy and precision of manufacture of the new series Marmon that scrupulous attention to every detail becomes a law. This fact is strikingly demonstrated in the care with which every motor is tested.

The engine, after being assembled, is set up on a dynamometer stand and run by electric power for one hour. Then it is run under its own power for three hours. It is then completely disassembled. Every part is inspected. Afterwards it is rebuilt and set up again for another dynamometer test of one hour, finishing with wide open throttle.

No other motor car engine we know of—in regular production—is subjected to as rigid and comprehensive a test.

We invite you to examine the new Marmon 34 and to experience its extraordinary riding qualities

The Experts Say—

IF the oil grooves in the bushings become clogged the oil will not be able to reach the surfaces which need it. The use of an excess quantity of graphite sometimes serves to produce this condition.

The starting motor takes its current from the storage battery through brushes. It sometimes happens that these brushes for various reasons are not making proper contact and this means more or less failure of the system. When trouble arises in this system these brushes should be carefully examined. Again, one of the cells of the storage battery runs down before the others, which are therefore called upon to do more work than they are able to handle. Also a grain of grit or foreign matter may get between the contact points of a switch and make a world of trouble before it is discovered and dislodged.

In the thermo-syphon cooling system it is important to keep the radiator full or nearly so, in order that there may be adequate resistance to keep the water forcing its way forward. It is better to add a little water frequently than to let the matter go until the engine begins to knock for help.

In some instances a nut is so placed that it is extremely difficult to reach with a wrench. Often this may be obviated by reversing the bolt, whereby the nut is brought within easy reach.

Here is a simple method of getting correct brake adjustment. Push the pedal forward about two inches and keep it in that position by means of a small block of wood. Now tighten up the turn buckle or other adjustment until the brakes are snug and when the block of wood is removed it will be found that the slack has been correctly taken up.

Where castellated nuts and cotter pins are not supplied in automobile construction, well tempered split washers may be placed under the heads of the bolts to keep them from rattling loose.

The proper time to examine push rods is when the engine is still hot after a run. If these parts are adjusted when the metal is cold it may well be that because of expansion the valves will not seat properly when the parts are heated.

Thermos or vacuum bottles are peculiarly liable to fracture from the jolts and jars of travel. These bottles should be carried with the top end downward and so held that they will not move sidewise.

In engines not fitted with special valve stem guide bushings excessive wear of the guide and consequently valve stem side play and oil leakage may be prevented by reaming the guide and fitting a bronze bushing. The bushing may be obtained already machined from any supply house. In fitting the valve should center on the tappet, otherwise there will be a side thrust against the bushing and it will wear eccentrically.

A good many motorists hold that a few teaspoons of denatured alcohol squirted into the cylinders when they are hot, after which the engine is run fast for a couple of minutes, is the best carbon remover to be had. This simply amounts to substituting denatured alcohol for the kerosene that is commonly used for this purpose.

Voice of the Motorist

America's Transportation Problem.

Chicago, May 5. — [Automobile Editor, Chicago Tribune.]—Recent conventions of highway, railway, automobile, construction, and material men have been most useful and instructive. To one who had the opportunity to attend these conferences they have been highly illuminative, and to the thoughtful one suggestive.

Below I am setitng down some impressions gained from an attendance on these conferences and am offering them to those who care to read for whatever value they may contain.

America has become the greatest producing nation not alone because of the wealth of its raw materials but because it adopted the policy of free trade between the states and made that policy effective by creating a comprehensive system of transportation. The degree of transportation perfection measures the advance of civilization.

Whatever the causes, American transportation facilities are not now adequate to meet the national needs, and unless the equilibrium is shortly restored we face the necessity of economic readjustments that would seem certainly in the direction of the retrograde.

The railways confess the inadequacy of their service, which they ascribe to a variety of causes. Every one must confess the poverty of the railways, which may be variously explained. The point is, we lack transportation and must exert ourselves to supply it or face the most serious consequences. We are not without inventive genius, and we shall not despair of our ability to create an auxiliary service. Indeed, it is pointed out that the modern highway and the motor truck provide a solution of all short haul transportation problems. The railways are still capable of meeting our long haul requirements. Let us then immediately develop the short haul systems and relieve the pressure.

The state of Illinois announced the postponement of its highway building program, under a $60,000,000 bond issue, on account of the high prices of material. Other states face the same condition and are hesitant.

Economical motor truck service is possible only over hard surfaces, and the tendency is always towards more powerful trucks and heavier loads. The character of the roads to meet such a program must be of the highest degree of excellence, but the states declare that such avenues, at present prices, will cost approximately $50,000 per mile, which is uneconomical—in fact, prohibitive.

Assuming that the conclusion of Illinois is correct, if we persist in the idea that the short haul system is a necessity and must be developed, we may do one of three things—pay the price, invent an equal but cheaper highway, or adopt a substitute at a less price. We have already assumed that $50,000 per mile is prohibitive. The invention of an equal but cheaper highway is clearly up to the genius of the country, and in this connection we ask the clay products people what they have done beyond the vitrified brick to improve our highways? Is it possible to burn a cellular type of slab to lay under the wearing surface of the highway and transmit the loads to the subgrade? Here is a field of investigation that might be fruitful of results, especially so when we consider the durable character of all forms of pottery. Our last recourse is a substitute at a less price.

MOTORDOM

Auto Class Will Now Report for Lesson in Oil

Lubrication Is Called Best Insurance for Any Car

BY HIGH SPEED.

TWO simple ingredients are comprised in the elixir of automobile life, which consists of equal parts of elbow grease and lubrication. Properly lubricated and kept in tune, there is almost no limit to the useful life of a modern well built motor car. With the certainty that many of us are going to have to get along with our old cars for a considerable period, the elixir that will keep the old boat running smoothly and efficiently until we can get a new one is a matter of vital importance. I purpose reviewing the lubrication needs of the car, with the practical ends of where and how often in view.

It is necessary in the first place to warn the car owner to be doubly vigilant now as regards the quality of the lubricant he uses. If an oil lacking in certain vital essentials is used in the mechanical units, its failure to provide a buffer between the moving parts may result in injury to the mechanism that will be disastrous.

The proper person to decide just what lubricant should be used in any given car is the manufacturer of the vehicle. The car manufacturers maintain laboratories and experimental departments to make positively sure as to just what lubricant is needed in each part of the mechanism, and they are in better position than any prospective owner to be sure in the matter. So when the car manufacturer suggests that such and such a make of oil of such a grade should be used, the car owner will do well to follow his directions implicitly.

Of course, every man who runs a car realizes that the oil reservoir must be kept filled to a certain level with cylinder oil. If this is not done such parts as bearings and pistons will run dry and burn. But there are other parts, such as the transmission, rear axle gears, and universals, which operate at high speed, and consequently need copious lubrication at all times, but which are often neglected. Moreover, there are many other parts of the mechanism where the movement is not very rapid, but where friction, nevertheless, exists, and where there must be lubricant if excessive wear is to be obviated. For instance, there is the steering system; there is constant movement throughout this system, even on the smoothest road. It is not violent movement, but unless adequate lubrication is secured there will be excessive wear.

Another common mistake in lubrication methods made by the average car owner is the continued pouring in of fresh lubricant on top of oil already partly used. In other words, the level is simply brought up to the proper point, the lubricant being a mixture of fresh and dirty. The temperatures in the different moving units of the car range from 200 to 400 degrees. This in itself causes the formation of a certain amount of sediment in the oil after it has been used for a while. In addition there is a certain amount of wear of the metal parts, so that a fine metallic powder is ground off into the oil. Now the oil filled with heavy sediment has lost much of its lubricating quality. It is therefore imperative that periodically the old oil should be drained out, the reservoir should be flushed out and new lubricant be installed.

Also in many engines a certain amount of water is formed as one of the products of combustion. This water forces its way down past the piston rings into the oil pump. Gradually the water and oil form a mixture, which is simply an emulsion and not a lubricant. This trouble is more prevalent in winter, but it is one more excellent reason for a periodic cleansing of the oiling system.

Coming down to specific directions for the main oiling system, that in the engine, ought to be emptied of its lubricant, flushed out with kerosene and have fresh oil put in, after every [illegible] miles of running. As a matter of fact every 500 miles would be better, but I'm afraid the average car owner will rebel at this. When this periodic cleansing is carried out the strainer should be removed and thoroughly cleaned at the same time. The engine's cooling system is the first and most important item in securing good lubrication, but it is not alone.

Before we leave the engine, the generator should have a little oil on its ball bearings. It is common practice to provide an oil for this purpose. Where a magneto is used for ignition its ball bearings must be oiled, through the oil well provided. Where the battery distributer is used a distributer drive must have oil at the 500 mile intervals when the engine is being treated. Also do not forget the fan shaft at these times.

Next in line we come to the clutch, which receives scant attention from most owners. While there are many types of clutches in use today, all of them require lubrication of bearings and moving parts every 1,000 miles of running, or oftener if possible. A disc clutch running in oil should be drained, flushed out and refilled with fresh lubricant at 1,000 mile intervals.

And the poor hard working universal joints, how abominably the average owner neglects them! These joints turn at engine speed and they should have their lubricant renewed every 500 miles. Graphite grease or flake graphite is best to use here, as oil will leake out of the best universal cover and moreover the centrifugal force present tends to throw the oil to one side when the part is in operation. The universals should be cleansed with kerosene and then be repacked with fresh graphite grease.

The transmission and rear axle do not operate at quite the same intense speed as the engine parts, but they need regular lubrication just the same. Both these parts should be flushed out with kerosene and refilled with fresh oil every 1,000 miles of running. The lubricant for use here is a semi-fluid or heavy cylinder oil in summer, while in winter a medium cylinder oil will be best. Do not use grease in the transmission or rear axle, as the gears simply cut a pathway through this lubricant and thereafter run practically dry.

The wheel bearings, which need cup grease or a graphite lubricant, should be cleaned out thoroughly and repacked every 2,000 miles of running. The braking system is more insistent of attention and should be thoroughly oiled every 500 miles, and the careful driver will go over the steering pivots and steering linkage every day that he takes the car out. The grease cups on the springs should be turned down weekly.

A BERLIN BABY.—With operating costs sky high, German ingenuity has turned to motoring economies. Here is a two wheeled car which proved popular in the Kapp regime. A small balance wheel is attached to each side of the chassis. The owner does not have to worry about the cost of gasoline.

For Little Ones.

An international light car race is to be held near the town of Le Mans on Aug. 29, to which all but late enemy subjects will be admitted. Its entrants will be the smallest cars ever gathered in one self-propelled meet. Their average cylinder area is only eighty-five cubic inches. The distance is to be 250 miles.

Care of the Hood.

It is a well recognized fact that the finish on the hood dulls before that on the rest of the car, due mainly to the extremes of temperature which the hood has to undergo. It is a good plan to wipe off the hood when you get back into the garage after a run in the rain, because the water dries on the hood metal rapidly, due to the warmth, and the drops are almost sure to spot, in time gradually dulling the finish.

County Loop Run Proves an Ideal Miniature Tour

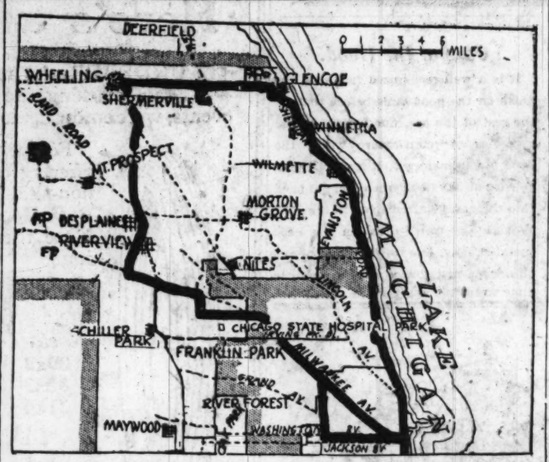
Comfort and Pleasure Twin Attractions in This Trip

PRIME country going for more than fifty miles—the sort of Sunday run you have been looking for ever since the car came home from the paint shop this spring—is awaiting you in the north county loop.

Hard surfaced roads all the way with long stretches of smoothest concrete thrown in to give the driver his chance to thoroughly enjoy May sunshine, make this early spring spin one of few safe and sane afternoon tours now that country roads outside of the county system are generally choppy from lack of dragging. Neither showers, hostile tribes, nor breakdowns are to be feared where practically every side road leads toward home on past a welcoming service station. Instead of mud hole profiteers, the motorist will meet fresh eggs at anywhere from 35 cents a dozen up and all the delicacies of the farm garden of the thriving roadside markets which line the way.

All phases of touring interest that may be found anywhere in the middle west and some that belong particularly to Cook county line the route. At the start, Sheridan road winds north through handsome residence districts, university grounds, and suburban features. The loop turns into Glencoe at Park avenue and north in Bluff street to the Dundee road to find real open country and later to bury itself in one of Illinois' finest forest preserves, a district cut out for luncheon parties.

Turning south in Wheeling on well paved Milwaukee avenue, the route traverses more miles of forest preserve to emerge on the Desplaines river road for a run into Desplaines, where it branches on the only paved road to the right to strike Lee street. Thence it follows south to the Higgins road and left for five miles to Harlem avenue, in Norwood Park. Turning left from Harlem into Gunnison street and its connection with Lawrence avenue is the best way home. From Lawrence in the city the motorist has several excellent options. He may turn to the right on reaching Elston avenue and follow it through to Diversey parkway, or may follow Lawrence another half mile farther to Crawford and Crawford straight south to Washington boulevard. Or he may branch from Crawford on Milwaukee avenue to reach Logan boulevard and the west park system.



THE NORTH COUNTY LOOP—No more than a "five gallon tour," but well worth while as an after dinner motoring relish any pleasant Sunday. The heavy, black line indicates the fifty mile circuit and dotted lines show good county highways that may be explored if the driver so desires. The forest preserves appear after the car turns left from Glencoe.

The Chicago Motor club last week finished marking a complete county loop of 140 miles, which eventually will cover the best route over the entire paved highway system. At present it is hardly wise to follow the yellow "C. L." markings beyond Wheeling on the west and south, for they lead over several roads designated for improvement in this year's proposed program and subject at any time to closing orders. Some of the marked stretches are already undergoing repairs.

Wonders.

An eminent psychologist has recently completed a test to determine the mind content of the average motorist. Recording instruments showed the following wonders present in the proportion indicated:

Wonder if I'm out of gas—19.2 per cent.

Wonder if that traffic cop saw me—9.3 per cent.

Wonder how much of the anti-freeze is water—6.7 per cent.

Wonder if that's a spark knock or carbon—5.1 per cent.

Wonder if the wife has finished shopping yet—2.3 per cent.

Wonder if those little tads will keep to the sidewalk—3.5 per cent.

Wonder if that spare's pumped up—9.6 per cent.

Wonder if I can park here—33.7 per cent.

Wonder if I'd better tell that fellow I smashed his lamp—0.4 per cent.

Foreign thoughts which defied all known methods of analysis—10.2 per cent.

Chicago Men Are Directing Many National Events

F. E. EDWARDS, chairman of the Chicago Automobile club's technical committee, has been made chairman of the same committee for the race at Indianapolis on Memorial day, and will also fill the same post for the Glidden tour, which leaves New York about Sept. 1 and ends at San Francisco, traversing the Lincoln highway all the way.

Charles P. Root, who heads the contest committee of the club, is director of the national motor truck reliability contest out of Omaha in June, and will also manage the Glidden tour. Mr. Root leaves Chicago in a few days, driving a Lexington car through to Omaha, and will log the truck route. Then he will go east to take charge of the Glidden and will accompany that to the coast.

Harry P. Branstetter, the club's new president, is actively engaged in putting on the used car show at the Coliseum, being chairman of the executive committee of the used car show. Mr. Branstetter has named most of his new committees.

ESSEX MOTOR CARS

Do You Know the Secret of Essex Leadership?

It is the New Light Type With Big Car Ability. Can Any Light Car Rival Its Speed, Power or Endurance?

Lightness today is an overwhelming advantage in a motor car, provided it means no forfeit of fine performance, endurance or distinctive appearance.

Yet, prior to the Essex, what car combined all these qualities? There were light cars to be sure. But none to meet the requirements of those who exact the highest standards of ability, comfort and good looks.

Had such a type existed, Essex could not have won such swift dominance. It could have set no world's selling record as it did, with a greater total paid for Essex than for any car ever brought out in its first year.

The very suddenness of its success shows how its qualities commandeered attention. For men are not quick to buy a car that time has not proved.

And the Essex came unknown. Merit was its only advocate for recognition. Its quality was instantly obvious. In looks, in action, its appeal was dynamic. And it drew immediate response from all classes of motor users.

Almost Doubles Light Car Endurance

They found ability, speed and power before believed impossible in a light car.

Now see how Essex has justified all the fine things that have been said in its praise. An Essex stock chassis set the official world's 50-hour endurance record of 3,037 miles. In three tests it travelled 5,870 miles averaging above a mile a minute. An Essex stock touring car also holds the world's 24-hour road record of 1,061 miles.

To those who had owned light cars, the Essex was a revelation. It gave them a new sensation of stability and power. They found charm of appearance, riding ease, and pride of ownership that comes from possession of a car they know none can surpass in performance.

The Dominant Light Car By Official Proof

People accustomed to fine car qualities recognize in the light Essex, all the performance, comfort and good looks that formerly were regarded exclusive to large, costly cars.

And with it Essex brings every advantage of the light type. These compel consideration. They consist not only of important economies, but of greater handling ease, safety and convenience. Parking for large cars is becoming an increasingly difficult problem. So, too, is their manipulation in heavy traffic. The light car clearly shows its value in greater nimbleness. The common sense facts prove it from every angle, the type for all-round usefulness.

When you know the appeal of the Essex you will scarcely be content to drive another car.

Live Steam Increases Cadillac Mileage Over 30% in Official Test!

Here is evidence based on a disinterested test of the Automatic Steam Carburetor made by a leading newspaper. It shows how live steam, injected into the gas mixture, increases the power, speed and mileage to a remarkable degree. This newspaper ran three cars over a prescribed course—a Cadillac Eight, a Buick Six and a Dodge Four. An accurate record was kept of the fuel consumed, and then an Automatic Steam Carburetor was used and cars were run over the same course with the following results:

	Cadillac 8	Buick 6	Dodge 4
Increase in mileage	30.7%	31.5%	34.3%
Increase in power on 6% grade	12.4%	13.2%	13.4%
Increase in speed under pull, same gas	5.0 miles	5.5 miles	6.0 miles

Remember, these figures were compiled by disinterested parties. They are accurate. We do not ask you to take our word for the efficiency of the Automatic Steam Carburetor. It is based on actual tests like this.

This Is Our Money-Back Guarantee

1. To save 25% to 40% fuel.
2. To eliminate carbon.
3. To keep the spark plugs clean.
4. To increase the efficiency, power, speed and smoothness of your motor.

Present Highway Scheme Attacked by Congressmen

Valle Tells House He Believes Prevailing System Wasteful

THAT our present plan of highway construction and maintenance, while possessing many good features, is defective in its underlying theory, and is wasteful, was the statement made by William Valle of Colorado in the house of representatives recently. Mr. Valle's contention is that the time is ripe for the adoption of the better, more logical, and more effective plan proposed by the Townsend bill, which would establish a federal highway commission and a national highway system.

"Without denying that the Shackleford plan was productive of some benefits, and heartily approving the more liberal provision of apportionment contemplated at the Louisville meeting of the state highway officials," said Mr. Valle, "I am convinced that the present plan is not productive of the benefits expected, either to the federal government or to the states, and that better results to both can be accomplished with small appropriations on the different and, in my judgment, far superior plan presented by the Townsend bill."

In support of this view Congressman Valle thinks that in at least two principal respects the present plan has proved not conducive to the best interests of the state or the nation. These he analyzes as follows:

"The requirements of equal appropriations by the state for the construction of post roads prevent the proper maintenance of other state roads and the development of tributary roads.

"State supervision of construction means a lack of that coördination which is essential to the development of a truly national system."

Analyzing the first limitation, Mr. Valle points out that in his own state, Colorado, federal aid has been concentrated on 882 miles of highway. Since the state fund is only $245,000 more than the federal funds, the requirement of the dollar for dollar appropriation by the state means that the 12,000 miles of secondary highways are entirely ignored while there is still more than 6,000 miles of primary state roads left uncared for.

Incidentally he says, "It may be observed that the federal aid plan has in actual practice apparently stimulated road building in an inferior rather than a superior type of construction. A report of the bureau of public roads for the year ending June 30, 1919, showed that 60 per cent of all the mileage approved to date is of dirt, sand, gravel, or clay construction. If we assume this type to be adequate, then the road is not of primary importance, since any highway carrying any considerable volume of traffic must be of durable type, according to all engineering authorities. If this type of construction is employed in roads of primary importance then the money is wasted.

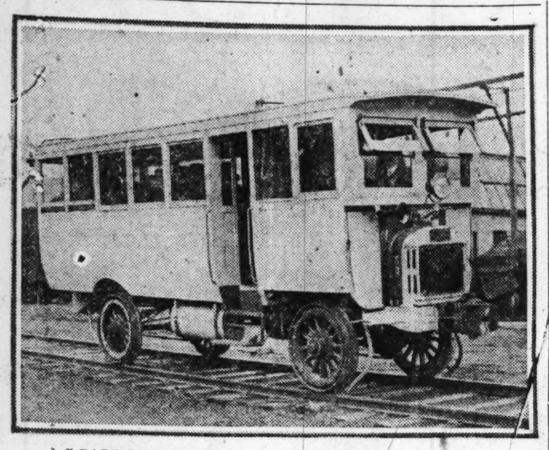
"From a point of view, however, of developing through traffic and the feeder roads of such traffic, there is a still more important objection, and that is that the state funds all tied up to the less valuable projects, and the general improvement of the state's road system and its correlation to the system of other states is necessarily neglected.

"Since we have not developed, and are not likely to develop under the federal aid plan, a primary system of highways, diversion of funds to secondary roads is neither permissible nor practicable. We have not in the United States today one transcontinental highway improved for its full distance. Nothing in the federal aid act would ever require the construction of any such highway. The mere fact that maintenance from government funds is specifically forbidden, makes government expenditure a current expense instead of an investment. In western states maintenance is impossible because every penny of state funds is absorbed under the dollar for dollar plan.

"In my judgment it would be a great mistake, for my own state at least, to accede to the further continuance of any plan of road financing though some adaptations may and should be made from the present law in view of the peculiar situation of the public land states."

In developing the second point, Mr. Valle says: "The projects in which the state is interested are inevitably those which will best serve its own needs, though for the reasons already suggested, the state needs are at best poorly served under the present system. Where state highway departments retain final authority to select the roads which shall be improved, even though such selections must have government approval, it does not involve any charge of narrow mindedness or sectionalism against the state highway commissioner to point out that he is sure to consider intrastate ahead of interstate needs. The latter concern him only when they are identical with or subservient to the needs of his own state. That is his business—to look after the road needs of his own state first.

"I am firmly of the opinion that instead of tying the hands of the federal government by permitting construction of roads necessary to the national business and the national defense to remain subject to the selection and supervision of state authorities, and instead of tying up state funds to the construction of dislocated projects and to their entire maintenance when constructed, we should concentrate our national funds on both the construction and maintenance of great through arteries of travel; that we should indeed spend the national funds with a sense of the federal obligation to those states which have great areas of public and withdrawn lands, but that the application of the state funds should not be coerced either to the construction or the maintenance of such great through arteries."



A "GAS" RAILROAD—Here is the way the Palatine, Lake Zurich and Wauconda road utilizes a three ton truck. Equipped with flanged wheels, it hauls a freight trailer sixteen miles from Wauconda to Palatine, Ill. Its capacity is eighty passengers.

Authoritative Praise.

Admiral J. C. Da Graca, ranking officer of the Brazilian navy and special good roads ambassador to the United States from the southern republic, left Chicago for the east several days ago after having inspected every mile of Cook county's highway system.

"It is sufficient to say that your county has a genuine and legitimate claim to its boast of country roads leadership," he declared after his series of automobile inspections. "The only fault that I have to find with the system is that it does not continue its excellence in several connections beyond the county line nor, I am afraid, within the city limits of Chicago. The drainage achievements along Cook county roads are particularly praiseworthy"

PAIGE

The Most Beautiful Car in America

IT is today undeniably one of the major pleasures of life to possess a truly fine motor car.

And this, more than anything else, we believe, accounts for the steadily growing demand for the Paige Six-55.

The fineness of the seven-passenger Paige is readily observable. It is apparent not only in the car's outward beauty and interior comfort but also in its outstanding sturdiness and general mechanical excellence. It is a fineness which prevails uniformly in every feature that distinguishes a car as being of the finer type.

And yet, contrary perhaps to the general opinion concerning cars of its size, the Paige Six-55 is entirely free from extravagance. Its upkeep is quite as moderate as its original cost.

If you desire a really fine motor car—a car which gives complete satisfaction in every respect—do not overlook seeing the seven-passenger Paige.

Forestry Leader Opens New Door to Highway Era

Urges Road Builders to Plant Fine Trees as Roosevelt Tribute

LINED with memorial trees, a "Roosevelt road of remembrance" would be the greatest of all memorials in honor of the former president, Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Forestry association of Washington, says. Mr. Pack was the speaker at the memorial tree planting for Theodore Roosevelt and Quentin Roosevelt by the Park Garden club of Flushing, N. Y. He said in part:

"In a Roosevelt road of remembrance every citizen of the United States would have a part and no finer memorial could be erected than such a highway. It would be another sign to the world that we are Americans all and that we live in a united country. But even greater than that would be the educational value of such an undertaking. As never before the United States needs a great outstanding lesson in forest conservation, for this country today faces one of its gravest problems, the perpetuation of its greatest natural resource, the forests.

"Millions are to be spent on improved highways that the producer and consumer may be brought close together. Let us beautify these highways in the building. If there could be a great forward movement such as I picture in tree planting the result would be a citizenry awakened to the value of trees as a national asset.

"Memorial trees are being planted along many of the highways of the country, the American Forestry association points out, and calls on the automobile world to coöperate in this work everywhere because of the great opportunity to better cement the relations between the motor user and the citizen. The Daughters of the American Revolution at its last session in Washington adopted unanimously a resolution urging a Liberty Memorial park and a memorial drive leading to it. The American Forestry association has called on the states to plant memorial trees along the road to Mount Vernon."

"Ship by Truck" week, May 17, is of the greatest educational value to the good roads movement, Mr. Pack said, adding that the great burden of good roads is civilization. In many places now, such as along the Dixie highway, the Lincoln highway, and many other roads, trees are being planted. The American Forestry association will send any motor club or individual free tree planting instructions on request to its offices in Washington, D. C.

OLD TIMER WINS.—B. V. Ingersoll, 72 years old, drove a Mack truck from the Allentown, Pa., factory to Chicago in ten days recently, leading a caravan of new cars for the local market. He recalled that in the old days when he drove horses overland, the trip would have taken two months of his time. Fourteen new trucks in the shipment covered the 976 miles to Chicago over spring roads.

Two Solo Riders Set New Records on Beach Track

ALL existing professional and amateur solo records for the kilometer, mile, two miles, and five miles were beaten at Daytona Beach, Fla., by Gene Walker and Herbert McBride. Walker covered the kilometer in 19.32 seconds, or at the rate of 115.79 miles per hour. His time for the mile was 31.53 seconds, or at the rate of 114.17 miles per hour. His two mile record was made in 1:04:45, or at the rate of 111.17 miles per hour, and the five miles in 2:45:62, or at the rate of 108.71 miles per hour.

Herbert McBride, the amateur, tore off the kilometer in 21:43, or 104.40 miles per hour. He covered the mile in 34:63. The two miles in 1:11:19, or at 101.13 miles per hour, and the five miles in 2:59:67, or at the rate of 100.18 miles per hour. Both Walker and McBride rode sixty-one cubic inch eight valve Indians in making these records.

Auto Noises.

The noises which accompany a rattling drip pan and loose fenders are rather hard to tell apart, according to American Motorist, which offers this suggestion: Ask some one to stand on the runningboard and bear on that fender which you suspect of making the noise. If that does not stop it, look for a loose bolt in the drip pan.

Easy for Him.

S. S. Montagu, secretary of state for India, has proved his unique courage in riding a fiery, untamed motor scooter over the bumps of Whitehall. To see him keep his monocle in place as his puffing steed bucks at the ruts would be a thrilling sight to even blase veterans of Buffalo Bill days.

It Adds a Wealth of Joy to Family Life

The Cleveland Six adds joy and recreation to the family life in a most unusal degree. It is such a comfortable car, so easy to drive, so distinguished in its refined appearance, that the mother and the children find real delight in it.

And the Man of the House, no matter how critically inclined he may be in mechanical matters, finds in the Cleveland Six a triumph in motor car construction, a car which he will drive with enthusiasm.

The Cleveland Six touring car seats five in comfort. The soft cushioning and the low, under-slung spring suspension, wipe out the road-bumps. The car is handsomely finished and the upholstering is of genuine hand-buffed leather.

And the motor! If you want to know what a motor it is come in and see the car. Ride in it. Drive it yourself. Then you will know. There are few motors indeed that can compare with it in actual performance.

R & V Knight

An Unfailing Reserve of Power

THE power development of the Knight type of motor is common knowledge. Consider, then, six Knight cylinders and their smooth, silent, never-failing production of power.

In operation and maintenance, it is surprisingly economical. In comfort, elegance, appearance and strength, it is especially distinguished.

MOTORDOM

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

WORKERS in the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company's Akron plant have issued a protest against overalls clubs, declaring them inconsistent as an H. C. L. weapon and advantageous only to the overalls manufacturers' pocketbook. They advise the wearing of old clothes and patches.

A suit claiming that the F. B. Stearns company has infringed on its motometer patent has been filed in the Ohio federal courts by the H. H. Boyce Motometer company.

Business increases have resulted in the Vim Motor Truck company's moving its factory branch to new headquarters at 1222-26 South Michigan avenue.

The Marmon demonstration which interested fans at the 1920 auto shows was repeated last week as a feature of the Marshall Field & Co. annual motor utilities show.

The Smith-Sauer Motor company, distributor of the Jackson Six, has opened its new headquarters at 2027 Michigan avenue. Thirty-six cars have come overland from the Jackson, Mich., factory to meet orders.

Stockholders of the Four Wheel Drive Auto company of Clintonville, Wis., have purchased the Menominee Motor Truck company and will locate the new plant near the FWD factory. A. E. Samels, former Chicago representative for the Maxwell Sales company, has been made assistant sales manager for the consolidated interests.

But 12 per cent, or 299,000 miles, of roads in the United States have been hard-surfaced to date, according to figures compiled by Harry Branstetter, local Kissel dealer.

The Columbia Hot Shot dry battery, a unit ranging from four to twelve cell power, and connected in either series or series multiple, has been newly placed on the Chicago market.

The Walden W. Shaw company's new plant, at Dickens, Menard, and Austin avenues, is devoting a part of its thirteen acre tract to employes' garden plots.

Howard L. Spohn and Frank A. Kapp, both veterans of the automobile publicity game in Chicago, have become associated with the Charles H. Fuller Advertising company. Both men have associated prominently with the Automobile Blue Book, Motor Age, Motor Life, and other big automotive mediums.

The Federal Motor Truck company announces the purchase of sixty acres of land in Detroit as a site for its new industrial plant.

Truck service has been inaugurated between the Oneida factory at Green Bay, Wis., and all points in the country where materials are secured for manufacture of the truck.

George S. Shugart, general sales manager for the United States Tire company, has been elected vice president of the organization.

MOTOR RESCUE—In Washington the truck has been pressed into service to save dumb "down-and-outers" by the Animal Rescue league. This veteran of the cobble stones seems to enjoy his first ride on his journey to happy pastures.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS by HIGH SPEED

Can the oil that you take out of the engine be used over again? Is there any way of filtering it so that it will retain its lubricating properties?—F. J. K.

You can use this oil over again, but not in the engine. Place the oil in a vessel and permit the sediment to settle, then take off the good oil above and use it for lubricating the spring leaves, brake connections, and in similar locations.

There is a bad noise in my rear axle, and yet the gears seem to be in perfect condition—that is, from an inspection through the cover plate. The noise is just like that made by broken gears slipping around. What do you think it is?—R. T. N.

The trouble probably lies in the shaft. There is probably a broken spline of a worn end if the shaft has a squared connection with the inner gear.

I fill my battery with water once a week, as the maker advises. I notice that one of the cells always needs more water than the others. Could there be a short anywhere to cause excessive evaporation?—D. V. L.

You will find that the cell which always needs more water than the others is cracked. The crack may be small, but you had better have the jar replaced at once.

How many dry cells should be hooked up on a Ford car for ignition purposes? I have a six cell storage battery, and I want to know how many to use to connect them.—J. G.

Four dry cells will be enough. Three cells of the battery connected in series will handle the job.

I have three patent piston rings on each piston of my Ford, and I have been told that this equipment does not allow enough oil to get through and that the cylinders will get scored. The No. 1 cylinder is scored now. Do you think this scraper ring equipment is to blame?—M. L. S.

Undoubtedly scoring may be caused by lack of oil. The bottom or scraper ring is not essential. The rings do not cause the scoring.

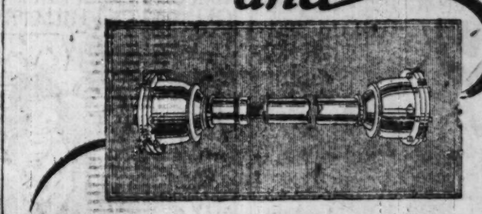
Spark Plugs and The Universal Joint



THAT exasperating "miss" in one or more cylinders that causes your car to jerk along the road creates thrust and strain in the universal joint. This cuts down power and increases gasoline wastage and repair bills.

The answer to the motor-miss is Bethlehem Spark Plugs. Sure-fire Bethlehems that put the poetry of motion in your engine and wring the last ounce of power out of your gas.

Improved engineering ideas reduce liability of fouling. Special-formula porcelain reduces breakage and current-loss to a minimum.

Every Bethlehem Spark Plug is tested individually on special electrical and compression-testing apparatus before it leaves the factory.

A little booklet, "Hit or Miss?", goes into the subject of spark plugs and makes you muse: "I never knew that before." Write for a copy.

Executives going to a conference in their company's Packard. Hundreds of Corporations have standardized on Packard on an economy basis—high mileage per dollar of investment and low running cost over a term of years

Does the Car Buyer Want the Facts

THE late Joseph Choate used to say that lawyers would go out of business if men were not so bent on making the same old mistakes the same old way.

No one need—or can—make the old mistakes in selecting his motor car, if he will look for transportation facts instead of "features" and "talking points."

The strong Packard opinion which he finds on every hand does not express itself in technical details or costly luxury—but in such every-day words as economy, comfort, ability and lasting value.

LET a man figure on keeping his Packard from six to ten years—and he has a material saving in investment, as against the car that must be traded in every two or three years.

Think of the stability of the Packard design! His Packard always a "new model."

His gasoline mileage will be from nine to thirteen, depending on road conditions. Oil mileage, 700 or more to the gallon. Tires, properly cared for, ten thousand to sixteen thousand miles.

The steel in his Packard is worth more than twice as much as the steel in the ordinary car.

The moving parts in the Twin-Six engine are better balanced than in any other automobile engine. Consequently there is less vibration and less wear on bearings.

WHEN a man buys a motor car he knows pretty well what sort of transportation he expects it to deliver.

Economy does not lie in the direction of temporary makeshifts or compromises.

Packard first-class transportation will give him a definite and permanent advance in his way of traveling. It will cost him less per passenger mile during his whole motoring experience—than even second-class transportation.

IF WE COULDN'T TELL A LIE

GOOD FOR THE SOUL

By Guy F. Lee.

There are those who assert they feel peevish and hurt
  Unless they are constantly working;
They toil and they slave, and they worry and rave,
  And they bawl out a guy they find shirking.
That may be all right, but I think it's a fright,
  And I view such apostles as crazy.
I never get het by my labor and sweat,
  For I am admittedly lazy.

I've got no excuse for my attitude loose;
  It's neither ambitious nor clever,
But I simply can't see where it pays one to be
  A bug on this fetish, Endeavor.
We are born and we die, and we never know why,
  And our leasehold is sketchy and hazy,
And the Quick are as dead when their spirit has fled
  As the Happy-go-lucky and Lazy.

The minimum strife's my idea of life;
  I don't figure loafing is cheating;
Inertia's my game; this existence, I claim,
  For maximum Effort's too fleeting.
I don't work much, now, but I've heard some avow
  This Honesty thing is a daisy,
So I'm free to confess that I'd love to work less,
  And I'm proud of the fact I am lazy!

"How many holes in a piece of Swiss cheese?"
"I ought to bounce something on your bean, but I guess you've been punished enough."
"What do you mean?"
"Where did you get those bruises on your face?"
"A teamster spattered me with mud this morning and I called him down."
"Yes, but how about the bruises?"
"Oh, he got down."
"What makes you so wise?"
"I eat wise fruit." (Takes banana from pocket.)
"What's that?"
"Wise fruit. If you eat it you get wise."
"How much do you want for it?"
"Eleven dollars."
"That's a lot of money."
"Yes, but see how wise you'll get."
"Very well, here's your eleven. Why, this is nothing but a banana."
"You're getting wise already."

Public Preference Grows for Greater Value—Greater Service

It is what the Stephens is and does and gives that is winning a fast growing preference for this car everywhere.

For the Stephens is a motor car of greater value and does give a greater service.

There is a universal preference for hand-built bodies.

Stephens bodies are hand-built with the same care and workmanship that is given to fine custom built bodies.

There is also a nation-wide demand for a modern fuel-burning engine of greater power and increased economy.

The modern Stephens engine burns low and high grade gasoline with like efficiency and success.

It is also the most powerful and the most economical engine for its size found in passenger automobiles.

Preference for the Stephens is based upon motor-wise recognition of its greater value and its greater service.

And Stephens owners agree that, "Two own a Stephens is to enjoy the height of motor car satisfaction."

Arrange for a demonstration today.

DORT
Quality Goes Clear Through

Your outlay of money will be less if the car you buy is a Dort.

This applies to the initial investment, cost of upkeep and allowance for depreciation.

The saving—like the quality—goes clear through.

60,000 Dort owners,—thousands in Chicago territory—back up this statement.

If the Dort were a new car, hitherto untried, we would be quite as confident of its surpassing value.

Because—

We know that the Dort throughout, is designed in strict accordance with the most advanced and proved engineering principles.

Because—

In every step of manufacture only the soundest of materials, the best of workmanship and above all industrial concience is manifest.

It is this in-built value that makes the Dort such a splendidly practical car.

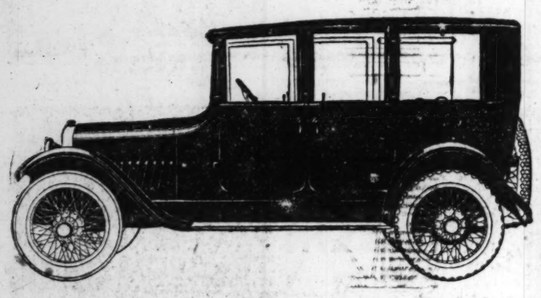
OAKLAND OWNERS REPORT RETURNS OF FROM 18 TO 25 MILES PER GALLON OF GASOLINE AND FROM 8,000 TO 12,000 MILES ON TIRES



IT is observed in our salesroom that the purchase of an Oakland Sensible Six Sedan often is decided after a very few minutes of inspection.

People realize quickly that the immense resources back of this car have produced in it an unmatched value.

The car we are showing today is the staunch Oakland of years past rendered even more serviceable by heavier construction and advanced design.

The six and one-half inch deep frame, the large axles, the strongly built body and high grade equipment give it extraordinary capacity for service.

The substantially appointed interior, with window regulators, tonneau heater, silk roller curtains and back panel windows, supplies exceptional convenience and comfort.

Being built and equipped to deliver the utmost in year 'round transportation at low operating cost, it presents a combination of advantages not offered in another car.

FARM AND GARDEN

Tree and Shrub Screen for Back Yard Living Room

By Frank Ridgway.

IN the spring there always comes a desire to improve the home grounds. You often envy your neighbor his privacy where his lawn in the back yard is surrounded with a green wall of shrubbery and trees that shields the grounds from public gaze. The family frequently wishes for a wall of some kind to be built around the home to shut out the inquisitive gaze of the stranger.

The stone walls so common around many of the homes in England, adding much charm to the British home, are not favored in this country except around large estates. People here desire privacy as much as they do in Europe, but solid rock walls are resented even around some of the larger homes, because they seem undemocratic; there's something cold about them. Instead of building rock walls around the home grounds the average American prefers to plant shrubs and trees to form the walls of the out of door living room. It gives the house behind the wall a friendly feeling to the stranger as he passes and provides a place of reasonable seclusion for the family during the summer.

An ideal outdoor living room, located back of the house, may be made at a comparatively small cost by using shrubs, trees, and flowers that are now available. Great varieties of them will grow and do well in this climate. Where it is made in the back yard one may step directly into it from the porch.

Screen Needed in City Yard.

Occasionally where the outdoor living room is at the rear of the house it is somewhat secluded, and it will not be necessary to surround the grounds with tall shrubbery, for about all that is necessary in such cases is to mark the boundaries which will give the home a feeling of intimacy that is not found in a broad open lawn.

Unfortunately few back yards in the city or suburbs are of that kind, because most of them border a street, alley, or a neighbor's yard. Living screens become necessary in such cases, if reasonable privacy is to be had. There is a certain degree of restraint if exposed to the curious eyes of those who pass. It is a good way to put costly space to good use, and by careful planning a few dollars will make the home a more beautiful place to live in and will add much value to the property that is for sale.

When to plant, what to plant, and how to plant are the three most important questions asked. In the spring is the best time to plant, while the ground has plenty of moisture. Most all successful landscape gardeners follow simple rules, and they only have a few of them. There is almost no limit to the number of different shrubs which are recommended for use, as either the tall or low hedges. In buying them nurserymen are usually able to offer valuable suggestions if they are given an idea of the location and general situation of the grounds where the hedge is to be used. Evergreens are being used where it is desired to have hedges remain as attractive in the winter as in the summer. Junipers, hemlocks, retinosperas, and pines are used for this purpose.

Best for Borders.

The privet hedge does well in this climate, and ranks among the best for borders. It can be used to good advantage around flower and vegetable gardens, as well as around the edge of lawns. The ibota, the Chinese privet hedge, is almost an evergreen, may be trimmed severely where it is necessary, and grows compact.

Hedges around the front lawn and around flower gardens are usually trimmed, but as a general rule where shrubs are planted in the back yard to inclose the out of door living room shearing or clipping is not practical, as it gives a formal appearance to the plantation. It is much more desirable to have the plants resemble a natural thicket, and this can be done by planting them in masses. Just let them assume their natural habits of growth.

Gardeners often spend a great deal of time in making a wide selection of plants so they will have flowers from early summer until fall. The barberry, high bush cranberry, and the coralberry, with their high colored fruits, give color to the shrubbery in the winter, and it is well to include some of them in the planting list.

Study of Bark Shrubs Helpful.

It is a good plan to have some of the large shrubs in the corner of the lawn, and smaller ones in between should be in an irregular line, with a tall specimen here and there near the front, so the top line will not be too straight. By visiting parks a study can be made of the growing habits of the various shrubs. This will be found helpful in deciding what plants will be best suited for certain locations. You will avoid such mistakes as planting shrubs too close together and planting the wide spreading varieties too near the walk. Close planting may be practiced, but it is usually necessary to take up every other one within a few years. If plants are set near the walk it is often necessary to keep trimming them back every year.

The Spyraea Van Houttei is one of the useful shrubs for home ground planting, and many flower lovers consider it the most beautiful flowering shrub in this section. The list of flowering shrubs might include the lilacs of various kinds, Japanese barberry, Tartarian honeysuckle, mock orange, and the new syringas. Barberry, buckhorn, and the various hawthorns are good shrubs to keep out dogs and other intruders.

There are certain plants that do not

The Great Results

that come from the Special Steels in a

MAXWELL

There is a double advantage in the use of these special steels in a Maxwell.

1.—They eliminate superfluous pounds, lighten the task of the engine, ease the burden on tires, make possible quicker acceleration.

2.—They add strength which insures endurance, dependability, uninterrupted performance, and infrequent repairs.

These special steels make possible the Maxwell construction of great strength combined with light weight.

The light weight decreases the burden on the engine and their strength provides endurance.

They have been important factors in the success of Maxwell the world over, in its ever-increasing friendships, in its great growth.

Nearly 400,000 Maxwells are now in use. You cannot motor even in a foreign land, without meeting them.

Twin Eight Cylinder Duesenberg Automobile with Delco Ignition driven by Tommy Milton

Seven World's Speed Records Won With Delco Ignition

SO fast the eye could scarcely follow—a blur of indistinct motion—Tommy Milton shot his Delco-equipped Duesenberg car along the smooth, hard sands of Daytona Beach, at a faster, madder pace than machines have ever travelled on earth before—a mile in a trifle more than a third of a minute.

This tremendous burst of speed shattered the world's previous records, and enthroned Milton as the world's new speed king.

Comparable only to cannon speed—the human eye can scarce visualize a machine hurtling over a race-way in the following fractions of time officially accepted April 1920 by the American Automobile Association:—

New World's Speed Records

½ mile . . .	:11.57 seconds, 155.57 miles per hour
1 kilometer	:14.40 seconds, 155.34 miles per hour
1 mile . . .	:23.07 seconds, 156.04 miles per hour
2 miles . . .	:46.24 seconds, 155.70 miles per hour
3 miles . .	1 min. 12.18 sec., 149.62 miles per hour
4 miles . .	1 min. 36.14 sec., 149.78 miles per hour
5 miles . .	2 min. 00.04 sec., 149.95 miles per hour

THOUGH the mind can scarcely comprehend such speed, it takes little imagination to conceive of the tremendous strain on every part of a car travelling at this unprecedented rate. Delco does not claim the credit for winning this race with time, but Delco takes pride in announcing this result to the millions of owners of Delco-equipped automobiles.

Delco met this gruelling test with the same reliability and efficiency that it has demonstrated in the establishment of other world records, such as the Essex fifty-hour grind—the Hudson trans-continental run—the NC-4 trans-Atlantic flight, and Major Schroeder's altitude climb.

All are world's records—and all have been made with Delco.

Cole Aero-Eight

BALANCED TO ZERO

Why does the Aero-Eight pick-up so swiftly and have so great a fund of reserve power?

An aviator can tell you the moment he takes the wheel and feels the car respond to the touch of the accelerator.

It's the minute balance of every unit that enables the mechanism to respond without effort or restraint when under way.

Aerotype engineering has increased the limits of motor car possibility, and Cole engineers have been the first to apply these principles to the automobile.

Aeroplane balance is one of the characteristics which the name of the Aero-Eight implies. It is balanced to zero, so that every unit is able to function 100 per cent.

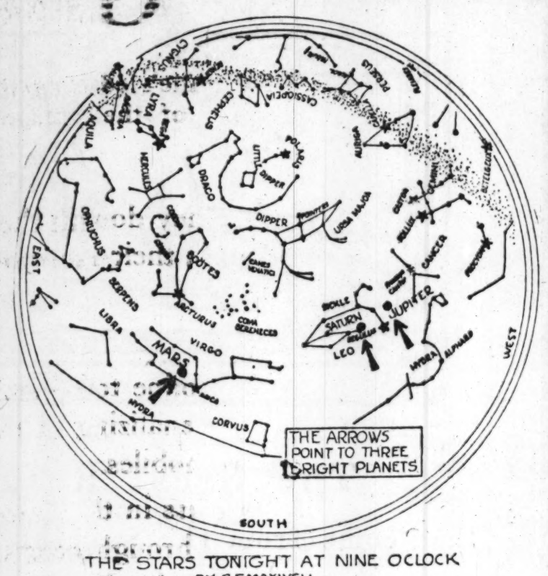
ASTRONOMY

Questions on astronomy will be answered if a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Address Astronomy, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

SPACE IN THE SOLAR SYSTEM.

THE sun is the center of a family of worlds. We call his planets and their attendant moons, with the debris of comets and meteors that move under his attraction, the solar system. The size of this system is simply staggering to us, accustomed as we are, to distance, in puny miles. The space from the sun to his nearest planet is 36,000,000 miles, and to his farthest 2,971,600,000. In sharp contrast to the enormous gaps from world to world are the specklike sizes of the planets themselves.

Select a level expanse of prairie. In it place a globe two feet in diameter, and let it shine four times as brilliantly as the brightest part of an arc light. This is the sun. Mercury will be a grain of mustard seed moving in an oval about 164 feet across, once around in eighty-eight days. Venus will be the size of a pea, in an orbit 284 feet in diameter, and will make the trip in 225 days.



THE STARS TONIGHT AT NINE OCLOCK
BY S.F.MAXWELL

The earth will be a large pea, accompanied by a small mustard seed, the moon moving in an orbit 430 feet across once in a year. The moon will be fifteen inches from the earth, and will go around once a month. Mars will be a large pin head moving in a circle 654 feet across, and requiring almost two years to make the trip. It has two motes flying about it. The asteroids will be grains of sand and dust flying in shoals whose orbits average 1,000 feet across. Their periods will be about four years.

Jupiter, the giant planet, will be an orange following a circle half a mile from side to side. He goes around it once in twelve years. He has nine attendants, the largest as big as a small pin head, the smallest the size of a dust grain. The nearest moon is five inches away and revolves every eleven hours. The farthest is over thirty-two feet away from Jupiter and requires two and one-half years to make the trip around.

Saturn, another small orange set in the center of a flat ring the diameter of a saucer and as thin as a sheet of gold leaf, moves in a track four-fifths of a mile across, once in twenty-nine years. He has ten moons, the largest as big as a pin head, the smallest the size of a plant spore. The inner moons lie just inside the ring; the outermost is sixteen feet away and revolves in one and two-thirds years. The inner moon of Saturn goes around in two hours less than one day.

Between Saturn and Uranus there is a great gap. Uranus is a ball as big as a small cherry and is accompanied by four sand grains. Its orbit is a full mile in diameter. Another gap and then comes Neptune, represented by a large plum, attended by a mustard seed, and moving in a track two and one-half miles across. Uranus revolves about the sun once in eighty-four years and Neptune in 165.

Comets come into the field from all directions, from right and left, up from the ground and down from the sky. They will be puffs of smoke a foot or less in diameter and will approach the sun with a snail-like pace. As they round it they quicken their gait, and sometimes move as much as a foot an hour. At the same time they will expand until they are six or eight feet around and have tails a quarter of a mile or more in length. The sun is constantly surrounded by a gauzy fog. These are the meteor swarms and the zodiacal light that constantly circulate in his glare. And on this scale the nearest start is 8,000 miles away.

Why They Laugh in Vaudeville.

RIALTO.

Lee and Bennett:

"Doctor, doctor, come quick. There's some one in our family awfully sick."

"Who is it?"

"It's me, doctor; I had no one to send, so I came myself."

"Did you hear about the two colored baseball clubs playing a very exciting game."

"No, I did not."

"There were as many razors in the air as there were flies; it was impossible for the umpire to decide the game."

"Why? On account of the fight?"

"No. He had to call the game on account of darkness."

"Where did a hen's egg come from?"

"From the hen, of course."

"Where did the hen come from?"

"From the egg."

"Which came first?"

object seriously to being in locations that are shaded a part of the day. This is an important consideration, for trees will be needed to shade the lawn. Barberries, lilacs, snowberry, rose of Sharon, viburnums, Japanese quinces, and the dogwoods will grow and usually do well if they get a little sunshine each day.

Elms, maple, and linden trees are among the best plant to furnish shade for the outdoor living room. The elm is a hardy tree and is suitable for planting in parkways in this climate.

On a Fifty Foot Lot.

Owners of a lot that is fifty feet wide and 100 feet long will always find plenty of room for a flower garden. This space may be ten feet wide and twelve feet long and furnish room for a wide variety of perennials. Where other space is not available for a vegetable garden the flower garden could be profitably used in growing lettuce, radishes, and similar crops that require only a small amount of space. One of the best ways to utilize such space where it is not more than ten by ten feet is to use it for a salad garden. In the salad garden may be grown such crops as tomatoes, lettuce, celery, French endive, corn salad or fetticus, cress, and escrolle, a broad leaved endive.

The prices of shrubs and trees are comparatively reasonable this season, and with from $90 to $115 the grounds around most every country and suburban home could be greatly improved. The accompanying plan suggests one way of planting the grounds and will serve as a guide to others.

There are many attractive accessories for the out of door living room, and some of them are almost indispensable. Tables, chairs, and benches are always needed. Fish pools, water lily pools, bird baths, and tinkling water fountains always fit in nicely and add much to the attractiveness of the place.

USL STORAGE BATTERY SERVICE

Judge the USL Battery on its merits alone

WE encourage our patrons, no matter what make of battery they own, to judge the USL solely on its merits and to judge its price on the basis of an honest estimate of value received.

The substantial class of car-owners in this district own USL Batteries. Besides, they know the real value of USL Service. They know it is a "different" Service. Ask one of them or try our Service. You'll be convinced too.

Our USL Golden Rule Service looks after your old battery first, no matter what make, before discussing the purchase of a new one. Our business is to make your present battery last.

The Tube That Lasts

THE air-holding life of a McGraw Inner Tube is literally wound into it, as strength is built up of many strands in a rope.

The rubber, in a thin sheet, is wound about a pole, forming a tube wall of several thicknesses. These are then fused into a flawless unit, proof against seepage. The McGraw valve base is double-strengthened with alternating strips of rubber and cotton, inserted between the layers of the tube structure. The point of greatest strain is thus most heavily reinforced.

Red or Grey, the McGraw tube backs up all the mileage any casing has in it.

This Plug Vitalizes Present-Day Gas

Engineers estimate that as high as 75% of the lumpy, drizzly gas of today fails to explode in cylinders because old time spark plugs are too uncertain and weak. The change in gas calls for a change in spark plugs and the Arc-O Ribbon Fire is the first to answer it successfully.

This big, powerful, shattering spark moves up and down between the electrodes exactly like a Ribbon of Fire! It gets as much power out of the gas of today as was contained in the finest fuel of six years ago.

Hot Blasts from Pistol Barrel Core Keep Arc-O Clean

The self-cleaning pistol barrel insulator of the Arc-O Ribbon-Fire Spark Plug uses each downward explosion to dry out, blow off, the particles of oil and gas that carbonize, clog, foul and short-circuit ordinary plugs. That's why the Arc-O fires months without fouling —even in cylinders passing oil.

Since the moving ribbon of fire plays up and down the electrodes, no point can become overheated. Electrodes that spark at a single point often get white hot, burn, corrode or pre-ignite the gas.

ART

Helen Hyde Exhibit First of Five in May at Institute

By Louise James Bargelt

THE first of five exhibitions to occupy the east galleries of the Art institute in May opened last week with the woodcuts in black and white and in color, a few etchings and lithographs, and Japanese aquatints by the late Helen Hyde. This collection is on exhibition in the print room for the month of May and has been presented in its entirety to the Art institute by Miss Hyde's sisters, Mrs. Edwin F. Gillette and Mrs. Hallie Hyde Irwin. It is now on exhibit in memoriam.

It is an exhibition of charm and color and lightness. There is appeal in every piece of work, no matter how diminutive it is, a human appeal, now humorous, now purely amusing, again wistful and sad or perhaps purely, exquisitely decorative.

In her Japanese prints Miss Hyde devotes herself mainly to women and children. There is a Japanese Madonna unusual in its rendering, done in subdued browns and greens, and her "Cherry Blossoms" is a work of delightful artistry. "Day Dreams" occupies a wall by itself and is a unique bit.

There are prints which children would revel in—such a one is "The Furious Dragon," a dreadful looking beast dancing between two laughing youngsters. Another print in playful mood is the "Baby and the Puppet Cat," while the Japanese aquatint, "Goblin Lanterns," would make the heart of a small boy thrill with terror.

Miss Hyde's achievement in color should be mentioned particularly. Working usually in the conventional manner, she took a separate block for each color, obtaining the lights and shadows she desired and also the flat decorative effects of the old Japanese artists.

Miss Hyde spent some fifteen years in Japan, but before she went there she had attracted notice through her etchings of Chinatown in San Francisco. While she was born in New York, lived most of her early life in California, and worked and studied for many years abroad, she always looked on Chicago affectionately and as her home during the latter part of her life. She received many medals of distinction during her years of work, one of which she was particularly proud, being a prize in a Tokio exhibition which she won in competition with Japanese artists for the finest color print on Japanese paper. At present she is represented in a number of public American print collections, the largest being in the library of congress in Washington.

On Tuesday the eighth annual exhibition of American water colors, pastels, and miniatures, including the "Rotary exhibition" of the American Water Color society, will open at the institute. Two prizes will be given in this spring exhibition, the William T. Thill prize of $100 for a meritorious work in pure water color by a Chicago artist or an artist living within fifty miles of Chicago, and a prize of $75 offered by C. E. Kremer for a pure water color by any exhibiting artist.

The exhibition by the Chicago Society of Miniature Painters will consist of original paintings never seen before.

There are fifteen pieces in the collection of paintings by Louis Ritman. Mr. Ritman is a Russian from Odessa and has exhibited at the Paris salon and at various American galleries, including the Art institute. In 1915 he had an exhibit at the institute, the result of a year in Giverny, France.

Henry G. Keller, who is instructor in water colors in the Cleveland School of Art, will exhibit works in water color, with a few oil canvases. He is a native of Cleveland, but most of his art study was done in Germany. He is a painter of versatility, and has won especial distinction as a painter of animal subjects.

The Camera club will hold its exhibition in room 259, this being the third of its seventeen annual exhibitions to be held in the Art institute.

From June 18 through July 11 the temporary exhibition galleries will be given over to the annual showing of the work of students of the Art institute and the twenty-seventh annual exhibition held by the Art Students' league. Seven prizes will be given in this last exhibition—the W. O. Goodman prizes, amounting to $100; the Municipal Art league prizes, amounting to $100; the Art Institute Alumni association prize of $35; the T. J. Keane prize of $10, the F. J. Kendall prize of $5, the Art Students' league prize of $50 each.

There will be an exhibition of French paintings at the Arts club opening tomorrow.

Keep Your Gears Young

Your car is as old as its gears. Worn gears will rob any car of its youthful pep and power.

Dixon's helps to postpone the day when your car just drags itself along and you have to turn it in for a small allowance.

DIXON'S Gear LUBRICANT

When you put Dixon's into your differential and transmission cases, you give your gears a smooth, velvety, wear-resisting film of lubricant that positively prevents friction. And it stays put! No "squeezing out" under pressure! No breaking up under heat or congealing in cold weather!

Once you use Dixon's you'll become a Dixon fan, like hundreds of thousands of other motorists, because, —it saves gasoline—reduces upkeep—prevents excessive wear—cuts down noise—makes smoother, easier, faster miles.

See what your dealer says about Dixon's. He has it for you.

Dixon's 677 for differential and transmission. Also Dixon's Cup Grease and other famous Dixon lubricants.

STANDARD EIGHT

A Powerful Car

THE beautiful lines and luxury of your car please you, but you respect it for its power.

In time you come to love it for what it has done for you, and you depend upon it as you depend upon your friends.

To those men and women to whom a motor car is something more than a machine, we respectfully recommend the Standard Eight. See the new models at our showrooms.

Stop Wasting Gasoline

A reproduction of Richard Spillane's editorial in the Business and Financial section of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, May 3, 1920

"SOME persons think that what they do with their money or with what they purchase with their money is not any other person's business.

They are mistaken.

A lot of persons are buying gasoline today and using it wastefully. In so doing they are penalizing all the people, and particularly all owners of automobiles.

There are 6,000,000 passenger cars in the United States. There is a shortage of gasoline. Through gross waste this shortage is made more acute than it should be. If it is not checked the price of gasoline will be forced to a height that will compel many persons to lay up their cars.

The automobile is of great utility. It gives opportunity to many millions of persons—men, women and children—to get out into the country, to have recreation and pleasures that otherwise would be difficult for them to obtain. It is a great agency in the promotion of good roads. It is a great agency, too, in the promotion of good health. Anything that restricts its use is of public concern.

Those who have studied the subject say one-half a gallon of gasoline per car is wasted today through carelessness, through overuse of cars and through useless mileage. This means 3,000,000 gallons a day.

This has to be stopped or the price of gasoline will stop the use of tens and tens of thousands of cars. It will stop if you recognize the fact that any one who wastes gasoline is doing an injury to you whether you own a car or do not own one.

HOW does the waste of gasoline concern the person who does not own a car, might be asked. Let us see.

There are hundreds of thousands of motor trucks. They do a great work in the transportation of various commodities. There are hundreds of thousands of motor cars to be built this year. If the price of gasoline advances the cost of transporting goods will be increased and you will have to pay it in the higher prices you pay for eggs, for milk, for beef, for vegetables, for moving your household goods, for anything and everything you eat or use, for directly or indirectly it will be in the bill the general public has to pay.

A waste of one-half gallon of gasoline per passenger car per day means 1,095,000,000 gallons a year. Wow!

One gallon of gasoline will provide the energy to move a one-ton truck 15 miles, or to put it another way, it will move 15 tons of freight one mile. If the users of passenger cars would save the one-half gallon a day they waste it would equal 16,425,000,000 ton miles of haul.

Economy in gasoline means more than the general public appreciates. More oil is being used today than is being produced. That means the reserve stocks are being drawn upon. Curtailment of waste is imperative. It rests with users of gasoline to do voluntarily what otherwise they inevitably will be forced to do.

Save oil."

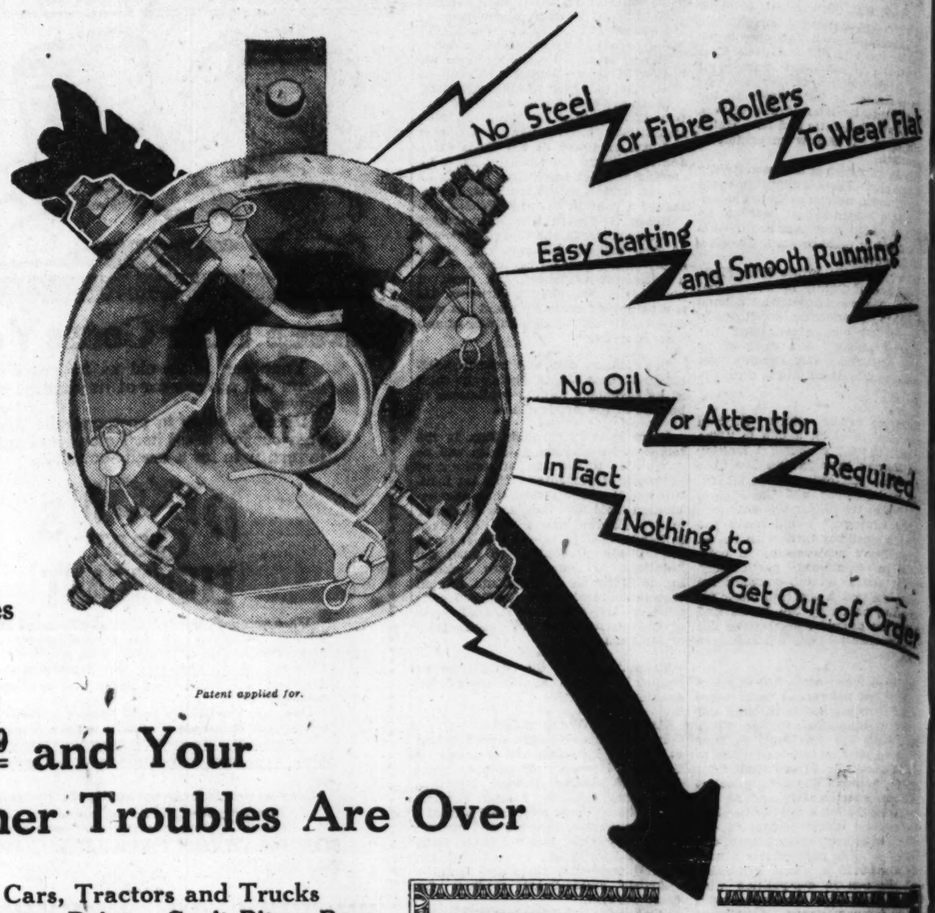
B-K-F TIMER



Patent applied for.

The Timer for Fords That Lasts and Always Operates

Nothing to Wear Out

The B-K-F TIMER is a positive action, MAKE and BREAK Ford Timer that lasts. It gives to the Ford Car, Truck, or Tractor all the Timer certainty of the world's best magnetos that operate on the same sure MAKE and BREAK principle. Its operation is as efficient after a year's use as when first installed. There is nothing to wear out—no fiber rollers, no old style sliding contact. The B-K-F TIMER'S parts are all steel, and wear is reduced to a minimum by simple action.

Improves Starting and Running

The stationary, tungsten-tipped contact points of the B-K-F TIMER make a perfect connection with practically no wear. They never fail—they never foul. You'll have no more missing cylinders due to faulty timer contact—no more weakened sparks due to worn contact points.

Twenty-four Perfection Tests

Every B-K-F TIMER is made of the very best materials with nickel-plated parts to prevent rust. Every Timer is given 24 tests before it leaves the factory—every part is tested for workmanship and efficient action. Every B-K-F TIMER works satisfactorily, and lasts as long as your car, or your money will be returned.

We Guarantee the B-K-F TIMER to end your Timer Troubles

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

STOP! LOOK! READ!
THIS IS AN OPPORTUNITY!
We want 25 more men to fill our Organization and we mean to get them and teach them our business regardless of what it will cost us. Our business is growing so fast we must have more men to take care of it.
We have pulled more men out of a rut and made them successful than any other house in Chicago. Some never made more than $100 per month until they came with us, and in two to three years they now own their automobile and home with plenty in the bank.
The same chance confronts you now if you have got the stuff in you and you never know until you try.
Regardless of what you are doing now, or what your nationality may be, even if you can only put in part time, come in and talk it over with me.

FOR SALE—
ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY.
ATTENTION, HOMESEEKERS!
THE fine, elevated, and much admired grounds of the WESTWARD HO GOLF CLUB are to be made available for home purposes. Through an unusually fortunate purchase we are in a position to turn over lots to home-seekers at the most reasonable figure, coupled with an easy payment plan and a building service department.
NOT only are the prices extremely reasonable, but unusually low payments prevail, which carry such provisions as "NO INTEREST OR TAXES FOR THE FIRST YEAR" and "NO PAYMENTS IN CASE OF SICKNESS OR OUT OF WORK." On the other hand, a payment of $2.50 a month will be paid to each lot owner for ground rent while the property is being used by the Golf Club.
WE will pay all assessments for sewer and water and cement sidewalks to be put in this subdivision.
DUE to the unusual characteristics of this property and the fact that it is located right in the path of Chicago's most outstanding development, values will increase steadily. It is our plan to develop this property in a permanent way. The lots are 170 feet deep and have 80 feet wide.
TERMS OF PAYMENT—Lots under $1,000, $100 down and $12.50 a month, less the $2.50 credit, or only $10 a month. Lots over $1,000, $150 down and $15 a month, less the $2.50 credit or only $12.50 a month. Lots over $2,000, 10 per cent down and 1 per cent a month.
THIS is the most unusual home proposition now in the reach of all homeseekers. Particulars free upon request.
ARTHUR DUNAS & CO.,
607 Straus Bldg., Chicago.
Gentlemen—
Without obligation on my part, send complete details of your new Golf Links Subdivision.

Are You Getting Your Share?

Your rent money is buying property and security for some one else. Why isn't it for your family?
Meet opportunity half way and write me for information regarding our plan of home ownership. Very little cash required.
G. C. POWELL,
5831 Higgins-av. Kildare 7758.

AFTER READING THIS
Send for advance particulars concerning our "financing of homes" plan to be worked out in a fine, new, advantageously located subdivision soon to be opened on the great Northwest Side. Through an unusually fortunate purchase, we will offer lots in this new subdivision at rock bottom prices with unusually low payments, providing for no interest for the first year, also for no payments in case of sickness or out of work. It will not cost you anything but a postage stamp to investigate this proposition. Address F 412, Tribune.

Do You Know that I have the best practical plan for home ownership for those who are really in earnest about getting away from paying rent? It will pay you to investigate immediately, because those people who have undertaken my proposition are now recommending it to their friends, and, of course, it is limited.

REMEMBER,
my proposition insures you a home. Address P S 403, Tribune.

Attention, Renters! Everyone That Pays Rent Answer This Ad

You can have a home of your own, bungalow or 2 apartment, for less than your present rent. Do not delay as our capacity for building is limited. Answer right this minute. Address F S 495, Tribune.

You Men and Women Who Pay Rent Which Will You Rather Do
Continue to let your money enrich a grasping, profiteering landlord in return for a RENT RECEIPT?
Or pay it out in return for a HOME?
Think it over—it's up to you. Ever since the time of the cliff dwellers it has remained the foremost desire of every worth while man to obtain a home where he, and not an avaricious landlord, can issue orders. Every such man knows that he cannot borrow money on a stock of rent receipts, but that he can on what he has paid out for a home.
So if you are that worth while man or woman, then write or call and see me, and I will positively show how $100 will start you.
J. A. MILLER,
5409 Milwaukee-av.

OPPORTUNITY, MR. RENT PAYER, IS KNOCKING AT YOUR DOOR NOW.
I am placing one of the most attractive subdivisions on the market that was ever offered to lot purchasers in case of prices that are within the reach of all. Why offer a bonus for a flat when you can in a short time have a home of your own? Advance information will be supplied free of charge, without obligation on your part, upon request. REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Wisconsin.

WE EXTEND

to you if you buy land from us or improvements if you buy land from us or have a home. Our large tracts of forest and Oconto county hardwood timber are being cut and sold and will soon be gone. We will allow you credit on it. Our credit plan is bringing many actual settlers into our district, which will be settled all who buy. If you are thinking of buying land anywhere for a home, for a farm or investment, you should investigate this offer made by us. We represent three of the largest lumber companies in northeast Wisconsin from whom you will get your land. The financial standing and business ability of these companies you can learn by inquiring to any commercial agency or any banker or Milwaukee man.

OUR SALES PLAN.

This is one year for our district what it has taken other districts years to accomplish. This is the best credit means to a new district and to the settler. Take a few days off and make an investigation of our proposition. It will only cost you $5.56 round trip. Do it every free while looking over land.

We want any one who is willing to face hard work for a few years in order to become independent on his own land to call on us for further information. Remember, however, in locating our settlers we want to know conditions just as they are. We do not start with any misrepresentation. Our district has its advantages and disadvantages, like any other part of the U. S. This information you can ascertain by personal inspection or state department of agriculture, Madison, Wis., or to government statistics.

HOME LANDS,

908 MANHATTAN BLDG., 431 S. DEARBORN-ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

"HELP"

Most of the farms in this great dairy section of Wisconsin are OPERATED WITHOUT HIRED HELP. Our Director of Markets writes us: "I don't think that there are 5% of the farmers here employ help except during haying time. The reason for this is that farms are small—mostly 80 acre farms, and can be handled by the owner alone."

Our U. S. Dept. of Agriculture writes us: "Not over 10 per cent of the active operating farmers employ help outside of that furnished by their family. The average farm here is 80 to 160 acres. The farmer here has employment the whole year around during haying time. The season for this is short, clearing land, and milking in Fall and Winter. The cream and cheese check here are the great mortgage lifters."

LAND INFORMATION.

NEW SOUTH WALES, PREMIER WOOL STATE OF THE WORLD. Australia is the chief producer of fine wool. New South Wales is the greatest wool producing State of Australia. At the end of June, 1917, the New South Wales flocks contained nearly 36,200,000 sheep. The same year, the entire United States, second country of the world in sheep raising, had only 47,616,000 head of sheep. The wool clip of New South Wales in 1917 totaled 270,625,000 lbs. "In the grower." The same year 22,088,432 lbs. of mutton were exported from New South Wales. The state had 2,788,000 cattle in 1917, and 734,000 horses. Meat is transported at low cost from New South Wales to the world's markets in large refrigerated ocean steamers. The great factor in low cost production of meat and wool, in addition to the large areas of citable land is the NATURAL RANGE. It never freezes, except in the highest mountains—fodder grows the year around—hence farm animals are housed without necessity of providing barns and other shelters, and without the labor and cost of winter feeding from now or grain. Such a gift of nature puts the ranchman ("station-owner") of New South Wales beyond the pale of competition. The results show in the tremendous growth of pastoral wealth in New South Wales. NEW SOUTH WALES INFORMATION BUREAU, 149 Broadway, New York City.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

CITY'S BIGGEST THEATER STILL LACKS A NAME

$5,000,000 Project Soon to Have Christening.

BY AL CHASE.

Spending around $5,000,000 on a theater—to be the largest and most magnificent in America—would lead the average Chicagoan, familiar with our frolicsome labor unions, to picture all kinds of building worries creasing the brows of the harassed owners.

But although the foreheads of Messrs. Balaban & Katz are deeply furrowed these days, it's not over labor troubles in connection with the big playhouse going up on the "L" shaped lot in State street, just across Benton place from the Masonic temple, and also fronting on Lake street. Not a bit. It's all about such a simple thing as a name.

New York City recently opened a movie theater, smaller than the new loop film house being built by Balaban & Katz, but with a few more seats than it will have. It is called the Capitol. Right away, of course, the rest of the country began breaking out with movie "Capitols" and it was tentatively decided to christen Chicago's finest the same way.

Balk at Imitating Broadway.

But a protest arose against such an imposing imitation of a less imposing Broadway playhouse and as a result the great question now to be solved by Messrs. Balaban & Katz is "What'll we call it?" At present three distinctive Chicago names are under consideration.

In actual size and magnificence the big unchristened playhouse, designed by Architects C. W. and George L. Rapp, will stand at the top. It will have 5,000 seats. And if the chairs were crowded in the way they are in the New York Capitol, with only thirty-two inches back to back, instead of thirty-four as required here, it easily could surpass the 5,200 in the eastern house.

Big Theaters Scarce.

In spite of press agents' mind wanderings, big theaters are rare in Chicago or any other city. For instance, the Auditorium, at present our biggest, has just 3,641 seats; the State-Lake is next, with 2,800; next in the loop is the Majestic, with 1,980. Outside the loop some of the biggest are the Pantheon, 2,298; Covent Garden, 2,250, and Riviera, 2,100. The new Tivoli, being built by Balaban & Katz in Cottage Grove avenue, just south of Sixty-third, will seat 4,000. The New York Hippodrome only seats about 3,000.

Chicago's biggest playhouse is going to be wide, instead of the stereotyped tunnel-like movie house. It will be 170 feet from side wall to side wall, with a depth of 160 feet and a stage 35 feet deep. There will be thirty-four rows of seats, instead of forty-eight in the New York Capitol.

Keeping 'Em Cool.

As comfort in a theater is about as important as the show, it'll be interesting to movie fans to know that this will be the first big loop house to artificially cool its patrons by means of a real refrigerating plant. The installers of the plant guarantee 72 degrees, even if the weather man is putting on 96 degrees outside.

The main entrance on State street will be 60 feet wide and 90 feet high, equal in height to a seven story building, and extend back 70 feet to the auditorium proper. The exterior on both State and Benton place is a monumental design carried out in French treatment, to be faced with terra cotta on both sides.

At the end of the grand lobby will be a marble staircase extending up to all levels. The seating arrangement on the orchestra floor is laid out on a European horseshoe plan, with a 20 foot promenade in the back, running from Lake street to the lobby. There also will be an 8 foot promenade on each side.

1,800 Seats in Balcony.

There will be a mezzanine floor with twenty-five boxes with seats for 600. There will be 1,800 seats in the big balcony, and 2,600 on the main floor—making a total of 5,000.

The color scheme of the entire house will be deep purple and gold. The cove three color lighting system, of amber, red, and blue, will be used. Automatic dimmers will blend the colors, so that at periods of twenty minutes there will be a complete change of the three colors, but so gradual as not to be perceptible.

The site of the house cost $1,350,000 and is owned by Balaban & Katz. At present prices of labor and materials it is estimated the building and furnishings will total $2,500,000, with a strong probability of it climbing over the $3,000,000 mark.

STATE STREET ENTRANCE TO CHICAGO'S BIGGEST PLAYHOUSE.

ARCHITECT TO QUIT LOOP FOR NEW LINK STUDIO

Walter W. Ahlschlager, now in the Conway building, is the newest recruit to the fast growing colony of architects in the link district. He has purchased the building at the southwest corner of Rush and Hubbard, Annie G. Cain, 30x109, for a reported $40,000. Mr. Ahlschlager is now remodeling it at an expense of $25,000 for his architectural studio, which when completed, June 15, will be among the finest private office buildings in the city.

Mr. Ahlschlager also purchased from Henry C. Prentice the building at the southwest corner of Cass and Superior, 51x109, for an indicated $74,000, subject to $24,000. The buyer plans reconstructing the present improvements into an office building. Hedberg & Bistor were brokers in both deals.

Another north side deal was the purchase by Frederick T. Hoyt from Edmund J. Prendergast of the four story stone front flat building at the southwest corner of Cass and Pearson, 52x75, for a reported $30,000. Mr. Hoyt will remodel his purchase into an office building. A. J. Pardridge & Co. were brokers.

WOODLAWN CAFE CHANGES HANDS

Fred W. Church, who operates a restaurant at 4122 Cottage Grove avenue, has taken over the 99 year lease made by Arthur Walters to the Woodlawn Catering Co. on January 1, 1912, on the Woodlawn cafe and cabaret property, 100x123, at the southwest corner of Sixty-third and Cottage Grove, for $35,000 subject to $25,000 and other consideration. The deal calls for "ground, buildings, fixtures and furnishings." According to "Jimmy" Moran this means the retirement of Harry Kavanaugh from the Woodlawn. Mr. Moran says he will remain manager and the cabaret will be continued.

County Recorder's Staff Now Working Overtime

According to Joseph F. Haas, county recorder, things are booming in his office at such a rate that employés are working overtime trying to catch up. Until more money is appropriated, he says, the public must suffer considerable inconvenience caused by delays in service.

A comparison of transfers filed during the first four months of the year with those of the same period of 1919 shows a gain in number of 8,285 and an increase in stated considerations of $36,676,069. Trust deeds and mortgages increased $55,277,089.

Busy Woodlawn Transfer Corner to Be Improved

The South Side Buick Sales company, through James E. Faget, president, has leased from Walter Snell the 97x120 at the southwest corner of Cottage Grove avenue and East Sixty-first street, across from old Sans Souci, improved with a one and two story saloon building, for ninety-nine years, at a rental of $30,000 for the first ten year term and $373,800 for the remaining eighty-nine years. Alterations amounting to $20,000 are planned. In 1922 a three story building will be erected and used by the Buick company.

Sheridan Road to Have 90 Flat Building, $350,000

A ninety flat building, with one and two room apartments, to cost approximately $350,000, is to be built by William Pickel at 4132-36 Sheridan road, on the 100x193 purchased from Mrs. G. Hill for a reported $40,000. It will be south of and adjoining the sixty flat building just completed by Mr. Pickel. James A. Savage, with George W. Walker, was broker.

Christian High School to Have $125,000 Building

A $125,000 building is planned by the Chicago Christian High School association on the block fronting on West Seventy-first treet, between Racine avenue and May street, control of the entire frontage having been just acquired. The association's present school at the southwest corner of Loomis and Seventy-second streets, has been outgrown.

REALTY BOARD TO ARBITRATE RENT ROWS FREE

The Chicago real estate board, at the regular monthly meeting on Wednesday, at the suggestion of President Adolph F. Kramer, in view of the number of controversies between owners and tenants, has offered the services of its arbitration committee in the settlement of disputes. Its offer reads:

"The board has made a very extensive study of the cost of maintenance of improved property and has prepared valuable statistics. The arbitration committee is composed of men who have had years of experience in the handling of improved real estate and have had satisfactory dealings with both owners and tenants. The sole object of the board in making this offer is to give both parties to the controversy a fair and impartial hearing and render prompt decisions in accordance with the facts.

"The services of the arbitration committee may be accepted by the owner and tenant to settle cases which are now pending in court. The cases will be heard promptly and decisions rendered without delay. Before the arbitration committee can act, however, it will be necessary for each party to agree to arbitrate and to abide by the decision of the committee."

There will be no costs of any kind, and the offer is open to any one whether a member of the realty board or not.

Nunnery Planned for 140 Acre Tract in Palos Park

Palos Park is to be the home of St. Bernard's Hotel Dieu, a Catholic corporation composed of the hospital Sisters of St. Joseph. A 140 acre tract has been purchased from Philip R. Brand, son of the late Rudolph Brand, for a reported price of $28,000 cash and a mortgage of $50,000.

The property is improved with a fourteen room residence and a stucco bungalow, occupied for many years by Mr. Brand and his father as summer homes. A novitiate for the education of young women for the sisterhood will be established. It will be known as Mount St. Joseph. McMahon & Hoban were brokers.

Adventurers' Club Rents Clark Street Quarters

The Adventurers' club has leased the second, third and fourth floors at 40 South Clark street, directly over the Cozy theater, from John R. Thompson, for five years. The club has subleased the second and fourth and will use the third floor for its own use.

NEW $10,000,000 HOTEL TO FRONT JACKSON PARK

Great Hostelry to Have 416 Foot Tower.

Unless work is started pretty soon on the $15,000,000 Greater Edgewater Beach hotel project, the south side is going to be able to say it has the largest hotel in the world, for plans have been drawn for a twenty-two story $10,000,000 structure, the main building to be as high as the law allows—260 feet—and topped wtih the highest tower in town, 416 feet. It will be at the northwest corner of Stony Island avenue and the Midway on a site 400x350.

The property was purchased from Frederick L. and Robert I. Mandel, trustees under the Mandel trust, and is vacant. Several big hotel projects have been talked of for this corner during the last ten years, but all have fallen through. The new owner is a Chicagoan and intends work to start as soon as possible.

No Kitchenettes.

It will be operated as a regular hotel and not have apartments and kitchenettes. It will be directly across the Midway from the Plaisance hotel at the southeast corner of Stony Island.

Definite announcement of the owner, the name of the hotel and other details will be made shortly. Work has been under way on the plans for six months so there will be little delay when it is decided to start construction.

New Building Limit Helps.

The recent change in building height limits and the assurance that the south shore plan will go through were important factors in hurrying the hotel project along. Instead of the 200 foot building originally planned, it is expected to build to the 260 limit.

U. S. TO SELL 119 MODERN HOUSES IN HAMMOND, IND.

One hundred and nineteen houses, comprising 174 units, of the Hammond, Ind., federal building project are to be sold. Henry R. Brigham, manager of the real estate division of the United States Housing corporation, has appointed Frank R. Martin of the Hammond real estate firm of Woods, Martin & Co. as the local real estate representative in the sale.

The property has been appraised at approximately $700,00, but it is said it could not be duplicated today for less than $1,500,000. The houses are to be sold for 10 per cent down and 1 per cent of the balance each month; for a $3,625 modern four room house, $362.50 must be paid in cash and $32.62 a month. The government charges 6 per cent per annum on the balances from time to time unpaid.

The improvements of the subdivision include concrete streets, sewers, sidewalks, grading, and black soil and landscape gardening. The houses are modern, with full basements, concrete foundations, laundry trays, heating plants, baths, and have been recently decorated. The project is opposite Maywood park, of twenty acres.

Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page Sells Flats for $350,000

Florence L. Page, wife of Thomas Nelson Page, former ambassador to Italy, has sold to Winfield H. Schendorf for an indicated $350,000, subject to $92,000, the eighty flat building, 202 x280, at 3960-92 Ellis avenue.

SALOON BECOMES CANDY SHOP.

The Nicholas Confectionery company has leased from Philip F. W. Peck and Ferdinand Peck through E. F. Keebler & Co. the former saloon at the northwest corner of Wabash avenue and Eighth street for five years from May 7 at a term rental of $12,000.

WOOLEN JOBBERS MOVE.

John B. Ellison & Sons, woolens, have leased space on the second floor of the Lake View building, 116 South Michigan avenue, and will move from the Harford building on April 26.

Exceptional Selection of First Mortgages

We are very fortunate to be able to offer investors an unusually large and attractive selection of first mortgages. The first mortgages are secured by choice income producing property in the Madison-Kedzie District—the Hub of Chicago—which is noted for its desirability as a field for investment.

We have individual first mortgages in amounts from $1,000 and up, netting 6%, and maturing in one to five years. Every first mortgage has been thoroughly investigated by us and is offered with our unqualified recommendation.

Also First Mortgage Serial Bonds

The Madison & Kedzie State Bank is West Side Distributor for the Investors Securities Corporation, which underwrites large first mortgage real estate and industrial bond issues. We now have first mortgage bonds in denominations of $100, $500, $1,000.

Come and see us. If not convenient to call during the day come Tuesday or Saturday evening. Let us show you how we can serve you.
